Airport noise parley includes 50 communities

Representatives from more than 50 area communities will meet in Des Plaines tonight to set the groundwork for an effort to reduce noise pollution from O'Hare Airport.

Officials of National Organization to Injure Sound Controlled Environment (NOISE) will speak at the session at 8 p.m. at the Des Plaines City Hall, 1428 Miner St.

Philip Lindahl, the city's environmental officer, said the meeting is designed to start a local committee aimed at lobbying for legislation and controls for planes operating at O'Hare.

"The noise situation has become a major environmental problem for communities in this area and we hope to work out a solution," he explained.

Lindahl said local communities would be asked to finance the effort.

Open house set by congregation

The community is invited to an "Open House" Sunday, Aug. 26, at Maine Township Jewish Congregation, 8800 Ballard Rd., Des Plaines. Tours of the facilities will be conducted by congregation, sisterhood and men's club officers and board members from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The open house will provide visitors with an opportunity to meet the spiritual leader, Rabbi Jay Karzen, Cantor Harry Solowinich, President Melvin Dick, and other lay leaders of the congregation who will answer questions regarding the educational facilities, high holidays, nursery school and affiliate groups. Refreshments will be served.

LINDAHL SAID Lloyd Hinton, a national director of NOISE, will speak at the meeting. Hinton has been instrumental in the passage of recent federal airport noise regulations.

In addition to getting support from other municipalities, private citizens will also become active in the NOISE effort, Lindahl said.

The group has been able to impose night flight restrictions at several major airports throughout the country. NOISE hopes to get similar restrictions put into effect for O'Hare.

Lindahl said a strategy for action on the noise problem will be mapped out at tonight's meeting.

THE MAN CARRYING the duffel bag and package for Network Courier Service. They personally deliver parcels all over the nation. One of their seven branch offices is located in Des Plaines. More photos on Page 5.

Service for 'urgent' deliveries

by MIKE ZAREMBA

The man in the jet black suit looks a little mysterious, even intriguing, as he jumps out of the cab. He grabs a big brown duffel bag, a large envelope, pays the cabbie and walks through the automatic doors at O'Hare Airport.

A voice comes over the PA system: the TWA flight leaves in 15 minutes. The checker takes the duffel bag, slaps on a tag and hands the man a receipt. The bag is now on the conveyor belt, going down to the loading center. No time to waste.

Reaching in his pocket, he pulls out an I.D. card and pins it to his breast pocket. He picks up his pace a little, working his way down the long steel staircase to the loading dock.

THE SIGN ABOVE the revolving doors reads: "Employees Only." A security guard stops him, but he flashes his I.D. card. "Okay, fine," the guard says.

He has sight of the bag again as it comes down the long conveyor. A few buttons are pushed by an operator, lights flash, the bag scoots down to a section marked "5."

The man in the jet black suit watches the baggage handler place the duffel bag in a big steel bin which is then hooked to a small scooter cab and wheeled out onto the airport concourse.

He flashes his I.D. card at another guard, following the duffel bag, still holding his envelope. His suit flaps in the jet blast as he runs after the scooter.

A mechanic, kneeling next to one of the jet tires, is checking something. He looks up and catches sight of the running figure.

The big brown duffel bag is the last piece of cargo to be stuffed into the plane's belly. He is sure of that.

THE MAN IN the black suit works for Network Courier Service (NCS), a company that picks up parcels and documents at offices all over the United States, safeguards them enroute and delivers them within hours, if necessary. He can't make mistakes; the job doesn't allow it.

The man hurries back to the loading center, up the staircase, through the terminal. Before he boards the plane, his envelope must pass through the X-ray detector. No problems. He grabs the envelope and walks onto the ramp.

The ticket girl noticed the I.D. card, but he was moving too fast. She turns to the steward and he points to a name on the list.

Every day, morning and night, this man and other NCS couriers working out of the company's Des Plaines office, 2500

Devon Ave., retrace those steps through the hectic O'Hare terminals.

RON MUNLEY, Chicago district manager, said the business was started by a Columbia Broadcasting System executive who found sending movie film, videotape and correspondence a risky task via "No one can beat an eight cent stamp. But when it's urgent, where time is important, that's when the courier service is needed," Munley said.

"The couriers are well trained and know what to do in an emergency," Munley added. Most of the men are retired policemen or firemen. NCS keeps in constant touch with its men to locate a courier fast when he's needed. The company's operation is flexible, designed to get deliveries to their destination quickly and safely.

If a flight to New York is forced by bad weather to land in Boston, for instance, the courier may rent a car on the last leg of his trip. For morning deliveries to Wall Street customers, NCS couriers use a helicopter service from New York's Kennedy Airport. For shipments of valuables, an armed guard accompanies the NCS man.

Average cost for the service is about $40 for each shipment of less than 10 lbs. NCS couriers handle just about everything: legal documents, stock prospectuses, television scripts, computer parts or publisher proof sheets.

EVERY SATURDAY, during the hockey season, for example, a courier is sent to Montreal for films of National Hockey League games. He delivers them to New York, where they are broadcast nationwide on Sunday. After the Johnny Carson show is filmed each day in Los Angeles, an NCS courier makes sure the film gets to New York within hours.

The company has also handled some odd jobs. Its couriers went along with the electronic podium used for this year's Grammy Awards show from Nashville. They carried the manuscript and photographs for Norman Mailer's controversial new book on Marilyn Monroe.

A National Broadcasting Co. executive even hired NCS to fly along with his mother because he was afraid she'd get lost en route, Munley said.

ON HIS TRIP to New York, the NCS courier from Chicago lands at Kennedy Airport and reverses the steps he took to get on the plane. Through the terminal to the loading center, he flashes the I.D. card and walks onto the field. The brown duffel bag comes off the plane and he's on his way, envelope in hand.

He waves down a cab and is on his way. Minutes later, he is in an elevator. The doors open on the fifth floor of a Manhattan office building.

The courier delivers the packages in the duffel bag and the envelope, making sure they go to the right man, not a secretary.

He then finds a telephone booth in the main lobby, dials a Chicago number, identifies himself and verifies delivery and the exact time. His first assignment is complete, but his day is not over. In a few hours he might be sent to Los Angeles, Baltimore, Washington or San Francisco.

Burglars steal tools

Burglars forced their way into Northwest Heating, 1365 Miner St., early Tuesday and stole an electric drill and a chest of tools valued at $635, according to Des Plaines police.

Police said the burglars entered the building through a rear door.

Cat burglar enters home, threatens man, takes $145

A local man was robbed late Tuesday by a cat burglar who entered his home, threatened him and fled a few minutes later with $145 in cash, according to Des Plaines police.

The victim, James Faltinek, 438 Michael Ct., told police the man appeared to be holding a gun and threatened to shoot him if he moved.

According to reports, Faltinek, who had returned home earlier that evening from a business trip, was awakened by a flashlight shining in his eyes.

POLICE SAID THE man, described only as black and about 5'8" tall said, "Don't move or I'll shoot you."

After the drowsy victim told the burglar to take what he wanted, the burglar reportedly said, "do exactly as I tell you and you won't get hurt — where is your money?"

Faltinek threw him his wallet containing $65 in cash and credit cards and was ordered to remain in bed while the burglar's "partner" was going through the rest of the house. The victim later told police he did not see a second man.

THE MAN THEN apparently fled through the backyard of the house.

Police said the man had broken in through a south side window and had rifled a lower-floor desk, stealing another $80 in cash before going upstairs to Faltinek's bedroom.

Police also reported finding a few small blood stains on some curtains while checking for fingerprints.

Neighbors told police of noticing a yellow sports car carrying two black men in the area about 4 p.m. Tuesday. Faltinek told police his wife and children were away on a trip at the time of the break-in.

Detectives were investigating leads into the holdup yesterday.

Teacher leader calls for bargaining law

A local teachers' union official has called for a state law requiring school officials to bargain collectively with teachers.

Shirley Sandelands, a teacher at Maine South High School and former president of the Maine Education Association, told an Illinois Senate committee Tuesday that the "critical" labor relations problems in many area schools can only be solved by the General Assembly.

"Chaos is imminent unless action (on a collective bargaining bill) is taken," she told members of the industry and labor committee during hearings at the Regency Hyatt House.

MISS SANDELANDS is chairwoman of the Illinois Education Association (IEA) Region 12, which includes Maine Township, Northbrook, New Trier, Leyden and Ridgewood. She formerly headed the Maine Education Association, which was merged with another union to form the present Maine Teachers Association (MTA), an IEA affiliate.

"Some of our school boards refuse to negotiate at all with teachers. Other school boards refuse to negotiate on substantive educational issues that very much affect the quality of the educational system in these districts," she said.

"As committed professionals, we can no longer allow ourselves to be excluded from a meaningful role in that decision-making process in our school districts," said Miss Sandelands.

The MTA has filed suit to force the school board back to the bargaining table. The board unilaterally canceled negotiations in June and adopted the 1973-74 salary schedule.

"We need a law that compels school boards to negotiate with teachers, a law that would require negotiations on non-economic as well as economic items," she said in her prepared statement.

DIST. 207 teachers have been attempting to negotiate issues such as class size, grievance procedures and teacher evaluations. In breaking off further negotiations last June, Dist. 207 school board president Robert Claus said the teachers' insistence on these issues had brought the talks to an impasse.

"This law should set up uniform impasse procedures and provide for the binding arbitration of grievances. This law should allow teachers a limited right to strike once the prescribed impasse procedures have been exhausted," she said in a statement.

Miss Sandelands attended the hearings along with about 30 other North Suburban teachers, but she was the only one to testify.

"We do not intend to give individual testimony and to be sworn in and cross-examined according to the system you have set up, because we strongly disagree with and disapprove of the entire purpose of these hearings," she said earlier in her testimony.

MISS SANDELANDS agreed to be sworn in only after she was told she could not testify if she didn't.

"At best, these hearings are meant to study the question of collective bargaining for teachers and other public employees," she said.

"At worst, these hearings are a smoke-screen that give an appearance of a real interest in collective bargaining for public employees but they are really meant to study this question to death and kill the possibility of a decent collective bargaining law," she continued.

"We cannot in good faith participate in this sham," she said.

Miss Sandelands refused to answer any questions from the senators.

Did Nixon know?

The answer is yes, say residents polled in Herald Watergate survey

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This survey was devised with the aid of Roy G. Kempa, director of market research for Paddock Publications. Herald reporters Jeannette DeWyz, Mary Houllhan, Diane Stefanos, Betty Lee and Mike Zarembo questioned 102 shoppers, employees and businessmen at the Randhurst and Woodfield shopping centers.)

by BOB LAHEY

While the nation awaited President Nixon's latest statement on the Watergate scandal, a survey conducted by the Herald revealed that two-thirds of Northwest suburban residents polled suspected or believed he had prior knowledge of the burglary of Democratic headquarters and the subsequent cover-up.

The poll showed even larger majorities believing the final answer to questions in the Watergate scandal lies in tape recordings of conversations in the President's offices and that the tapes should be turned over to the Senate Watergate committee.

But persons polled responded by similar majorities, saying the President should neither resign nor be impeached.

IN VARYING DEGREES, 67 per cent of persons polled indicated some belief that President Nixon knew beforehand of plans to burglarize the offices of the Democratic Party in the Watergate Hotel.

Concerning efforts by his subordinates to conceal White House knowledge of the burglary, 73 per cent expressed suspicion or belief the President was aware of those efforts.

On the question of the White House tapes, 84 per cent expressed belief they would provide answers to the Watergate inquiry; 86 per cent said Mr. Nixon's refusal to release the tapes had increased suspicion of his role; and 82 per cent indicated he should give the tapes to the Watergate committee.

But 76 per cent of that group said the President should not resign; and 79 per cent opposed impeachment.

THE POLL ALSO SHOWED more than one-third of those questioned consider the President less trustworthy than they did before the Watergate revelations.

Among that group, nearly 90 per cent were suspicious of his knowledge of Watergate.

But even among that one-third, an even two-thirds opposed his resignation and 80 per cent were against impeachment.

OF THE WHOLE SAMPLE, 64 per cent expressed an unfavorable attitude toward the President, with 28 per cent selecting the description "somewhat unfavorable" and 36 per cent saying they were "definitely unfavorable."

A Northwest suburban "satellite" assessor's office will open next month in Arlington Heights.

County Assessor P. J. Cullerton will ask county board approval Sept. 4 of a lease to rent a small office at 11 E. Miner St., Arlington Heights.

Tentative office opening date is Sept. 15.

The county board authorized March 19 an assessor's search for offices throughout the suburbs. The board vote was party-line, 7 to 4, with Republicans opposing the five-office proposal.

The proposed move to Arlington Heights would kill May 22 plans to move the office to 664 E. Northwest Hwy., Palatine. The Palatine lease was referred to the board's finance committee and never was approved.

A SPOKESMAN for Cullerton told the Herald yesterday that the owner of the Palatine building withdrew the lease which called for renting of 1,200 square feet of office space for $385 a month.

The Arlington Heights building is owned by the family of Roland Schapanski, an architect with offices above the assessor's site, a former record store.

"Everything has been tentatively agreed upon," Schapanski said yesterday. "They told me the contract would be approved."

The assessor's office originally planned to ask board approval of the lease Monday. Preparation of the lease will delay consideration until Sept. 4, Schapanski said.

TWO "SATELLITE" offices were opened yesterday in Glenview and Oak Lawn. Northwest, west and south suburban offices will open next month, Dennis Dunne, director of communication, said at the opening.

The Glenview office was officially opened by Chief Deputy Assessor Theodore M. Swain and former chief deputy Thomas M. Tully, a possible Democratic candidate to succeed Cullerton next year. Cullerton missed the opening because of illness.

In a prepared statement, Cullerton said:

"We believe this move to bring the services of the assessor's office to the suburbs will make it more convenient for property owners in outlying regions to utilize the many services of our Department of Taxpayer Assistance."

EACH SUBURBAN branch office will be equipped with an IBM computer communication system allowing property owners to inspect the assessor's records. The IBM computer terminals will be tied into the county computer system in downtown Chicago.

The offices will be staffed by an appraiser and personnel to aid homeowners who file complaints about assessed valuation, change names or addresses for tax bills, seek homestead exemptions or search tax records.

Office hours will be Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. "If there's a demand, we may open at night too," Dunne said.

THE DEMOCRATIC-BACKED assessor's move to the suburbs could eliminate need for township assessors. "They don't have a function in the official form," Dunne said. "We're not planning for that (elimination) at this time."

Township and county assessors' offices will have similar functions. Because of the IBM terminals, up-to-date assessment information, will be available in the Cullerton offices.

Township assessors were denied access to county computer print-outs two years ago.

Township assessors will "still be doing checks for us in unincorporated areas and of businesses," Dunne said. "They'll still be sending us building permit information."

Of 34 per cent indicating they regarded the President favorably, 14 per cent said they were "definitely favorable" and 20 per cent chose the description "somewhat favorable."

On the following series of questions, participants in the poll were asked to choose from the following answers: a) definitely true; b) probably true; c) possibly true; d) possibly false; e) probably false; f) definitely false.

Area boy, 10, wins state fair top prize

A 10-year-old boy from Arlington Heights has won the grand prize in the elementary school division of the educational exhibit at the Illinois State Fair.

John Schumacher, 1124 N. Belmont, was one of five grand prize winners chosen by state fair judges this week. His exhibit was a model street with cardboard hotel, store, church and jail.

John Haack, 642 N. Forrest, received a third place award for his architectural rendering of the Sears Tower in Chicago. He is one of 150 students in Illinois to receive awards for entries in the exhibit.

Grand prize winners received $115 each and a bonus of $100 and third place winners received $75.

Police reopen case of convicted slayer

Wilbur McDonald, 34, a former Chicago factory worker serving a 100-year-plus prison term for murder, was freed yesterday on a $20,000 recognizance bond after police linked another man to the crime. Authorities decided to reopen McDonald's case after Lester Harrison, 48, charged with the stabbing death of a young Seattle mother, was reported to have confessed to the murder of three other women in Grant Park, including one for which McDonald was convicted.

Security Council condemns Israeli attack

The UN Security Council Wednesday unanimously approved a resolution condemning Israel for intercepting an Arab airliner over Lebanon but refrained from any mention of sanctions against Israel. The U.S. joined in casting a rare vote against the Jewish state. The resolution, originating with the Lebanese-led moderate wing of the Arab world, was sponsored by Britain and France.

North Korean Reds pilot Egyptian warplanes

Israeli military spokesmen Wednesday confirmed a U.S. State Department report that Communist North Korean pilots have been flying Soviet-built warplanes for Egypt. The Israeli spokesman said the addition of North Korean pilots — estimated between 10 and 20 — appeared to be a token move by the Communist Pyongyang regime and did not in any way alter the military balance of power in the Middle East.

Hundreds of striking truck drivers' wives seized four radio stations in Chile Wednesday to broadcast propaganda on behalf of their husbands. The women stormed past astonished guards and burst into the studios and control rooms of Radio Yungay in Santiago and three provincial stations.

Monsoon floods wreak disaster in Pakistan

Pakistan declared a major part of its Punjab province a disaster area Wednesday as monsoon floods swept the countryside, wiping out 54,000 homes. In India floodwaters also rose in Kashmir and Punjab. Pakistani and Indian troops — bitter enemies brought together by the tragedy — were working together on relief operations. Death toll thus far on the Indian subcontinent had mounted to 330 and was expected to rise.

Nixon: 'I wasn't involved'

(From Herald news services)

President Nixon last night again proclaimed his innocence of any complicity in the Watergate affair — either through prior knowledge of the bugging or in a cover-up — and criticized those who have made it a "backward-looking obsession."

In a nationally televised address, he accused Senate investigators and others of trying to pin the blame personally on him, and declared it was time to turn the matter over to the courts and get on with the pressing business of the nation and world.

He made a direct appeal for public support against "those who would exploit Watergate in order to keep us from doing what we were elected to do."

In his first public response to the various allegations of wrongdoing that have emerged in 37 days of testimony before the select Senate investigating committee, Nixon declined to respond to specific charges, saying the evidence was too complicated for specific rebuttal.

Nixon said he accepted "full responsibility" for abuses which he freely admitted occurred under his administration, but denied ousted White House counsel John W. Dean's allegation that he had learned of the Watergate cover-up as early as last September.

Nixon's remarks were amplified in a 3,000 word statement in which he gave a detailed explanation of his reasons for not surrendering to the Senate committee and the special Watergate prosecutor the tapes of his conversations with aides relating to the scandal.

"If I were to make public these tapes containing blunt and candid remarks on many different subjects the confidentiality of the office of the President would always be suspect," he said.

The President said that only one of the 35 witnesses (obviously referring to Dean) who appeared before the Senate investigating committee — "a witness who offered no evidence beyond his own impressions" — gave even the slightest suggestion that he had knowledge of the planning for the Watergate break-in and that this had been contradicted "by every other witness in a position to know the facts."

Beyond this, Nixon said he had received repeated assurances both from Dean and other government investigators that no higher-ups were involved and did not learn the broader dimensions of the scandal until March 21.

After being informed on March 21 by Dean that others were implicated, Nixon said he became convinced that the reports he had been receiving for nine months "were not true" and "I launched an intensive effort on my own."

"Far from trying to hide the facts, my effort throughout has been to discover the facts and to lay those facts before the appropriate law enforcement authorities so that justice could be done and the guilty dealt with," the President said.

Nixon deplored the unethical campaign practices which he freely admitted occurred in his name last November.

But he suggested that they were the work of "a few over-zealous people" and sprang from the same disregard for the institutions of government and society which spawned the violence and rioting of the 1960s.

PRESIDENT NIXON broke his long silence on Watergate last night, addressing the issue for the first time since May 22 in a television speech to the nation. His remarks came as the latest Gallup poll showed his popularity dipped to 31 per cent, and an Oliver Quayle and Co. poll showed if an election were held today George McGovern would win 51-49.

North Vietnam warned to stay clear

(From Herald news service)

With American bombing in Cambodia ended, President Nixon delivered warnings to North Vietnam and Congress.

Nixon told the North Vietnamese they shouldn't try to take advantage of the situation by trying to mount a new military offensive.

In a statement 12 hours after the bombing was halted, the President said he would go back to Congress for permission "to take appropriate actions" if Communist forces threatened stability of Southeast Asia.

Nixon said he "only reluctantly" accepted the congressionally mandated Aug. 15 cutoff of the bombing and accused Congress of having made it much more difficult to achieve a negotiated settlement of the fighting in Cambodia.

He said the United States would "stand firmly" with the Phnom Penh government of President Lon Nol.

Nixon spoke harshly of the restraints imposed on him by Congress, as he did in an Aug. 3 letter to the House and Senate, but vowed to continue supplying "the maximum amount of economic and military assistance" to Cambodia within those legal restrictions voted by Congress in late June.

The bombing halt legislation provides that Congress must approve any presidential request for renewal of combat activity in Indochina after midnight Tuesday. The United States is permitted to continue to fly in economic and military supplies, which total $291 million in the current fiscal year, and to carry out unarmed reconnaissance flights.

The right to continue the reconnaissance flights was challenged by a Wisconsin Congressman — Democrat Robert Kastner — who said that wasn't the intent of Congress. He said there was "no sense" continuing them, and called them "dangerous" and "hostile."

The Defense Department said the last bombs were dropped in Cambodia by two F4 Phantom jet fighter-bombers, which dumped their 500-pound loads 15 minutes before the halt went into effect.

The Pentagon said four structures were destroyed and three others damaged, but did not identify them or their location. The last B52 bomb load had fallen eight minutes earlier.

Taking a skeptical view of the end of the bombing was deposed Prince Norodom Sihanouk, who charged from his government-in-exile in Peking that the halt of the raids was merely the start of a new phase of American "aggression" against Cambodia. He said the United States was planning to send "puppet troops" into the country from Thailand, South Vietnam and elsewhere.

The White House, in releasing Nixon's statement, conceded for the first time that U.S. diplomatic efforts to promote a Cambodian settlement had been broken off, and that the President saw little chance of success for a negotiated ceasefire between the Lon Nol government and Communist-led insurgents.

Henry A. Kissinger, the President's chief foreign policy adviser, had said previously the United States was a party to sensitive, delicate contacts aimed at arranging a settlement. But deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren said Wednesday these contacts no longer existed.

THE FIRST FULL day after the end of American bombing of Cambodia saw ground fighting around Phnom Penh at its lowest level in months. Only four minor contacts were reported between government troops and guerrillas in positions averaging nine miles from the capital.

Report lie test confirms Mitchell okayed break-in WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jeb Stuart Magruder is reported to have passed a lie detector test supporting his allegation that former Attorney General John N. Mitchell approved the Watergate break-in.

"The Washington Star-News, quoting 'reliable sources,' said Magruder, former deputy director of the Nixon campaign, took the test on orders from federal prosecutors some time between April 14 and May 2."

Magruder has acknowledged that he had lied the first time he appeared before the Watergate grand jury and during the January trial of the seven original Watergate defendants. The Star-News said the results of the lie detector test indicated he was telling the truth when he went to federal prosecutors April 14 and offered to tell all he knew. He testified before the grand jury a third time on May 2.

Magruder told the Senate Watergate committee that Mitchell gave final approval on March 30, 1972, at Key Biscayne, Fla., to Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy's scaled-down plan to ovesdrop on Democratic headquarters at the Watergate complex.

Mitchell later denied this, saying he rejected the plan outright. Another participant in the Key Biscayne meeting, Mitchell aide Frederick C. LaRue, testified that Mitchell said only that the matter did not have to be decided at that time.

Magruder's lawyer, James J. Bierbauer, meanwhile told UPI that reports by the Star-News, The Washington Post and CBS News were "incorrect" that Magruder would plead guilty today to one count of obstruction of justice before Chief U. S. District Judge John J. Sirica.

Judges bow from Agnew case

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Chief U. S. District Judge Edward Northrop announced Wednesday that none of Maryland's nine federal judges — six of whom are Republicans — would handle any litigation involving Vice President Spiro T. Agnew that might stem from the current federal grand jury investigation.

Northrop asked Clement F. Haynsworth, chief judge of the 4th U.S. Circuit, Chief of Appeals in Richmond, to designate a federal judge from outside Maryland to "supervise and handle all future matters arising from the inquiry."

because of Agnew's "unique position" and his relations with the state of Maryland, where he was governor from 1967 until 1968, when he was nominated for vice president.

The judge's statement in no way indicated Agnew would be implicated in the federal investigation of allegations of tax fraud, bribery, and conspiracy against him while he was governor.

The Washington Post meanwhile reported that Maryland engineering consultants had told federal prosecutors they made regular cash payments personally to Agnew to receive choice state contracts while he was governor.

NIPC interviews

Floods, sewage, money, transit mayors' chief worries

Chicago suburban mayors are almost universally concerned about flooding, wastewater, mass transportation and financial administration Shalom Gliksman told a committee of the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission yesterday.

Gliksman and other NIPC staff members are compiling the results of interviews with 66 suburban mayors in the six county metropolitan area along with copies of intergovernmental agreements from 160 municipalities as part of a study conducted by NIPC in conjunction with the Cook County Council of Governments, the Barrington Area Council of Governments, the League of Women Voters and the DuKane Valley Council.

In addition to a statistical tabulation of the survey, the organizations plan to publish a handbook to guide suburban government agencies in drafting and negotiating intergovernmental agreements.

GLIKSMAN TOLD the NIPC commissioners yesterday that almost half the mayors interviewed for the survey mentioned wastewater treatment and flooding as major problems they must cope with.

The said financial administration problems, and mass transit also were mentioned by a large number of the mayors interviewed.

Gliksman said preliminary analysis of the data from the survey seemed to indicate:

- Newly elected mayors seemed more concerned with planning to put a lid on community growth and with water supply problems than were mayors who had been in office for a period of years.
- Few communities in the densely populated area of Cook County were concerned about wastewater treatment, while many of the more rural communities were. "That's probably a credit to the Metropolitan Sanitary District," Gliksman said.
- Cook County communities were all concerned about mass transit problems within their communities while municipalities in the "out counties" were only concerned about regional mass transit problems.
- There is still a very real fear in the outlying counties of Chicago and of Cook County expressed in resistance to six-county governmental organizations and to general metropolitan government proposals.

GLIKSMAN ALSO said the persons who conducted the interviews with the mayors formed some general impressions of their own including:

- Many problems confronting municipalities are too complex for a single municipality to handle.
- Regional coordinating mechanisms such as NIPC, the Chicago Area Transportation Study (CATS) and councils of government are still too weak to satisfy all problems for all areas.
- Many mayors felt that regional agencies were not getting down to their level and that they were isolated. There was a need for the organizations to get closer to the municipalities working with them in small groups or even individually rather than at mass meetings in Chicago or county seats of outlying counties.

Gliksman also told the NIPC commissioners that the 620 intergovernmental agreements collected during the survey have been filed on a computer for information retrieval.

HE SAID MOST of the agreements the study unearthed were police, fire and public works service contracts between two municipalities or between a municipality and a special governmental district.

Out of the 620 agreements approximately 50 dealt with land use, Gliksman said, but he admitted they dealt mostly with annexation and boundary agreements for land that had no attractive tax benefits rather than for property zoned for shopping centers, convention centers or sports arenas.

The main reason most communities enter into intergovernmental agreements is to save money or make money, Gliksman said the study showed.

NIPC OFFICIALS noted at the meeting that House Bill 1141 which was passed by the General Assembly on Jan. 27 has cleared up questions about the constitutionality of local governments entering into intergovernmental agreements by giving them explicit authority to enter into such contracts.

Members of the commission at the committee meeting yesterday also voted to have NIPC plan local seminars for small groups of communities to explain NIPC functions and provide training in planning and government administration. Former Elk Grove Village Pres. Jack Pahl, who is NIPC vice president, called for the organization to design a whole educational program, possible to be offered in conjunction with junior colleges for communities within a given junior college district.

Area residents await ruling

Leaf-burning bill impact uncertain

by JEANNETTE DEWYZE

Despite the signing of a bill by Gov. Daniel Walker Monday that could allow leaf burning, it may be a while before Northwest suburban residents know whether they will be able to burn their leaves once again.

The bill, which will go into effect Oct. 1, lifts the Pollution Control Board's general ban on open-leaf burning. However, the board still will have the authority to curb burning in individual, geographical areas where pollution is high and burning could be harmful to life or health.

According to Jacob Dumelle, acting chairman of the board, the board has not yet decided how it will handle setting the new standards for leaf burning.

The board already has held some public hearings on a proposal that would allow leaf burning in cities which meet federal air pollution standards.

TWO MORE such public hearings on the proposal will probably be scheduled for September, Dumelle said. Thus, new standards for leaf burning may be in effect by mid-October, he said.

Dumelle said he could not speculate on whether leaf-burning will be prohibited in the Northwest suburbs if the proposal is accepted.

Parts of the Chicago metropolitan area do not meet federal air pollution standards now. In the past, the board has treated the entire Chicago metropolitan area as a unit, he said.

However, depending on the outcome of the hearings, "anything's possible," Dumelle said.

REACTION to the bill from Northwest suburban government officials varied.

Some suburbs, like Hoffman Estates, already have separate ordinances prohibiting leaf burning and plan to continue their bans no matter what the pollution control board decides.

"I don't see any burning in the village," said Edward Kalasa, deputy chief of the Hoffman Estates fire protection district.

Village officials in Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Des Plaines, and Rolling Meadows, all of which now have ordinances prohibiting burning, echoed his sentiments.

"I think the people of Palatine have been more than cooperative in not burning leaves, and it's helpful to the environment. There isn't any reason for us to burn leaves with the bag program we have," said Palatine Village President Wendell E. Jones.

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer said the city will "try to look for more ways to handle" the leaf problem, despite the new bill.

MOST OF the suburbs that already prohibit burning now have effective alternative methods of handling dead leaves. Leaf disposal methods include bagging leaves, grinding them up, and using the leaves for mulch.

Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove and Schaumburg now have no separate ordinances prohibiting burning and village officials say they are uncertain as to what the suburbs will do in light of the new bill.

"If the state does permit leaf burning in the area, then we would have to sit down with the village board to evaluate what kind of problem it could cause the village of Schaumburg," Robert Grossman, village director of public health, said.

He said because of the newness of the community he did not think leaf disposal was now a significant problem.

Leaves also are not a major problem in Buffalo Grove, according to the village's public works director, Bill Davis. He said he did not know if the village will pass an ordinance prohibiting burning now.

AS A RESULT of another action taken by the governor Monday, the Cook County Forest Preserve District now plans to go ahead with its recommendation of a new tree-recycling plant east of Wheeling. Assistant General Superintendent James Tyndall said yesterday.

Construction of the new plant has been held up, pending word on a bill which might have allowed for open burning of area trees once again.

However, Gov. Walker vetoed the bill in question Monday. The district now plans to recommend construction of the plant to the Board of Forest Preserve Commissioners at its regular meeting next Monday.

THE DISTRICT already has drawn up specifications and opened bids on the new plant. The need for a decision on the bill had forced the delay in the plant plans, however, Tyndall said, because the district feared the plant might be unnecessary if area suburbs were allowed to burn their own trees once again.

The proposed recycling plant is intended as a solution to a long-standing problem with diseased tree disposal in the area.

If the plant is approved by the board, it should be set up "within a couple of months," Tyndall said.

Oakton Registration next week

Final days for registration at Oakton Community College are scheduled for next week. Open registration will be held on Wednesday and Thursday, Aug. 22 and 23, in Building 3 on the temporary campus at 7900 N. Nagle in Morton Grove. Classes begin Aug. 27.

The admissions office will be open for registration of full-time and part-time students from 9 a.m. until noon and from 4 p.m. until 7 p.m. on Wednesday and Thursday. The office is now open from 8:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. daily.

Counselors will be available to discuss programs and courses with students and to assist them in registration. Late registration will be permitted on week days from Aug. 27 through Sept. 7.

Residents of the college district pay $10 per semester hour plus nominal fees. Residents of Illinois living outside of the Oakton District are charged $40 per semester hour. Non resident students should contact their local high school or junior college for partial tuition assistance.

Admission to Oakton is open to all high school graduates or residents over 19 years of age. Students under 19 years of age must submit American College Test results.

Two youths arrested for home burglary

Two youths accused of forcing their way into a local home and stealing $300 worth of stereo equipment and records were arrested Tuesday by Des Plaines police.

The pair, both 16, Tuesday broke into the home of Joe Estes, 1308 Campbell Ave., and took an FM radio, two loudspeakers and 23 record albums, police said.

Police later learned the identity of the two youths and arrested them at one of their homes, where the stolen items were recovered. They were turned over to juvenile authorities.

Neighborhood shop not what it used to be

To survive, barbers become stylists

by DIANE STEFANOS

The neighborhood barbershop isn't what it used to be.

When a man walks into a barber salon now, he wants his hair styled, so he gets the shampoo-dry cut-and-style treatment that ends in a complete instruction on how to care for and manage his hair.

The great pride and fuss over well styled hair that was once woman's is now also man's. In meeting the growing demand for hair styling services, barbers have become hairstylists and their shops have been transformed into salons.

"EVERY HAIRSTYLIST is a barber; a barber must return to school and attend seminars to keep aware of the hair-styling techniques and trends," said Tom Hartnatt, owner of Tom's Barber Shop in Arlington Heights.

Most established barbers returned to school for special training when the trend of styling men's hair first became popular. Most of them still attend seminars to stay abreast of styling trends.

"You have to if you want to be a prosperous barber. Men want their long hair to be cut neat and manageable. You can't give them that with the old fashioned barber techniques of cutting hair," Hartnatt said.

ALTHOUGH THE techniques of styling will vary from one hairstylist to the next, the basic styling process remains the same. The difference in each style depends only upon the cut.

Patrick Kukla, owner of About Hair in Des Plaines, explains, "styling basically means that a man's hair is washed and dried to remove the oils and dirt. Then it is specially cut and tapered to fit the personality, features and liking of the individual. The hair is cut so that after normal washing and drying over a period of weeks, the hair style will still look the same."

This is where styling differs from the conventional haircutting job. According to Kukla, most retired men and young boys come in to get their hair cut without having it washed. All they want is a smooth, straight cut with no layering.

MEN'S HAIRSTYLING has been booming in the past five years. Going back as far as 15 years for a select few, the trend of styling a man's hair was really set off with the Beatles.

Hartnatt explains, "Now everybody comes in here wanting their hair styled,

MEN'S HAIRSTYLING and cutting has become as fashionable and sensitive as it has been for women over the years. Red Becker, owner of the Golf-Rose Barber Shop in Hoffman Estates, believes that the neighborhood barber can offer the fashionable hairstyling job for less money than hairstyling salons. Salon hairstylists debate the issue. Customers are getting their hair styled regularly just the same.

not just cut. The barbers who have learned to style hair are better off for it. They aren't losing customers to the styling salons, they're gaining them."

The pros and cons of styling versus more traditional barbering is an issue hotly debated by both stylists and barbers.

Red Becker, owner of the Golf-Rose Barber Shop in Hoffman Estates, has been a barber and a hairstylist for 14 years. He feels that most people have a misconception about neighborhood barbers and their ability to style hair.

"PEOPLE THINK THAT we're country bumpkins and that all we do is cut men's hair and aren't able to offer them the styling that styling salons do," Becker said.

"That's where most people are wrong. When we cut someone's hair we usually just style it at the same time. A good hair cut will look good for weeks afterwards and the styling that a man pays double for in a salon is just the Cadillac approach to the good hair cut," Becker said.

Becker admits many of his customers have had their first hair styling experience outside his shop in a specialized salon. Most of them, he said, realize the styling they pay for is nothing more than the styling they get from him. So, most of his customers have decided to get their hair styled only for special occasions.

Only 10 per cent of my regular customers come in for a styling job. We give everyone, though, a good hair cut that is styled. The only thing those salons offer their customers is appointments and a nice atmosphere. Barbers and hairstylists are alike because they go to school and seminars together and learn the same things," Becker said.

RICK MASTRO, MANAGER of the Woodfield Gentlemen's Choice Ltd., doesn't agree with Becker.

"The styling of a man's hair is all in the cut he is given. We don't offer the regular conventional haircuts here that a man could go to a barbershop for. We don't use clippers or razors like a barbershop would. We only use shears and we style hair with our own techniques like anyone else," Mastro said.

Becker will say most men go to styling salons to have their hair styled because "they are on an ego trip." Mastro disagreed saying men are just more aware of their appearance. And because their hair is longer, they want it to look good and be manageable.

"A lot of barbers aren't really stylists in that what they call styling is actually chopping off some guy's hair. Men come in here all the time who had their hair styled at some barbershop and want us to fix it for them because it wasn't done correctly," Mastro said.

"I think that hair styling is here to stay because long hair is here to stay. Hair styling salons will probably take over most of the styling business. We've taken on so many regular customers now," Mastro said.

Families sought to house foreign exchange students

The International Cultural Exchange is looking for families to "adopt" foreign exchange students for the coming school year.

Luis Nunez of Schaumburg, a field associate for the exchange, said Wednesday he has only found three homes so far and that he needs about 22 more families.

"Some of the 25 are flying in Friday," Nunez said. "They are for the suburban Chicago area, but I would prefer to have them placed in the Northwest area."

There seemed to be an excess of foreign students coming over this year to experience a school year of American living, he added.

NUNEZ is seeking homes for 14-through 19-year-olds from Central and South America.

Family applications will be accepted at any time, Nunez said. Interested persons should call Nunez at 883-3777.

After filling out an application, the family is interviewed and finally matched with a foreign student. The students then would attend the high school or college in the area of the newly found home.

"They will be placed in homes of American families who will open up their hearts and homes for them. They will learn what it is to live in the U.S.A. and what an American family is all about," said Nunez.

A BROCHURE distributed by the exchange said the "young ambassadors" would not only learn about the American way of life, but share their experiences and customs with the host family.

"The best way to know people is still to live with them, to share the routine of daily life and customs, to learn to communicate with them in their own language - literally to share table and roof and thoughts in the give and take, the happiness and sorrow of the family circle," it stated. "So the key to the teenage exchange is the home stay and your family can be a vital part of that program."

COOPERATIVE BLOOD REPLACEMENT PLAN 477-7500

Food prices showing record increases

By United Press International
Mushrooming food price increases Wednesday caused even greater budget crises for householders scurrying through supermarkets in search of hard-to-find bargains.

In New York City the Department of Consumer Affairs released statistics showing food prices jumped 4.5 per cent last week, the largest increase in at least three months.

Comr. Betty Furness said, "We had anticipated price increases in meats and poultry but now these increases are also apparent in grain products such as bread and flour."

A breakdown of the marketbasket in the New York area showed bread and cereals up 10.1 per cent last week, meat and fish up 7.4 per cent and dairy products up 2.4 per cent.

REPORTS FROM other areas confirmed the general upward movement.

In Washington, D.C., the price of uncut chicken rose to 88 cents a pound up from 85 cents when Phase IV went into effect July 18. The same trend was reported from other cities in the retail price of bread, eggs, milk and chicken.

Although food prices occupied the attention of housewives, the prices of other products, generally at the wholesale level, were occupying the minds of manufacturers and government officials.

KAISER STEEL CORP. Wednesday joined other steel producers which have filed notice of price increases. Kaiser said its price hike request was "modest in relation to our cost increases."

On Tuesday the nation's two biggest steel companies, U.S. Steel and Bethlehem, said they had notified the Internal Revenue Service they plan to raise prices $8 to $12 a ton for sheet and strip steel prices. Under Phase IV rules, major companies must give 30 days notice before raising prices.

Other steel companies, Armco Steel, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Jones Laughlin, Wheeling-Pittsburgh and National Steel, also filed for increases.

MAJOR STEEL BUYERS, including automakers, said the steel increases would mean higher prices for consumers. The increases amounted to about 4.8 per cent on strip and sheet steel products.

Two more auto companies asked for increases Tuesday on the 1974 models. General Motors asked for an increase of $102, or 2.7 per cent. Ford Motor Co. requested an increase averaging $106, or 2.4 per cent. Chrysler Corp. and American Motors asked for price increases a day earlier.

A spokesman for the Cost of Living Council said more big companies were expected to file for Phase IV increases this week.

In New York the Journal of Commerce said Wednesday many grain traders and dealers now believe export controls on grain within the next few weeks are inevitable.

THE BAKING INDUSTRY has been clamoring for such controls as a temporary measure for the past two weeks and warning that bread may become scarce if they are not imposed.

The article said that Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz was understandably reluctant to institute more food controls because the price controls used by the Nixon Administration so far have been ineffectual.

"But with some observers predicting that a loaf of bread may soon cost as much as $1," the newspaper said, "It is likely that the government will be forced to consider some form of export restriction on grains."

Night classes for teachers

The Northwest Educational Cooperative will again offer extension classes this fall designed for teachers in the cooperative's member schools in the Northwest suburbs.

Teachers may register for courses on or before the first night of class. Information about registration is being given by Lois King, administrative assistant for the cooperative, 339-2110.

Most classes offered through Northern Illinois University will begin the last week in August. Course offerings include education research, test evaluation, child behavior, school business management and special education.

COURSES OFFERED through the National College of Education will begin in mid-September and include library science, corrective reading techniques and learning resources.

Northeastern Illinois University will also offer courses beginning in mid-September on psychology, teaching mathematics, television, mental health and treatment of reading difficulties.

Wheat futures hit new highs

by United Press International
Wheat futures hit a record high of $5.14 a bushel yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

The September futures for wheat broke the $5 mark for the first time in history, raising the 20-cent limit permitted in one day's trading.

At Minneapolis, grain futures prices fluctuated widely at the opening, with September futures opening at $4.7, down from the 20-cent limit. Shortly after the opening, however, Chicago prices fell to $4.45.

Dustin Mirick, statistician for the Minneapolis Exchange said the plunge in Minneapolis prices was due to "very good volume and heavy selling."

Suburban priorities named

Law enforcement plans approved

Federal funds for law enforcement assistance in the Chicago suburban area should be used to improve police communications, build new court facilities and prevent major crimes and drug crimes, the Chicago-Cook County Criminal Justice Commission said yesterday.

The commission, which reviews all requests for federal funding by criminal justice agencies in the metropolitan area, yesterday approved its 1974 plan listing the three top suburban problems for which federal funds should be spent during the coming year.

The plan also includes a list of approximately 50 specific projects recommended by the commission as suggested ways of coping with the Chicago and suburban crime problems.

AMONG the specific projects included in the plan list are:

- A $100,000 study of the Cook County circuit court facilities in suburban municipal districts which would be financed with $75,000 in federal grant funds.

- A $2 million program to provide additional suburban courtrooms and lockup facilities which would be financed with $1 million in federal grant funds.

- A $2,515,000 program for designing communications systems and purchasing equipment for suburban police communications with $1,800,250 to be financed through federal grant funds.

- A $200,000 pilot program to decentralize the juvenile court in one suburban court district so that custody hearings and sentencing would be held in the area where the juvenile lives. Federal funds would pay for $150,000 of the pilot project.

THE PLAN also includes basic policy and guidelines for the commission to use in reviewing requests for federal grants.

A criminal justice commission spokesman said the plan for fiscal 1974 which began July 1 differs from plans in earlier years. The new plan singles out only the three highest priority problems for which the $18.9 million in federal grants coming to this area during the year should be spent.

In other years the plan often included projects dealing with a broader range of problems and totaling several times the amount of federal funds which would actually be available.

THIS YEAR the state will have approximately $33 million in federal grant funds for distribution through the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission (ILEC), says Daniel J. O'Connell, assistant director of the local criminal justice commission.

That means the fair share of the state funds for the metropolitan area will be $18.9 million, O'Connell estimated. And the 1974 plan includes projects which total only that figure.

The new plan will mean it will be more difficult for suburban municipalities to get federal funds for projects which fall outside the scope of the three major problems, O'Connell said. It will also mean that the most important problems will be dealt with during the year, he said.

O'Connell explained the commission does not have specific applications either from the court system or from police departments for the funds earmarked in the 50 listed projects. But he said that none of the projects would be included if they were not at least being considered by various criminal justice agencies within the metropolitan area.

FOR EXAMPLE, he said, the circuit court has not requested funds for the pilot suburban juvenile court or announced which suburban district will be the location for the project. But the court has considered the pilot project.

Two of the three City of Chicago problems given priority in the 1974 plan are identical to those for the suburbs — the prevention of major crimes and the improving of court procedures and facilities, O'Connell said. The third Chicago problem which will be given funding priority is reduction of the number of offenders who return to criminal activities after they are released from jail. O'Connell noted that although that problem is listed as one for the city, any project to reduce such recidivism would also help suburban offenders because of the county-wide system of courts and jail facilities.

When a criminal justice agency does propose a specific program to the criminal justice commission it will be reviewed to see whether it is in line with the 1974 plan and then sent to the ILEC for funding with the local commission's comments and its endorsement or rejection of the proposal.

In addition to approving the 1974 plan yesterday, the commission approved an application from the Cook County board for a $20,000 project to buy additional radio equipment for use by Cook County Forest Preserve Rangers on patrol.

ALSO APPROVED was a $1.1 million program submitted by Chicago's Alcohol Treatment Center to expand the center's in-patient program to treat women. In the past 18 years of its in-patient operation the center has only treated males.

The commission also approved three-month financing to continue a training program for personnel employed by the Cook County Department of Corrections, Department of Adult Probation, Sheriff's Department and Clerk of the Circuit Court and to develop training for the staff of the Audy Home.

O'Connell said the commission also announced the appointment of Rosemont Police Chief Richard Dreihobl to the commission to replace Niles Police Chief Clarence Emerickson who resigned. Dreihobl was appointed to the commission by Cook County Board Pres. George Dunne.

Cigaret smoking may soon be 'finished' in one nation

HELSINKI (UPI) — Cigaret smoking in public may become a criminal offense in Finland if a special government committee gets its way.

A cigarette smoking committee has recommended to the government that smoking be prohibited or restricted in nearly all public places. Breaking the law would result in a fine or jail.

The committee also recommended that cigarette advertising be prohibited, that tobacco not be sold to persons under 15, and that cigarette machines not be placed in areas where children can readily use them.

THE MINISTER of Social Affairs and Health has taken the report under advisement and has circulated it to several government agencies. If the government accepts it, the proposals would be brought before Parliament.

Professor Eero Tala, chairman of the committee, said general reaction to the report has been favorable. "Newspapers from the far right to the far left have given us favorable headlines," he said. "There is a feeling we should do something to protect the nonsmoker."

The committee recommended that all offices, factories, hospitals, schools and trains would have to provide special rooms for those wanting to smoke. Anyone who smoked in a general area and was asked to stop and refused could be arrested.

"THERE IS a general opinion that people should be allowed to smoke as much as they want, but nonsmokers also have the right to fresh and clean air. Therefore, we think it is justified to have rules restricting where people can smoke," Tala said.

The committee exempted cafes and restaurants from the restrictions because no one is forced to go to such places, Tala said. Even so, each establishment would have to maintain sufficient ventilation to ease smoke congestion. Banks and government offices were included on the list because people have to go there for business, he said.

The committee was formed one year ago at the request of the Ministry of Social Affairs and Health.

"The ministry was concerned about the side effects of smoking among nonsmokers," Tala said. "There has been recent evidence that nonsmokers do suffer from the side effects of smoking. Headaches are the most prevalent ailments."

Outgoing IPCB official lauds state antipollution efforts

by LEA TONKIN

WE'VE ONLY just begun, said outgoing chairman of the Illinois Pollution Control Board Samuel Lawton Jr.

He recently presented an annual report of the agency's activities over the past year, adding an optimistic outlook for the future.

"When the Environmental Protection Act was adopted in 1970," said Lawton, "the program for pollution control in the state was a forward-looking but untested concept. Some pessimism was expressed as to its likely effectiveness and capability in achieving the statutory objectives."

"But the board is fulfilling its mission," said Lawton. He's talking about the number of cases brought before the board during the past few years, and the improvement in the quality of the environment which resulted from its actions.

"The people of Illinois can take justifiable pride in the achievement of the state pollution control agencies. The continuing support of the people and all branches of government are needed to finish the job."

This last statement may be directed at the apparent inability of Governor Dan Walker to successfully appoint a new director of the State Environmental Protection Agency as well as a permanent board chairman. Succeeding Lawton as acting chairman of the IPCB is veteran board member Jacob DuMelle. Lawton now returns to his law practice in Chicago.

DESPITE THE political squabbles that keep the pollution control leadership in doubt, a good track record is reported for the past year by IPCB. The board's most significant activity includes noise control regulations and new regulations for the development and operation of sanitary landfill sites.

Coming action will be based on the hearings conducted by the board on the DuPage regionalization program and on beverage container deposit rules.

A bill signed this week by Governor Walker would end the board's leaf-burning ban in Illinois but does permit the board to conduct hearings or tests to determine if leaf burning is harmful to plant or animal life.

Revision of water quality amendments and a number of other studies were also undertaken by the pollution watchdog agency in the past year.

Enforcement cases and variances were considered in these categories: public water supply, odors, foundries, landfill, mine related pollution, chemical companies, North Shore Sanitary District, sewage treatment plants and utility companies.

Altogether, the board assessed penalties amounting to a total of $378,380.55 in the period from July 1, 1972, to June 30, 1973. This compares with penalties of $122,861.96 the previous year; and $98,050 from mid-1970 to June, 1971.

FOOT-DRAGGING IN compliance with state environmental laws at the U.S. Army Ammunition Plant in Joliet is the target of Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott this week.

In a suit filed Tuesday, Scott charged the complex is the largest single source of air pollution in the state.

Breathing is difficult for persons living in the vicinity of the plant, charged the attorney general and "unbearable odors" are a constant nuisance. Trees and other vegetation in the area have been defoliated as a result of the harmful emissions, he said.

Sulphur oxides, nitrogen oxides and sulphuric acids account for these problems.

The technology is available to do the cleanup job, said Scott, asking for a mandatory enforcement program.

LET'S GET TOGETHER for a discussion of mutual water quality problems, said the planners of the Great Lakes Basin Commission's quarterly meeting.

The session begins today at the St. Clair Inn, St. Clair, Mich. and continues through Friday.

William Salmon, deputy director of the Office of Environmental Affairs, for the Department of State, will be among the speakers. He'll discuss progress toward improved water quality in the Great Lakes resulting from the executive agreement for Great Lakes Quality signed by Canada's premier Trudeau and President Nixon in April of last year.

Salmon will talk about ways of bringing water resource planners from Canada and the U.S. together. Also on the program is Charles Gunnerson, director of the Windsor office International Joint Commission, and chairman Frederick Rouse.

LET'S PUT A stop to the use of natural gas to generate power and cut back on the heavy use of electricity for heating, advised the Administration's Council on Environmental Quality.

In fact, let's take a careful look at all the ways we guzzle our limited power resources. Power consumption in the U.S. has climbed 7 per cent a year for the past 10 years.

We can make it through the energy crisis to a more reasonable period of adequate supplies, without sacrificing environmental goals, the report said. The only catch — higher prices for energy users in years to come.

Teacher leader predicts more strikes next year

One of the leaders in the state's largest teachers association this week predicted an increase in teachers' strikes in Illinois public schools next year.

Curtis Plott, executive secretary of the Illinois Education Association, demanded the Illinois General Assembly pass a public employe bargaining law to relieve the "crisis" situation in negotiations between teachers and school boards of education.

There have been 40 strikes in the past three years, Plott said, and this year 139 teachers associations affiliated with the Illinois Education Association have not settled their contracts. Six schools in the Northwest suburbs are on Plott's list: Palatine Elementary Dist. 15, Prospect Heights Elementary Dist. 23, Mount Prospect Elementary Dist. 57, Maine Township High School Dist. 207, Des Plaines Elementary Dist. 62 and East Maine Elementary Dist. 63.

PLOTT TESTIFIED along with members of other teachers organizations and members of the Illinois Association of School Boards before the Illinois Senate Industry and labor committee in public hearings in Chicago Monday and in Rosemont on Tuesday.

"Once again we are nearing the opening of school with scores of Illinois school districts embroiled in negotiations impasses," said Plott, "and once again the situation could have been lessened with a negotiations bill covering public employes. At the very time teachers in 139 districts are racing the clock to reach agreement with their boards, the Senate Labor Committee is holding hearings around the state to determine whether a negotiations law is needed."

Members of the Illinois Federation of Teachers said they would continue to support a collective bargaining law which the Federation introduced in the General Assembly during the last session.

The law establishes the right of teachers to organize a union, prohibits boards of education from interfering in the organization of these unions, prohibits court injunctions during negotiations, and gives teachers the right to strike as a last resort.

MEMBERS OF the Illinois Association of School Boards testified a collective bargaining law would infringe on the rights of the local boards of education. Such a law could force school districts to approve teacher salary increases beyond financial resources.

A collective bargaining law would not make negotiations between boards and teachers any easier, said representatives of the board association.

Robert Seger, member of the High School Dist. 211 Board of Education, told the Senate committee bargaining laws would not solve labor disputes, but would remove control of the school district from board members and the public.

Daley-Blair team kills RTA action

Those "summit meetings" between Mayor Daley and Republican legislative leaders W. Robert Blair, speaker of the Illinois House of Representatives, and Sen. William Harris, Senate president, have so far produced nothing on a Regional Transit Authority of value to the public.

And they are not likely to.

They appear to be nothing more than an extension of what many legislators describe as an unholy alliance between Democrat Daley and Republican Blair to discredit that upstart governor. And the public be damned.

Billed by the participants as a non-partisan and statesmanlike effort to solve the transportation problems of the six counties of North-eastern Illinois, the sessions quickly degenerated into a political bargaining session between Blair and Daley.

Daley is trying to shore up a shaky political organization with an eye to reelection in 1975 and Blair has a burning desire to be governor. Both want the credit for working out the transit authority, but their goals are widely divergent. Daley's concern apparently does not extend beyond the Chicago Transit Authority, while Blair needs a comprehensive plan to bring glory to his campaign.

The day that Richard Daley and Robert Blair sit down to barter on a non-partisan basis, handsome princes will spring up in frog ponds from Waukegan to Cairo.

Already, reports sifting from behind the closed doors where they huddled, statesmanlike, indicate that Daley has doubled the price tag on the transit plan. Since neither Blair nor Daley has revealed what they talked about, there is little reason to doubt those reports.

Meanwhile, Gov. Walker has announced a series of public hearings throughout the transit area to hear from the people and their elected officials what is needed in mass transit.

Predictably, Blair, Harris and Daley immediately labeled those hearings a sham and accused Walker of grandstanding for the voters.

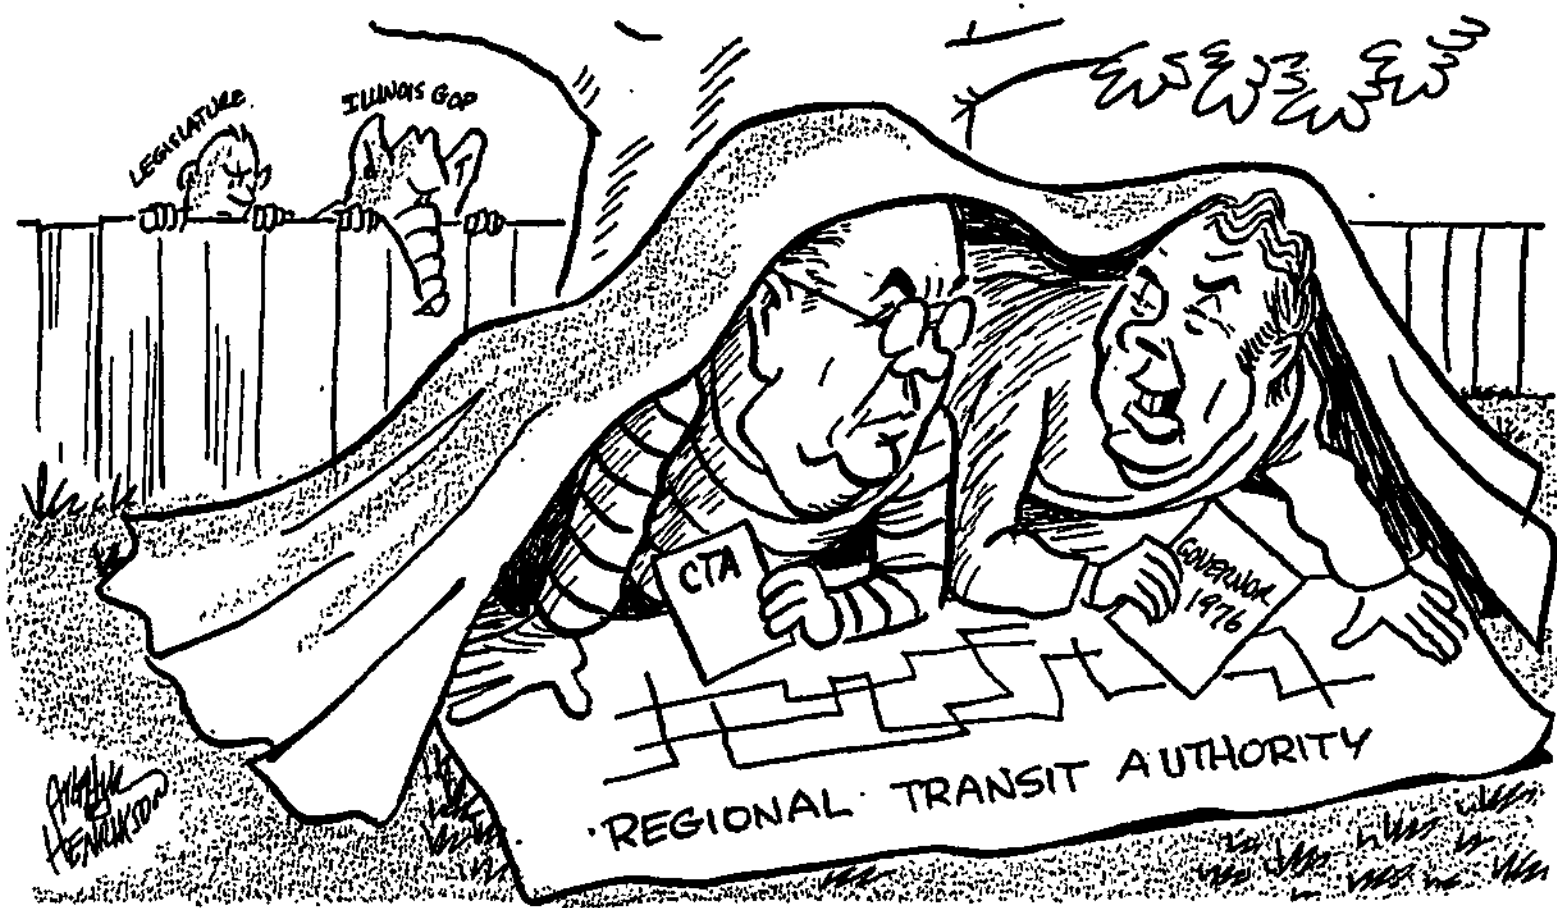

Whatever other motives the governor might have, the public hearings are the proper starting point for developing a mass transit authority.

The proper step after that is for the state legislature to evaluate the results of those hearings and to come up with a comprehensive plan, and not to accept some political mishmash hammered out by Blair and Daley in a closed room.

At the beginning of his term, Walker charged the legislature with "legislative initiative" in developing programs to meet the needs of the state.

The legislature, largely through machinations of Blair and Daley Democrats, failed to exercise that initiative.

It is high time that the legislators rebel against the capricious leadership of Blair and the dictates of Daley and come up with a reasonable program.

Bob Lahey's column

Walker or Percy in White House?

Two Illinois candidates for President? It could happen, in the person of two men who are regarded in some circles as the most underestimated political candidates in the business.

They are, of course, Republican Sen. Charles H. Percy and Democratic Gov. Daniel Walker.

Bedrock conservatives in Illinois scoff at the chances of a Percy candidacy, but his stock is on the rise.

IT GOT A double-barrelled boost recently when a nationwide opinion poll tabbed him as the only Republican in a long list of possible presidential contenders running ahead of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

"Overnight," said Percy associate Thomas G. Houser of Arlington Heights, "the poll did two very important things."

First, it made him a credible candidate (despite gnashing of the teeth of anti-Percy Republicans). Secondly, "it had such impact that it improved name recognition of the senator greatly," Houser said.

Walker so far has not been the beneficiary of any dramatic event which could shift him into the lineup of possible presidential candidates.

But such an event could occur at practically any point in the remaining three years before the Democratic nominating convention.

A likely vehicle would be a major Walker triumph over Mayor Daley, the last of the machine giants, which would attract national attention to Walker. He can lose a dozen issues to Daley, as governors have been doing for years, and it is not going to be noted in Iowa or Maine.

BUT ONE confrontation with Daley in which the governor is triumphant is sure to bring the national news media scurrying to Springfield for a close look at the giant-killer.

It is that sort of thing which could send Walker to the 1976 convention as a possible alternative to Chappaquiddick-haunted Kennedy and all those other re-treads.

Percy, at this point, is a much more viable candidate and many — even those who oppose him — are confident he could win an election, if he can get the nomination of his party.

One school of thought subscribed to by many veteran Republicans — who say it worked in 1972 — is that any Republican can beat any Democrat if organized-labor can be neutralized.

They are telling Percy advisers that a major key to the Republican nomination will be the support that they can get from labor.

The theory goes that President Nixon's Labor Secretary, Peter J. Brennan, favors the nomination of New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller. Brennan is former president of the New York Building Trades Council, and Rockefeller's stock with labor is high in New York.

WHILE ROCKEFELLER will have support for another go-around at the nomination, they feel that he will go into the convention at the peak of his delegate strength.

Therefore, they argue, a pre-convention accommodation between Percy and Rockefeller should be sought, by which each would agree to throw his support to the other if he begins to slip after one or two ballots.

If as they predict, Rockefeller were the first to falter, Brennan and other labor people loyal to Rocky would, at his bidding, lend their support to Percy.

Such labor support, they will argue, is a vital ingredient to a Republican presidential victory, and a very sound reason for nominating Charles Percy.

Washington Window

Public glimpses of lobbyist-lawyers

by ROBERT F. BUCKHORN

WASHINGTON — One of the unexpected spinoffs of the Watergate affair was the education of the public on a soft-spoken group whose influence affects just about every American's daily life — the Washington lawyers.

In the Senate Watergate hearings, the lawyers tended occasionally to upstage their clients, but traditionally the Washington lawyer prefers a low profile.

Usually, his work is done out of range of the TV cameras, in the office of a congressman or a senator or a White House aide.

THE REASON is simple: basically, most Washington lawyers are lobbyists for corporate interests. They are paid for their ability to guide a client through the maze of the government bureaucracy.

Their critics argue that at times their skill verges on the immoral if not the illegal.

Ralph Nader, a Harvard-trained lawyer himself, once described the workings of Washington corporate lawyers who battled him on consumer interests this way:

"They are masters of the expert contact, the private deals, and tradeoffs, the greasing of the corporate wheels, and the softening of the bureaucrats will."

The most frequent criticism of Washington lawyers is the "revolving door" the firms maintain with the government. Many of the most influential Washington lawyers have spent time in high government positions, or as advisers to officials — including Presidents.

Clark Clifford, one of the most prestigious Washington lawyers, was an adviser to Presidents Truman, Kennedy and Johnson, and in the final months of the Johnson administration, he served as secretary of defense.

ABE FORTAS, a one-time partner in the influential firm of Arnold and Porter, was President Johnson's personal adviser. The late Dean Acheson, a former secretary of state, was a member of the largest law firm in Washington, Covington and Burling, which reportedly charges its blue ribbon clients up to $250 an hour for its legal work.

This type of easy access into the ranks of government is convertible into influence once the lawyer returns to private practice, the critics argue.

On a lower level, it is not uncommon for a commissioner of a regulatory agency to finish his term and then appear before the agency in the role of a private lawyer representing a corporate client.

The reverse is equally common — a Washington lawyer specializing in corporate interests being appointed to a regulatory agency, and thus being called on to regulate corporate interests, possibly including some former clients.

IN CONGRESS, the Washington lawyer's role is more visible. As a lobbyist he provides a constant flow of information to the lawmakers on issues his clients either support or oppose.

In cases such as the fight over labeling cigarettes as a health hazard, or in the fierce fight over auto safety, critics argued that Washington lawyers put their clients' interests ahead of the public interest by opposing strict regulation.

"Can a lawyer morally hide behind his role of the advocate when what he advocates for his client is damaging to the public interest?" their critics asked.

The lawyer's reply is old and well founded: Everyone has a right to a lawyer, including unpopular clients. (UPI)

Fence post letters to the editor

What does it take to arouse apathetic citizens?

Now that we are about to move from Wheeling, we are experiencing melancholy thoughts about our friends and the village we lived in for five years. When you have given your time to be politically involved, you feel the work you did leaves a sense of responsibility for the village government and the people you leave behind.

In view of the depressing news of a grand jury investigation into activities of some of our officials, we all are a little saddened that once again Wheeling is getting bad publicity. Perhaps what this town needs is some good thorough house cleaning. It is just unfortunate that federal agencies have to be brought in to do it, when the people themselves had a chance to do it at the ballot box last April.

When we first started campaigning in Wheeling, our eyes were quickly opened to the fact that the people seemed to be living in fear. Though they indicated support, they were afraid to put a political poster in their window or wear a political button. Some would whisper to us that they would vote for WHIP as if someone were listening. (In view of Watergate, maybe someone was!) But the saddest thing we ever heard was a voter say she would really like to vote for WHIP, but she was afraid "Jimmy might find out." No amount of assurance that her vote would be secret helped. And we heard variations of this theme throughout town.

EVEN THOUGH more people worked in last April's election than in the one two years ago, it is still the same old story of a few people working for the good of a lot of people. The fact that some people would not even come out to vote for either side was really discouraging. Most people knew there was corruption in Wheeling, but thought their vote was powerless to change things in such a tightly run town. The really discouraging thing happened when things started to break AFTER the election. The Herald started printing fantastic headlines about our police captain's background, the Stavros Family holdings in land and the bank, tax breaks, all of which they knew about before the election. Even the federal agencies had damning evidence in their files before the election — remember Strong Street and the poor souls struggling there for the financial future of ex-zoning chairman Cargill? Just how powerful is the political influence in Wheeling that these things are all brought before the public conveniently after an election? And what, in heavens name, does it take to wake up the people that live here?

So as not to sound like a sore loser (because it is the remaining residents who lose) and to end on a positive note, we sincerely hope the grand jury investigations will be a good thing for the people of Wheeling. Most of all we hope it will shake them off their apathetic bottoms. There are good hard working people here who have carried the burden alone for too long and they are getting mighty tired.

JUST AS WE must each share the blame for corruption among some of our officials, we must also exert ourselves to help clean up the mess we are in. Even if it means spending one little old Monday night at the usually too brief board meeting to see what is really going on, is that too much? WHIP managed to convince a few people that their vote was secret and Trustee Don Jackson was elected. He needs your support. Otherwise he may stare at a vacant room of spectator chairs and figure nobody cares. You can fight city hall, but not alone.

Because part of our heart stays in Wheeling, we will stay in touch and read of your progress in the newspapers. We leave you in a state of uncertainty, but hope that a thorough housecleaning will at least restore freedom to Wheeling and dispell the existing fear. While we lived there, we are proud to say we cared and we tried. Will you?

Mayor Hayter has 'brains and guts'

This letter is concerning the battle royal going on in Hoffman Estates between the mayor, board and residents about the firing of village employees.

We lived in Hoffman Estates for 11½ years and just recently moved to Schaumburg, but we are still good friends with our ex-neighbors and intend to remain so.

Our concern is with the bleeding hearts, malicious gossips and ministers who say such nasty things to and about Mayor Hayter and the board. Lillian Andrews compares the board to the Last Supper and cries alligator tears about the lady mayor taking away the ex-employees' masculinity. Because Ginger is a lady, townsfolk assume she can be manipulated, but she still has brains, guts and courage and the board to back her up.

Parents support facility for mongoloids

On Aug. 2, a letter appeared in your paper written by parents of mongoloid children, stating that an insurance policy offered by the National Mongoloid Council as being unnecessary expense to parents.

We as responsible parents feel insurance to protect our children is an expense but we question that it is an unnecessary expense. We are sure the State of Illinois would care for all of our children if we were deceased. We feel the children are our responsibility, including the mongoloid (Down syndrome child). We are sure the State government would not repeal house bills 4156-2671-2783. If we choose to insure the future of our daughter who is a mongoloid, we would feel great consolation to know after our death our little girl could live in a facility such as the National Mongoloid Council has as their long-range goal.

Business Today

by LeROY POPE

NEW YORK — Many Americans believe a good way to keep their savings apace with inflationary erosion is to invest in bank savings deposits.

For many years savings deposits were scoffed at by the smart money crowd as fit only for the timorous — people content with 2½ to 3½ per cent return on their money.

Today you can get 10½ per cent if you can put up $100,000 at a time. You can get nearly 9 per cent if you deposit $1,000 for four years.

Actually, it is not as easy as it sounds. Desperate as they are for money, commercial banks are not eager to accept a $100,000 order for a six-month Certificate of Deposit paying 10½ per cent unless the depositor is a customer of long standing. They are too afraid of winding up with "hot" money that might be seized by the authorities.

IT'S A LOT easier to buy $1,000 four-year CD's from a commercial bank, a savings and loan association or a savings bank which pays from 7½ to 8½ per cent currently.

Banking institutions are likely to be somewhat careful about selling you even the little CD's. If they don't know you, they'll ask why you don't go to your own bank or ask for references before taking your money.

Even the rates on regular passbook savings accounts have been permitted to rise to a range of 5 to 6½ per cent. These are the highest rates savings banks ever have paid depositors. Since interest is compounded at frequent intervals, the actual yields are higher.

On the $1,000 CD's as on the big commercial bank $100,000 CD's there is no legal interest ceiling. Some commercial banks are offering the little $1,000 CD's as well as the mutual savings banks found in 18 states and the federal or state chartered savings and loan associations which operate over the country.

IRONICALLY, THERE is no indication that the record yields on savings deposits are causing Americans to save more, at least not yet.

On the contrary, the mutual savings banks in New York, the state that has by far the most savings banks, had a net outflow of $472 million of deposits in July as against a net inflow of $178 million a year earlier.

Although lines of people waiting to make deposits in savings and loan offices have been observed in several parts of the country, the blunt fact is that S&L deposits are way down.

A Federal Home Loan Bank Board spokesman said the outflow was at least $500 million in July for the nation as a whole.

THAT'S NOT nearly so bad as for July in the 1966 recession, when there was a net outflow of $1.6 billion, or July 1969, which saw the S&L deposits drop $1.1 billion.

Savings deposits in commercial banks are going up, but informed people in the business say over-all savings deposits are not. "What's happening," said an official of the New York Savings Bank Association "is that a lot of money is being shuffled around from bank to bank or even from one kind of account to another in the same bank. But those doing the shuffling are getting a high yield on their money."

LCA Corp.

LCA Corp. had record sales, income and earnings per share for the second quarter and six month periods ended June 30. For the second quarter of 1973, the company had net income of $4,393,028 on sales of $68,107,592, compared with income before extraordinary gain of $4,006,083 on sales of $54,262,495 in the 1972 second quarter. Income before taxes amounted to $8,684,162 in 1973, compared with $7,991,627 in 1972. Earnings per share increased to 43 cents in the 1973 quarter from 37 cents before an extraordinary gain in the year earlier period. Per share results are based on 10,318,064 average shares outstanding in the 1973 quarter and 10,768,466 average shares outstanding in the 1972 quarter. In the first six months of 1973 the company had net income of $8,973,882 on sales of $124,102,833 compared with income before extraordinary gain of $7,640,965 on sales of $106,889,224 for the first half of 1972. Earnings per share increased to 84 cents in the 1973 six months period from 74 cents before an extraordinary gain in the year earlier period. The company has 43 manufacturing plants, and includes a Progress Lighting Co. facility in Elk Grove Village.

Monsanto Co.

Monsanto Co. recently reported a record net income for the second quarter of $63.2 million, up from $31.8 million during the same period last year.

The company reported consolidated net sales for the second quarter of $663 million, up from $364.8 million last year in the second quarter, and primary earnings for a common share of stock of $1.90 for the quarter, up from $1.91 last year.

Consolidated net sales for the first six months of 1973 also set a record, $1.36 billion, as compared with $1.18 billion for the first half of 1972.

American Motors

American Motors Corp., the smallest of the major U.S. auto companies, recently gave further evidence of a financial comeback by reporting earnings of $16.9 million in its most recent quarter. The earnings were more than double earnings of $7.8 million in the April-June quarter last year. Sales in the quarter this year were $472 million, compared with $376 million in 1972. American Motors in the first nine months of its current fiscal year said earnings were the best since 1960. AMC begins its fiscal year in October. For the first nine months, AMC reported earnings after taxes but before extraordinary credits, of $40.5 million, compared with $25.4 million in the same nine-month period a year

Patients need protein: AHA president

Hospitals want highest beef priority

A followup spot check of hospitals around the country by the American Hospital Association (AHA) has found that many are still having problems with their beef supplies.

Last week, John Alexander McMahon, president of the AHA, called on the American Meat Institute and the National Association of Meat Purveyors to give hospitals, extended care facilities, and other health care institutions the highest priority for beef during the shortage. Replies from the two organizations have not been received as yet, McMahon said.

"We are hopeful their answers will be in the affirmative, because patients, especially those in the recuperative period, need the protein that beef can give them to help speed their recovery," he added.

The Illinois Hospital Association said that downstate hospitals of Hardin County General, Rosiclare and Doctors Memorial, Carbondale, reported their dealers were out of beef.

LUTHERAN GENERAL Hospital, Park Ridge, 660-beds, which reported problems last week, seems to be no better off this week. "We are presently out of hamburger, and have been forced to buy more expensive cuts of meat and have to grind our own hamburger," said Emile Bouchez, food director.

"We are also having problems getting enough veal and lamb legs. Our suppliers have told us that beef supplies won't be back to normal until about eight months after the freeze is lifted," he added.

Philadelphia General Hospital, 1,050 beds, was informed last week that the company with which it had its beef contract has closed operations.

"We have managed to get some meat from other suppliers," said Mary Elizabeth Blake, food service director, "but the hospital definitely is short of beef this week and the future does not look promising. We are now serving beef substitutes such as fish, chicken, pork, lamb, canned tuna and salmon."

HAVING LOST its prime supplier, and with other suppliers taking care of their old customers first, Miss Blake said her hospital naturally receives second priority.

The 552-bed Touro Infirmary, New Orleans, reports its situation has worsened in the last week. "We are stocking up on certain more expensive food items to be sure of having enough supplies on hand. We may be out of steak soon and top round may have to be taken off the menu. We have also taken beef off our employee menus so that patients get first consideration," said Doris Schneider, head of the dietary department.

New York University Medical Center, a 782-bed institution in New York City, will be able to serve beef to patients only through next Monday, "but on the employee menu, we are now serving poultry," according to Rudolph Mortensen, assistant director in charge of food production.

Methodist Hospital, the 1,058-bed hospital in Indianapolis, is in short supply on many of their foods, including beef. "In general," said Barbara Lapinski, dietetic intern to the purchasing dietitian, "we are forced to buy more expensive cuts of meat because our suppliers run out of such things as cube steaks and bottom rounds. Fortunately, we have approximately four or five suppliers to call on, but each of them sells on a first-come first-served basis, with no favoritism being shown to hospitals."

"Kole cares about you, your home and the community!" This slogan sums up the feelings of Kole Real Estate, Ltd. when it comes to serving the public.

Kole has grown from a single office with a staff of three in Rolling Meadows in 1965 to a nine-office organization and a team of 150 in Arlington Heights, Barrington, Des Plaines, two offices in Mount Prospect, Palatine, Park Ridge, Rolling Meadows and Wheeling.

The firm opened new executive offices this year at 1000 E. Northwest Hwy. in Mount Prospect to house the administrative and service end of the business. Bookkeeping, advertising, public relations, client services, training and investment divisions are located in this building which was completely remodeled to suit the bustling Kole operations.

A unique telephone system has been introduced here to provide faster and more economical communication among the nine Kole offices. Provided by Illinois Bell Telephone, the system links the executive office with all the sales offices so Kole personnel can contact any office or service within the organization by simply dialing a two-digit number.

For example, a sales associate at a branch office can obtain updated information about a real estate listing by calling another branch office, the headquarters in Mount Prospect, or dialing direct to escrow, bookkeeping, advertising or the president Bob Kole for the data desired. Kole is the only real estate firm served by Illinois Bell with this type of telephone equipment.

Among other innovations which Kole Real Estate, Ltd. has introduced in the northwest suburban real estate scene is a monthly catalog published by the firm. Circulation figures alone — 100,000 copies — make this catalog an impressive publication.

Measuring 8½ x 11", the catalog carries photos and listings on hundreds of homes Kole has to offer, plus information on Kole personnel in the company's nine offices. It is distributed through direct mail to selected individuals and companies, enclosed in the local newspapers, placed in stores and banks, and given away door-to-door by the Kole sales associates.

From the executive office, Kole Real Estate, Ltd. offers a training program based on the "Principles of Real Estate." A seven-week course on basic principles and sales techniques of the real estate field, the classroom training provides the latest teaching facilities and utilizes video taping of all sessions via closed circuit television.

Various guest speakers also share their experience with the students. The only charge for the course is $35 per person for the books which everyone receives as an essential part of the training. Cassette television is used in the series so persons who miss a class will be able to make it up by seeing that session on closed circuit T.V. Kole is in the process of having its school accredited by the State of Illinois.

Establishment of a Department of Client Services is another innovation at Kole Real Estate, Ltd.'s executive office. This new department is concerned with establishing rapport with those who buy or sell their homes through Kole. Service is the key — letters, questionnaires and personal calls are used to check and maintain this service with clients.

The Client Service Department also handles relocation services provided by Kole to business and professional people who are transferred in and out of the northwest suburban area, and offers a Guaranteed Trade Program which insures sellers against being caught owning two homes.

Kole Real Estate, Ltd. is a member of three Multiple Listing Services and offers a very comprehensive advertising program, thus giving its customers the very utmost in service.

Kole's long-range program includes offices in Schaumburg and in the North Shore area. Plans for this expansion are already in the making.

KOLE REAL ESTATE, LTD. MANAGEMENT and ADMINISTRATIVE STAFF

We are constantly looking for new ways to give special attention to selling your home and anticipating your desires when buying a home. Every management and administrative person at KOLE realizes that our success depends on understanding and fulfilling your needs in selling or buying a home. We are in a service-oriented business... there is no doubt about it. The basic responsibility of a Realtor is to get the best price for the seller and be honest in his dealings with the buyer. Our commitment to these two principles has accounted for our greatest asset...SATISFIED CUSTOMERS! Give KOLE REAL ESTATE a call — you'll be glad you did.

Brick needs care, too; here are steps to take

People who specify brick when they are house hunting or planning to build a home generally are interested in the fact that brick requires less maintenance than wood.

But no home, even brick, is maintenance free. While you will not have to paint your house as often this doesn't mean that you can ignore the place.

Trim will need painting just as it does on any house and it will have to be done with great care to avoid splashing paint on the brick. Use plenty of drop cloths and work carefully. Use regular trim colors and if the trim is white, use a white designed for trim use, not a regular white house paint.

Ordinary house paint chalks. Use a non-chalking white to avoid stains on the brick. (So-called self-cleaning paints are paints that chalk.)

ONE PROBLEM you should be aware of is crumbling mortar. Brick walls and brick foundations of wood houses should be checked for mortar joints that are starting to crumble. Neglect will cause damp spots on indoor walls.

Use a screwdriver to probe mortar joints for loose material. Remove loose mortar with a hammer and chisel, leaving sound areas alone. Clean out fragments with a wire brush.

Repairing mortar joints, unlike painting, can be done a little at a time. Use a prepared mortar mix and mix only what you will use in a short time. The mix comes in dry form and water is added.

BEFORE YOU do any mixing, hose down the surface so that it is completely wet. If you apply fresh mortar to a dry surface it will dry too quickly and crumble. If this happens clean out the joint and start again. Remember to wet it down this time.

Apply fresh mortar with a pointing trowel. Use the end of the trowel to indent the mortar slightly while it is still fresh. This not only looks better, it helps shed water.

Keep water and rags handy to wipe off mortar that gets smeared on the brick.

Keep new mortar joints wet for several days. Adjust the hose nozzle for a fine spray.

BRICK STEPS are another place where trouble can start. If the mortar joint has been allowed to deteriorate too much there can be damage because of the weight on the steps. This will result in loose bricks, even cracking.

Slight wear requires only the treatment described above. But if you find bricks that are wobbling or breaking, then other methods are in order.

Break away the mortar so that you can remove the brick. Clean off the rest of the mortar, both from the steps and from the brick you have removed. Set the brick in a pail of water to soak. Except for the side that will show, cover the brick all around with mortar and set in place. Finish filling the joints with mortar.

After the brick has had a chance to stand for a time, smooth the mortar joint. Keep wet for several days. Do not allow the repaired area of the steps to be used for several days or until you are sure the new brick is soundly set.

We think your home deserves special selling effort. Do You?

There is a difference. All real estate firms are not created equal! You want special selling effort that gets your home sold fast and for top price.

This calls for more and better merchandising. Such as:

Professional color photography of the outside and inside of your home that presells buyers on the property. Other brokers try and sell homes from 2" x 3" black and white printer's reproductions. We use six full color Kodak silk prints mounted in an album (you get the album after we sell your home).

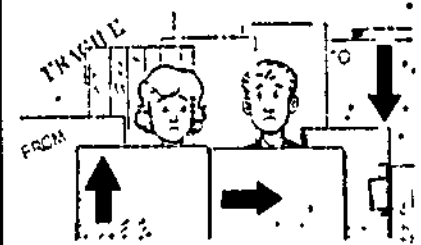

A multi-page professionally printed brochure devoted only to your home. Again, sharp, crisp exterior and interior photos that highlight the best features (you get to check the copy before it's printed). These impressive brochures are mailed to over 300 major corporations and to over 650 RELO brokers across the country.

Our Showcase of Homes in each of our five offices will feature an 8 x 10 full color Kodak silk print of your home until sold.

And these are just a few of the many extra things we do to sell your home. If you think your home deserves special selling effort, stop by our nearest office. Or call and one of our Sales Associates will give you full details and answer all of your questions.

Best of all — STARCK EXTRA SELLING EFFORT costs you no more!

coping with a move?

RunawayBay features a splash of artistry

With a minimum of effort and cost, you can add individual flourish to your apartment or home, and, at the same time, turn into an amateur Picasso or Dali.

According to the people at RunawayBay, whose artistry in presenting smashing model apartments has had a lot to do with the fast rental pace of the newest apartment townhouse community in Palatine, any apartment can be transformed from a drab expanse of white space into an artistic setting without tremendous expense through artfully combining fabrics and foliage.

Robert N. Sklare, president of the Dell Corp., developers of RunawayBay, cited as one of the most exciting highlights of interior design in the company's two-bedroom model apartment, the use of a brilliant floral pattern on the sofa complemented by artistically placed plants.

THE FREE-FLOWING pattern in reds, browns, blacks, and white captures your attention immediately, and draws you easily around the living room into the dining room where a delicate bouquet of dried flowers graces the cool lines of a contemporary glass, steel and leather seating arrangement.

"It's relatively simple to duplicate in less than costly fashion," Sklare pointed out. "Anyone with a little imagination and a small amount of effort, can achieve a similar effect, or one that reflects his own individuality."

The two-bedroom apartment with its super color treatment is only one of a number of models being offered at RunawayBay. The community of 344 dwellings is a unique blend of three-story elevator apartment buildings, smaller two-story six-unit apartment buildings and two story, three-bedroom rental townhouses.

SET IN 20 acres of landscaped terrain, RunawayBay includes a bay, small lakes and bridges adjoining winding walkways. A swimming pool, lighted tennis courts, bicycle paths and playgrounds offer outdoor recreation. A huge indoor recreation center includes a teen room, a fire-side room for adults complete with billiard table, a card room, party kitchen and saunas.

RunawayBay apartments feature balconies and patios, large dining rooms and living rooms, many with wood-burning fireplaces, king-size bedrooms with walk-in closets and compartmented dressing room/bath. Each apartment building has its own separate bicycle and buggy parking area, storage lockers, laundry facilities and an individual laundry and lounge is located on each of the larger three-story buildings. Each townhouse has its own built-in laundry appliances. A mix of housing styles makes RunawayBay for a community with appeal for a large variety of lifestyles.

ARCHITECT'S RENDERING depicts Marriott resort-convention hotel complex under construction at Routes 22 and 45 in Lincolnshire, 25 miles northwest of downtown Chicago, being financed by mortgage loan from Connecticut General Life Insurance Co. Facilities include 392 rooms, 904-seat theater, right foreground, two restaurants, three cocktail lounges, indoor and outdoor swimming pools, enclosed tennis courts, ice skating rink and man-made lake, background.

1974 completion date for new hotel

Connecticut General Life Insurance Company has agreed to provide a $13 million mortgage loan to finance the Marriott Lincolnshire Hotel under construction at Routes 22 and 45 in Lincolnshire, scheduled for completion late in 1974.

The three-story, 392-room resort-convention hotel complex will include a 904-seat theater, two restaurants, three cocktail lounges, indoor and outdoor swimming pools, an 18-hole golf course, an enclosed tennis facility, an ice skating rink and a man-made lake on the 166-acre tract 25 miles northwest of downtown Chicago. Parking for 900 cars will be provided.

Architectural and interior designs are by Marriott Hotels, Inc.

Connecticut General, the country's eighth largest life insurer, has funded or committed mortgage loans on four other Marriott Hotels in Miami, Denver, Atlanta, and Saddlebrook, N. J.

This is the second Marriott Hotel to be built in the Chicago area. Marriott, which entered the hotel business in 1957, operates 18 hotels in 14 major cities throughout the United States and resort hotels in Acapulco, Mexico, and on the island of Barbados, West Indies, and has announced plans for hotels in several other major cities in the U.S. and abroad.

Mrs. Wheeler named director

Donna Marie Wheeler, Evanston, has been appointed sales director of The Landings, a fly-in community being developed near Elgin. Mrs. Wheeler has been a saleswoman for Mitchell Brothers, a North Shore real estate firm.

Work on the 3,000, resident-owned, paved and lighted runway is being completed, as is grading and surfacing of internal roadways serving homesites in the 160-acre development.

Barbara Kovacs, chairman of BarKo Development Corporation, developer of the fly-in community, said paving the runway should be completed soon. Base rock was compacted last fall and certification as a private airport was issued by the State of Illinois at that time.

In addition to the runway, The Landings will include hangars, tie-down areas, a community water system and clubhouse with swimming, tennis and other recreational facilities. Homesites of half an acre or more are priced from $14,500.

The Landings is located about eight miles northwest of Elgin, near the interchange of the Northwest Tollway and Illinois Route 47.

Yes, we can get Mortgage Money for our Buyers!

Condominium explosion hits all ages

One day, home builders may have time to just sit back, analyze and then explain the sudden surge of demand for condominiums that erupted on the housing scene back in 1970.

"Right now, however, they really have their hands full merely trying to keep up with the burgeoning condo demand," declares Robert W. Gaber, president of Conco Mortgage Company, a San Francisco-based national mortgage banking and brokerage organization.

"Unlike some housing trends of the past," Gaber points out, "condominiums did not emerge quietly — slowly gaining popularity. Instead, an explosion of demand reached, almost overnight, boom proportions."

A recent national survey, he notes, shows that condominium buyers have very definite preferences.

A total of 800 potential buyers who were shopping for condominium units were queried. The survey sample married couples and singles ranging in age from 20 to 67 — and from every region of the country.

According to the study, some 60 per cent of those potential buyers between 30 and 39 years of age indicated a marked preference for condominium units built as townhouses and cluster homes.

Low-rise garden type units were the choice of 21 per cent of those in that age bracket and high-rise units were sought by 11 per cent. Of the potential buyers between 30 and 40, some 56 per cent were in favor of townhouse and cluster units, 27 per cent were looking for low-rise units and 17 per cent preferred high-rise developments.

High-rise units were favored by 40 per cent of shoppers in the 40-to-50 age bracket; 39 per cent sought townhouses and clusters; 21 per cent stipulated low-rise condominium units.

The low-rise unit, according to the survey, was favored by 44 per cent of those prospective buyers in the 50-to-60 age group. Within this group 29 per cent indicated a preference for townhouses and 27 per cent favored sauna baths; and

Of the over-60 buyers, 37 per cent were looking for low-rise garden type condominium units — 35 per cent wanted townhouses and 28 per cent preferred high-rise projects.

As for extras or amenities that are considered a must, swimming pools led the list. Some 94 per cent of the 800 potential condominium buyers said the development they choose must have a pool.

Tennis courts were considered important by 38 per cent of those questioned; 27 per cent favored sauna baths; and more than 25 per cent wanted golf putting greens.

Gaber says, "Price and geographical location obviously are important considerations for condo buyers in all age groups."

"The condo is here to stay — and for a long, long time."

Truly fine living in a home designed and built for you.

DIARY OF A HOMEFINDERS' CLIENT

JUNE 23 - Having heard that Phillip and Yvonne Hollenbeck were being transferred, Homefinder, Mary Peterson, of the Buffalo Grove Office, invited the Hollenbecks to go house hunting in Louisville, Kentucky, via the ERA machine.

JUNE 24 - The Hollenbecks were contacted by the ERA broker in Louisville, Kentucky, The Isaacs Company.

JUNE 26 - Mary listed the Hollenbecks' home at 881 Dorncliffe, Buffalo Grove.

JULY 16 - The Hollenbecks' home in Buffalo Grove was sold in cooperation with another Real Estate broker.

JULY 17 - The Hollenbecks purchased a home in Louisville, Kentucky through the ERA Broker, The Isaacs Company.

In a little more than 3 weeks, the Hollenbecks' home in Buffalo Grove, Illinois, was sold, and they had purchased a new home in Louisville, Kentucky. Their transfer had been smoothly negotiated via Homefinders' fantastic ERA machine.

Starck reports sales increase

Robert W. Starck, president of Robert W. Starck and Co. Realtors, reports sales of residential property through his five offices have increased 30 per cent for the first six months of this year over the comparable period of 1972.

Starck says that the overall market climate has improved due to a general increase in economic activity that is encouraging consumers to invest in real estate rather than rent. Another factor is the specter of rising interest rates, which motivates families to buy now in spite of higher prices. Costs of homes have gone up about ten per cent in the last six months, according to Starck.

He attributes his present sales success to anticipating the upturn and taking steps to move with it. Starck has expanded the number of his sales offices from three to five over the past 18 months — the Palatine office opened early this year — and built his sales force to a current total of 50 associates.

The firm now has offices in Mount Prospect, Schaumburg, Arlington Heights, Hoffman Estates and Palatine.

Added emphasis on education and training programs, too, has resulted in a large number of sales personnel achieving broker status. Starck said this permits his various offices to provide services of more professional quality.

Many sales are the result of referrals from RELO (formerly Intercity Relocation Service), for which Starck is the exclusive representative in the northwest suburbs. The company has already sold more than $2 million in residential property to families transferred into the area and referred to the Starck office by the international home-finding organization.

Don Gardner

Bierk Cadillac hires salesman

Don Gardner of Schaumburg has joined the sales staff at Bierk Cadillac, Ltd., in Schaumburg just south of Wood Shopping Center. The appointment was announced by Robert A. Bierk, president of the firm.

Gardner has spent 15 years in sales and management in the automobile business and came to Bierk from another Schaumburg dealership.

The Gardners, who have been Schaumburg residents for the last three years, are the parents of six children.

FROM THE #1 KOLE REAL ESTATE LTD. SALES OFFICE

TO ROLLING MEADOWS - CONGRATULATIONS!!!!

We at Des Plaines were glad to do our part to raise the already very low morale of the Rolling Meadows office. We suggest that you take some pictures of our Trophy while in your custody because when we come for it next month it will probably be the last you'll see of it.

It was with heavy heart that we turned away numerous listings and sales, but we are a very company minded group and happy to swallow our pride for the company's good.

When our beloved Maxine approached us with this strange request, we were hesitant, but as with all truly great leaders, we followed orders knowing her majestic wisdom would not fail us as it hasn't since last September — ten long, long months without competition.

When Maxine advised us of Mr. Folkes' advancing age and state of health, we realized the importance of doing our part. Noticing Mr. Folkes new glowing radiance, our hearts are warm. However, I suggest to Mr. Folkes that he not let the bubbles go to his head in his present condition.

Wisconsin Land Auction

Liquidation of Surplus Recreational and Investment Property

No Minimum Bids
All Parcels Sold
Regardless of Price

CIRCUMSTANCES

An auction of surplus recreation land ordered to be sold to the highest bidder, with reserve. Comprehensive information available on each parcel of property before the auction.

AREAS

These properties are located throughout approximately one third of Wisconsin, basically the central west and north west portions of the state.

GUARANTEE

A money-back 6 month represented inspection guarantee given to all purchasers who have not had the opportunity to physically inspect the property before the auction.

QUANTITY

There will be up to 20 parcels being put up for bids. These will range in size from 5 to 10 acres each. Some parcels are adjoining so that one person could put together a much larger tract of land.

TITLE

All purchasers will be given a Certified Abstract of Title copy from the county abstract company in which the property is located. Conveyance will be by Warranty Deed.

USES

Any of these properties can be used for camping, parking a trailer or building a cabin with the proper permits.

TERMS

A minimum of $200.00 per parcel by Cash, or Check is required at the time of sale. The balance, in the same manner, is due within 5 days. We have arranged for a local bank to finance this property with a 25% down payment and the balance in monthly installments.

PAST SUCCESSFUL BIDS

The property will be sold to the highest bidder. There are no minimum bids. The high bids of the 5 acre parcels sold in past auctions averaged less than $1600. This was for the entire 5 acres of wooded land with road frontage and electricity.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 19, 1973

Doors Open 7:00 p.m.

Auction Starts 7:30

MARRIOTT MOTOR HOTEL
8535 W. Higgins, Chicago

Public now realizing 'condominium' meaning

People are beginning to know what a condominium is. They can pronounce it; they can spell it.

That is the finding of Mel Collins, a condominium proponent since 1965, who is now developing 60-unit The Churchill in downtown Glen Ellyn.

The Churchill is Collins' third Glen El-lyn venture. The first was Park Place, completed in 1968.

Riviera, with 31 luxury condos, on Main Street south of Roosevelt Road, is now winding up. Only eight two- and three-bedroom units remain to be sold.

The Churchill is commencing to take shape at 515 North Main St. Brick has risen above the second story of the eventual five-story structure.

Differing from the 1960's and even 1971, Collins finds current potential customers to have more accurate information and less misinformation about condominiums than their predecessors. He points out:

"MANY HAVE friends who have purchased condominium apartments. This has permitted first-hand observation and has done much to dispel the mysteries and misconceptions of condominium ownership.

"It has permitted numerous 'case histories' of families now enjoying a relatively chore-free mode of life, while paying only a nominal monthly fee for having various services performed... among them, snow-shoveling, grass-cutting, exterior upkeep and maintenance as well as management."

Collins notes that more renters are becoming customers than before. A recent tally showed 40 per cent in this category, compared with a former 20 per cent ratio, which is more in line with the accepted national average.

"Also," he says, "there is a noticeable increase of potential purchasers living a distance from our immediate area. Earlier, the vast majority came from a five-mile radius, and, most of them from Glen Ellyn."

It is, he declares, a type of home ownership that is here to stay.

Although not aimed at the family with young children, condos appeal to all age classifications from the starting-out couple — to the one with mature or nearly mature children — to those in the retired category.

Baird & Warner reports record sales volume

Baird & Warner, Inc., one of the Chicago area's leading real estate organizations, reported that its sales divisions scored a 30 per cent gain in dollar volume and a 10 per cent rise in unit sales during the first half of 1973 compared to the same period last year.

Both achievements set new first-half performance records for the company which finished 1972 with all-time highs in both dollar and unit sales. Founded in 1935, the company currently has 30 sales offices serving the Chicago area.

For the first half, unit volume rose from 1,988 sales participations last year to 2,190 units for the current reporting period, a gain of 9.44 per cent. Dollar volume in the January-June period surged to $130,337,059, an increase of 30 per cent over last year's $100,454,168 for the same period.

Brisk sales activity was sustained in the month of June, despite reports of a downturn in mortgage money and credit terms resulting from a decline in savings flow.

FOR THE MONTH, dollar volume skyrocketed to $21,985,742 from $14,115,727, a gain of 55.7 per cent for the month, while unit production was up 17.7 per cent to 365 units from 310 last June.

Robert G. Walters, vice president and general sales manager, residential division, reported the sale of 339 residential properties and a dollar volume of $10,377,181 for the month.

Maceo Cole, vice president and sales manager of the commercial, investment and industrial division reported the sale of 26 properties in June with a value of $5,608,561 and for the year to date 217 sales and $32,473,658 volume.

CUSTOMER SATISFACTION is tops on the list of priorities at Arlington Heights' only Pontiac dealership, says the new owner, William Sullivan. He recently announced the purchase of the Morton Pontiac Co. at 666 E. Northwest Hwy. The new name of the agency is Sullivan Pontiac. Bill Sullivan has been associated with Pontiac sales since 1935. He formerly owned and operated a Pontiac dealership in Chicago.

Sullivan said changes at the dealership include a new customer satisfaction program; an almost entirely new staff, service and office management staff; and remodeling projects.

Transportation will be provided by the dealer to the Chicago and North Western station during the early morning hours. A loaner arrangement will be offered to customers while their cars are being serviced.

Nearly all the experienced auto mechanics from the Sullivan dealership in Chicago will work in the local dealership, including service manager Joe Meyers. The body shop crew also transferred to the local facility, as well as parts manager Tom Boro, and office manager Dorothy Wash, and Sullivan's son Jeff, as sales manager. New and used cars will be featured at the dealership.

Sullivan comes to Arlington Heights following 27 years of experience in the auto business. He is a member of the Pontiac National Dealer Council, treasurer of the Chicago Automobile Trade Association and served last year as vice president of the Chicago Metropolitan Pontiac Dealers' Association.

GROUND BREAKING ceremony for the new Sylvania Distribution Center will be held today in Elk Grove Village. The site is located at the intersection of Devon and Arthur Avenues. Company officials said the event will begin at 11 a.m.

NORTH AMERICAN Car Corp., Chicago based leasing subsidiary of the Flying Tiger Corp., said it has leased 85 new rail-road covered hopper cars to Marbon Division of Borg-Warner Corp. The new cars were constructed at North American's Texarkana (Ark.) assembly plant, and will be used to transport Marbon's Cycloc brand ABS thermoplastic from the Division's Washington, W. Va., plant to markets in the East and Midwest. Cycloc is used for football helmets, canoes, telephones and a myriad of other industrial and consumer products. North American Car Corp. is a leasing and financing company providing rail equipment, computers, jet aircraft and other capital items.

THE CHICAGO ASSOCIATION of Commerce and Industry will present a luncheon program on Getting the highest and best use out of any parcel of land, on Thursday, Aug. 30. The program will be held at 12 noon in the CACI Conference Room at 72 E. Adams St., Chicago. Increasing limitations and restrictions in land use makes this a timely subject of interest to those planning developments. The speakers include: Robert Babbitt, president, Babbitt & Associates — among the first to conduct soil samplings and make topography charts for obtaining zoning changes; Joseph Ash, senior partner of law firm Ash, Anos, Harris, and Freedman, specializing in community land development and zoning matters; Robert Teska, vice president, Barton-Aschman Associates, Inc., urban planning consultant, will serve as moderator. If you'd like to attend contact Al Thomas, CACI, 788-0111 for reservations.

Braasch is a member with the American Institute of Banking from which he holds graduate certificate.

Arlington Heights received a Weber "Sequoia" Cooker. Second prize winner John Sheehan of Downers Grove received a Weber "Texan" Barbecue Cooker. "This sixtieth anniversary celebration was held in honor of our years of service and as a means of thanking the northwest communities for the excellent reception they have given us since our opening in Schaumburg Sept. 29, 1972," commented Arthur G. Erdmann Jr., Association president and chairman of the board. Since the opening of the Schaumburg office, the Association's assets increased 33 per cent, from $15 million to $20 million. Of this $5 million growth, the majority was accrued at the Schaumburg office. Erdmann announced new interest rates for savers, including a new 4 year savings certificate which earns 7 per cent a year with deposits of $1,000 or more and negotiable rates for deposits of $5,000 or more.

CHARTERS ISSUED to the following corporations were recently announced by the Illinois secretary of state's office: Horizons Institute (not for profit), 2822 N. Brighton Place, Arlington Heights, scientific and educational; the Toadstool, Inc., Buffalo Grove Mall, Buffalo Grove, for the purchase and sale of giftware; American Book Collector, Inc., 1434 S. Wood chip mulch saves wood, gives fresh look

How much wood would a wood chipper chip if a wood chipper would chip wood...? "A great deal," says Dave Carlson of Franz Lipp-Marvin Wehler Partnership, landscape architects and land planners whose current projects include the new Lake Barrington community in the exclusive northwest suburb.

Carlson explained how an Asplund wood chipper will be used at this project to "save" trees. "Rather than removing small trees and branches during construction, the wood chipper shreds the material into a fibrous mulch which then may be used as a natural ground cover around the project.

"In terms of today's recycling processes, this is an excellent means of reusing wood which normally would be disposed of," said Carlson. The chipper also is used as maintenance equipment on property already developed, adding new mulch cover to grounds on a continual basis.

Lake Barrington Associates, the developers of the 510-acre property, located along State Highway 59 between Kelsay Road and Miller Road in Lake Barrington, recently purchased the Asplund machine and plan to use it continually during the 10-year development program.

THE MULCH will be used for paths and walkways in the 36-acre forest preserve on the property and around the mile-long lake. "These natural paths blend into the surroundings aesthetically providing a natural beauty not attained by concrete or asphalt-paved walkways," said Carlson.

"There are other advantages to the mulch besides the natural appearance," Carlson continued. "The natural fibers keep soil cool surrounding plantings, and keep down the number of harmful plants or weeds which might develop.

"As landscape architects and planners, we try to utilize this process whenever possible but it is not always feasible. Smaller developments do not have the expanse of open wooded areas and often have only small parks for residents but the Lake Barrington community has an advantage with over 800 open space including the 36-acre natural forest preserve."

The mulch pathways are located in areas of limited pedestrian traffic, away from the residential areas which have paved sidewalks from streets to entrances. The homes will be clustered among the wooded areas and future golf course, all surrounding the 100-acre mile-long lake.

In fact, the developers say, the homesites have been selected according to a topographical survey, placing the buildings among the trees, not replacing trees. "The trees have priority and will remain in every possible place or be transplanted if necessary," said Carlson.

THE DEVELOPMENT will include 1350 country homes and manor houses with a density of 2.7 homes per acre which is among the lowest density in the Barrington area and among the lowest for a planned unit development anywhere in the country.

The Franz Lipp-Marvin Wehler Partnership has won a number of awards from the A.I.A. and the American Association of Nurserymen.

This is Turnberry

The good life

Turnberry is for people, young and old, who have a real zest for living.

There are 1100 acres of woods, hills and valleys to be hiked, biked, explored and enjoyed. Three beautiful lakes of nearly eighty acres to be fished and sailed. And the private Turnberry County Club includes a championship golf course, an imposing French Normandy Clubhouse high on a hilltop with breathtaking views of lakes, fairways and surrounding countryside. An Olympic-size pool set dramatically into the hillside, and tournament-quality tennis courts adjoin. That's the good life at Turnberry. Every day is a vacation from busy city life—the first year-round community of its kind in the Chicago suburbs.

Turnberry, in the village of Lakewood, is a 10-minute drive from the Crystal Lake North Western Station. The Loop is within easy reach by air-conditioned trains. O'Hare Airport and all of Chicagoland are readily accessible by expressways.

Patterned after Arthur T. McIntosh & Company's Inverness— unquestionably one of the most distinctive and beautiful villages in the Midwest, Turnberry has similar protective covenants assuring that the basic way of living—the good life at Turnberry—will never change.

There are no ordinary homesites at Turnberry. Here, the crest of a hill, a lush green fairway, a beautiful lake or century-old trees adjoin your living room.

Homesites average 3/4 of an acre, and more important, have a minimum of 150 feet at the building line. Prices range from $18,000 to $35,000. All sites are fully improved with winding paved roads, water, sewer and underground utilities. Drive out this weekend, or send for a detailed brochure.

Active in local affairs, Gribble is vice president of Lake Hinsdale Lakehouse Assn., a member of the LaGrange Real Estate Board and a member of NIREB (National Institute Real Estate Brokers) CID Committee.

Fields, formerly vice president and sales manager of the commercial investment division, has been associated with Realtor Rich Port for the last 25 years. He was one of the original staff ager of their commercial investment division.

He replaces Homer Fields, who has been appointed a senior vice president.

Gribble has several years experience in all phases of commercial, investment and industrial real estate. In his new position, he will be responsible for the administrative and sales functions of the commercial investment division.

A native of Denver, Colo., Gribble attended Northwest Community College, Powell, Wyo., and Austin College, Sherman, Tex. In addition, he has taken various CID courses, real estate law and is a graduate of the Realtors Institute of Illinois, a three stage study course, designed to upgrade the professional status of those in the real estate industry. The program is sponsored by the Illinois Assn. of Realtors. He currently is a candidate for his CCIM (Certified Commercial Investment Member) designation. members when Rich Port, Realtor, was formed in 1952. In his new position, he will be handling special projects for the commercial investment division.

The commercial investment division is located at 547 S. LaGrange Rd., LaGrange, and specializes in commercial, industrial, investment real estate, farms, industrial buildings, land, shopping centers, warehouses, manufacturing and other types of income property.

Institute presents sales plan course

"Guaranteed Sales Plan" will be presented by the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers (NIREB) in Chicago, Aug. 31. Cosponsored by the Chicago

Profexray division head named at Litton

James T. Reap has been named director of international operations for the Profexray Division of Litton Industries. The announcement was made by Dr. George B. Rathmann, president of Profexray.

Before coming to Profexray, Reap was vice president of the Picker Corp. During his 27 years service there, he was involved with international sales administration for the past 24 years. In his new position, Reap, who is a graduate of Fordham University, will be based at Profexray's marketing headquarters in Elk Grove Village.

Real Estate Board, the course will be held at the Drake Hotel.

This educational program covers various types of home trade-in, programs with emphasis on negotiating trades, investment potentials, and administration and controls. The one-day program is open to all Realtors and sales associates. It is one of many educational events offered by the NIREB. Herald sports books reviews

Interesting reading found in Bouton, Belinsky books

by MIKE KLEIN

We are a nation of people punch drunk from sports coverage.

That other Melting Pot — the mass media of radio, television, newspapers and magazines — provides a never-ending barrage that's almost too much to bear.

Sadly, too much is "surface" reporting — who homered in which inning and the new score. Flesh and blood people are engulfed in statistics.

Two new baseball books help strip away the gap left by "surface" reporting. They are:

"I Managed Good, But Boy Did They Play Bad" by Jim Bouton and researcher Nel Offen for $7.95 from Playboy Press in Chicago, and:

"Pitching and Winding" by Maury Allen for $6.95 from Dial Press in New York.

James Allen Bouton, baseball black sheep, is a man making news. Bouton recently attended a New York Yankee tryout. Undetected as a former 21-game winner and World Series hero, he was pronounced unfit for a baseball career. Bouton had a good laugh and it made the nation's newspapers.

Robert "Bo" Belinsky, baseball black sheep, is a man so far from the news he seems exiled to anonymity. It is a safe place for someone who won only 28 major league games.

Baseball's higher echelon hates Bouton and his first book, "Ball Four." We know this is true because Bouton says so. Bouton's typewriter could undermine The Great American Game.

When America thought its baseball heroes were straight arrow milk drinkers, Belinsky entertained the ladies, drank the bubbly and oozed of overt sexuality. That is why baseball could do without Bo Belinsky.

Bouton's third book and Allen's work about no-hit pitcher Belinsky are very different. The Bouton book compiles articles about baseball's most famous — and infamous — field generals.

"BO" by Allen, veteran New York Post sportswriter, is a touching and very human story about Belinsky who rode a May 5, 1962, no-hitter and his candyapple Cadillac to fame. When Belinsky crashes, Allen's deft writing leaves a lump in your throat.

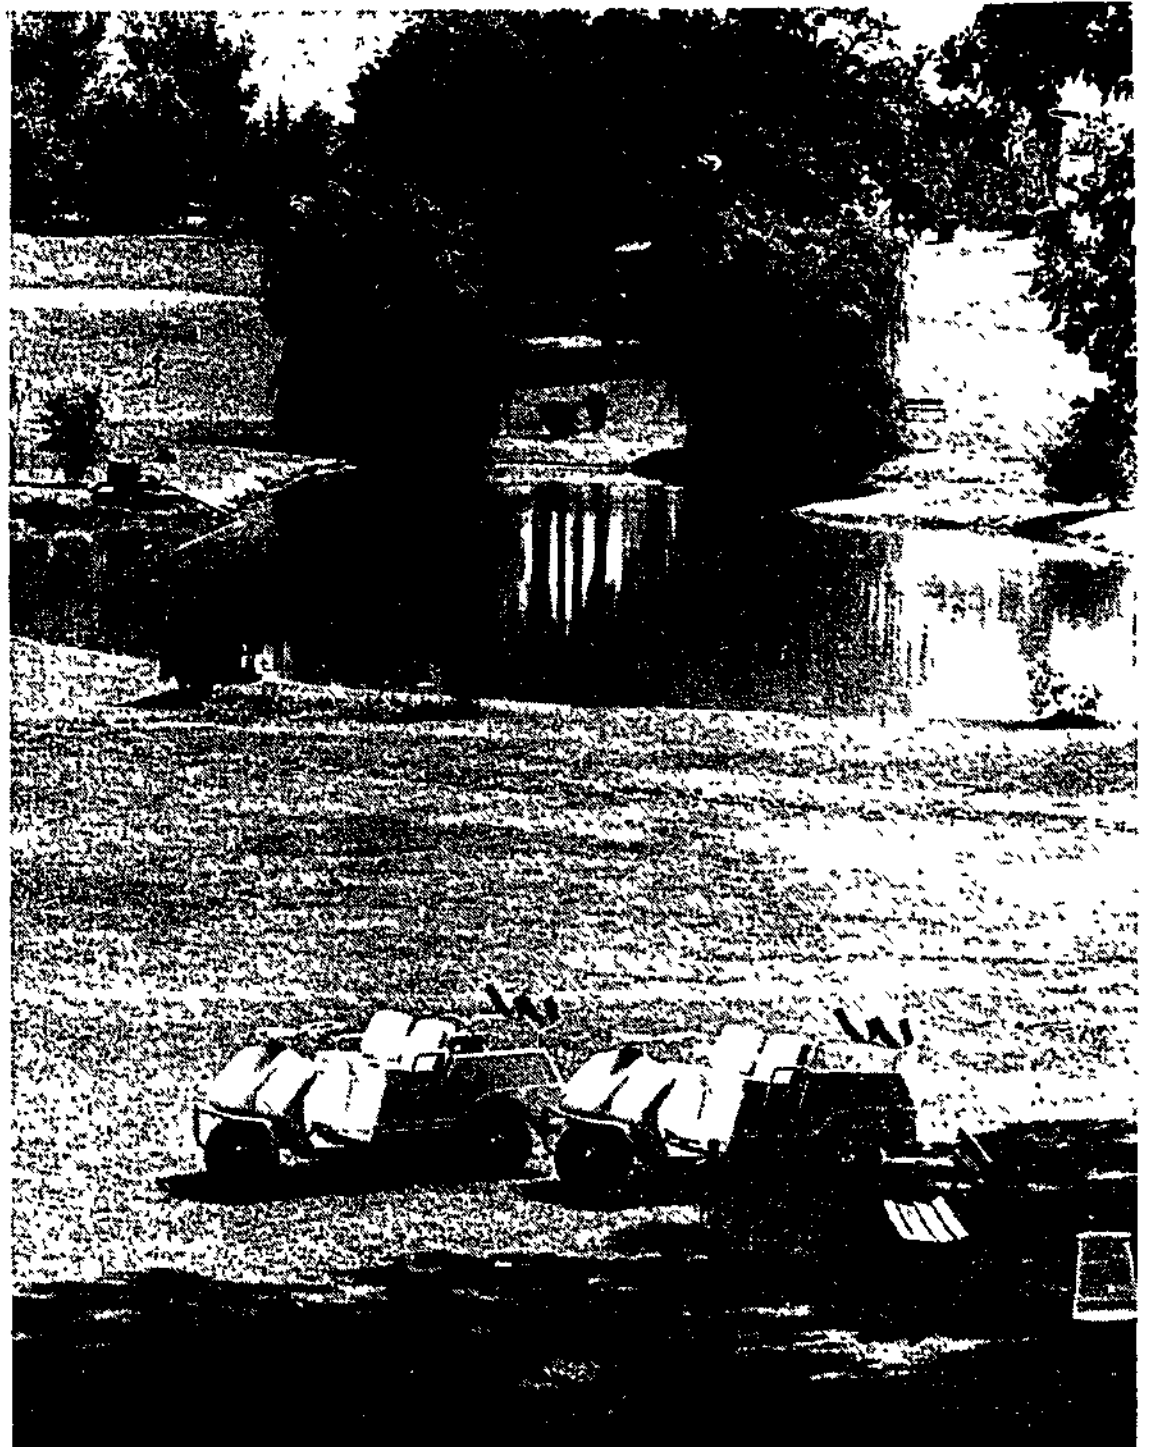

Unlike "Ball Four," the recount of Bouton's 1968 season which caught baseball with its pants down, "I Managed Good" has lasting value. It resurrects some of the grand old names and bares zany tales about each.

Many of baseball's finest writers recount the stories. There is Bob Considine on Connie Mack. Melvin Dursling on Walter Alton. Roger Kahn on Leo Durocher. Ed Linn on Casey Stengel.

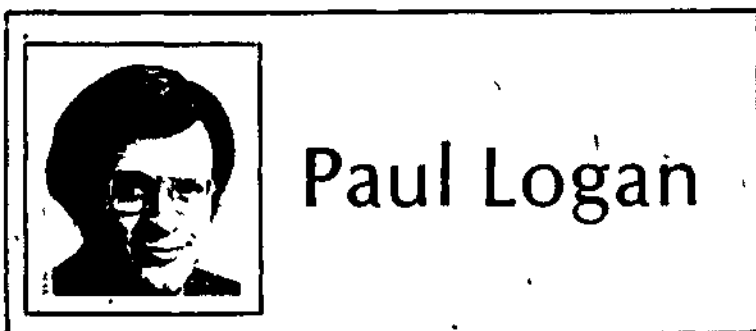

Also, there are Hall-of-Fame pitcher Christy Mathewson on John McGraw, plus ex-baseball executive Bill Veeck on Ralph Houk, Yogi Berra and Johnny Keane.

And, of course, there is some Jim Bouton. He writes on Dick Williams and Joe Schultz while adding comments elsewhere.

Big golf weekend for LPGA, PGA

WHAT DOES THE executive coordinator of the Child and Family Services Open do after wrapping up the final loose ends of last weekend's tournament?

"I'm going to take tomorrow off and play golf," Dana Johnson said Tuesday.

This Buffalo Grove resident had just lived through a dream which began back in 1968 "when I first started to try and find a course. The nitty gritty part of it began about a year ago," he said.

During this past year the Chicago-based charity organization has been working with volunteers at Midlano Country Club to make the Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament an annual event. The results brought mixed emotions.

"I was pretty happy with it," said Johnson. "I told several people I thought it was a big success in every way except financially. I must admit that I didn't expect it to be a big success (financially)."

A little over 12,000 golf fans turned out at the north suburban course located in Wadsworth, just west of Waukegan. Many suburban golf fanatics probably had trouble just finding Wadsworth on the map. Coupled with the fact that Midlano wasn't and probably still isn't a household word, the three-day attendance totals fell about 6,000 short of the hoped for amount.

Despite this setback, Bob Wileman, tournament director for several LPGA events, says another tour event in Chicago "is 90 per cent certain, though it may be held at a different course."

Johnson isn't saying whether or not his organization is looking into other sites, but reactions from others seem to suggest that it will be considered.

Although total gate receipts ("We haven't even brought the money from the bank in Gurnee yet.") haven't been tabulated to determine whether or not the tourney took a big bath, Johnson is already looking ahead to next year.

"We've showed that we could bring a women's tour event to Chicago," said Johnson, referring to all the big sponsors who were reluctant to back his inaugural tourney. "Now maybe they'll come forth."

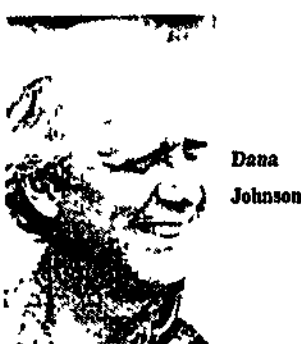

The plusses were that everybody — everybody had a great time and really enjoyed themselves," continued Johnson. "Another plus was that the people got exposed to women's golf. People I overheard said they never saw women play before but really enjoyed it. I had the feeling that they might talk with friends. . . ."

Besides the Child and Family Services Open in 1974, the Women's Open will also be in the Chicago area, the latter being at LaGrange. Although the tourneys are over a month apart, some have said that oversaturation will cut down the crowds for the Child and Family event which follows the most prestigious tourney on the women's tour. Johnson disagrees.

"There's precedent for holding two women's tournaments so close together," he said. "On Aug. 31 the women's tour goes to Fort Worth. The next week they're at Dallas."

If Dana Johnson was feeling even a little down after last week's torrid schedule, his first thank you note arrived to buoy his spirits. LeNore Besserra, a relative unknown who finished far down in the tourney's final standings, sent the first one.

"Acts like these make it all seem worthwhile. Right, Dana?"

Dana Johnson

THOSE ASSOCIATED with the Child and Family Services Open must have been incensed at the pathetic television coverage of this LPGA event.

Here was a professional golf tournament that failed to receive the publicity it deserved because at least one local station "ran overtime."

That was the excuse given by Bob Smith, NBC-TV's sports announcer, late Friday night after not even mentioning the tourney. Instead, the scores of some exhibition football games were given as well as film highlights of the Cub and Sox losses. Who cares?

Here was a chance to have some brief highlights of the opening round as well as mentioning who the leaders were. Neither was presented.

Most of the stations gave little or no coverage the remaining two days.

We did receive fantastic coverage of Stan Mikita. All Chicagoland slept well Friday night knowing Stan signed a new contract with the Black Hawks.

However, if you hadn't been spinning the TV dial to all the sports shows, you'd never have found out that Debbie Austin was the leader after one day's play. Thanks to Channel 9, I finally received that information.

COMPETING FOR headlines and television coverage with the LPGA event was the PGA in Cleveland.

When Jack Nicklaus is challenging for an unprecedented 14th major title and $45,000, the women's tourney — a $30,000 total purse — suffers.

As runnerup Bruce Crampton said, "It was a pleasure to be an eyewitness to history being made." Some of the golf fans who might have been at Midlano decided to stay home and also see big Jack rewrite the record books.

PEOPLE HAVE been buzzing about the accomplishments of Tom Weiskopf during the past couple of months. Heading into the PGA he had five firsts, one second, two thirds and one fifth.

But can you imagine the streak Nicklaus could conceivably run off if he played every week like Weiskopf? Picking and choosing his tourneys, Nicklaus has totaled five victories in 15 appearances this year, including 13 times in the top 10!

His fellow pros must get down on their knees each night and give thanks for Jack's being a devoted family man.

He'd also easily be the leading money winner this year if he played a little more. Crampton, who has played in just about every tourney, is only about $25,000 ahead of the Golden Bear.

Mount Prospect Pony League Invitational

Buffalo Grove stars head tourney

The Buffalo Grove Pony League All-Stars have won the first tournament in the league's history by capturing the Mount Prospect Invitational.

In succession, Buffalo Grove defeated Palatine, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove and Mount Prospect again in finals of the double elimination tourney.

Buffalo Grove rallied for three runs in the home seventh to down Palatine, 4-3, in the opening game. Bob Mason's three-run double provided the winning runs.

Scott Campbell laid down a perfect bunt for a hit to load the bases and set the stage for Mason's double. Dan Wierloch had a long triple for Buffalo Grove and walked to start the winning rally. Bob Wirtz also had a hit.

Mike Marshall pitched a five-hitter to get the win over Palatine.

Andy Farrissey hurled a four-hitter to pace Buffalo Grove past Mount Prospect in the second round match. Farrissey struck out the side in the sixth after Mount Prospect had loaded the bases with no outs.

Buffalo Grove had only three hits and got runs-batted-in from Dave Martin, Wierloch and Terry Mastandrea. Greg Snelken had a hit to start the winning rally.

Wierloch also snared a line drive to prevent two Mount Prospect runs from crossing the plate.

Buffalo Grove defeated Elk Grove, 3-2, in a semi-finals game. Marshall pitched a three-hitter for the win and struck out 10 Elk Grove batters. In two games, Marshall had allowed just eight hits.

Larry Gallas stroked two hits in three at-bats for Buffalo Grove. He was robbed of a third hit when his line drive in the sixth was caught.

Farrissey gave Buffalo Grove the winning run when he belted a long home run over the center field fence.

The title game was no contest whatsoever, halted after five innings due to the 10-run rule as Buffalo Grove led Mount Prospect, 18-5.

Key hits by Martin and Steve Pfister helped Buffalo Grove to seven runs in the first inning. Buffalo Grove scored six more times in the third and the issue was never in doubt thereafter.

Marshall had a perfect day with 3-for-3, including a home run, plus a walk. Mason also had two key hits. Farrissey was the winning pitcher on a three-hitter.

Following their victory in the Mount Prospect Invitational, Buffalo Grove's Pony All-Stars took third place in the 16-team Scott Kaminisky Memorial Tournament at Round Lake.

Buffalo Grove downed the Waukegan City League All-Stars, 13-1, in the opener. Marshall hurled a one-hitter and hit for the cycle with a homer, triple, double and single. Mason and Mastandrea each had two hits.

Buffalo Grove then defeated Elk Grove, 8-3, as Farrissey hit a three-run homer and was the winning pitcher. Marshall had two hits and Mastandrea a homer.

In semi-finals, Buffalo Grove squandered a 7-2 lead and lost, 8-7, to Waukegan. In the fifth inning, Waukegan scored five runs on only one hit.

Mastandrea pitched a four-hitter as Buffalo Grove bounced back to defeat Chicago Edgebrook, 1-0, in the third place game. Wierloch knocked in the game's only run in the first inning.

Buffalo Grove's next games will be against Wheeling in their annual best-of-three tournament.

Other members of the Buffalo Grove Pony All-Stars are manager Jim Breen, coaches John Mason and Bruce Heath plus players Dan Dotson, Bill Lilly, Tom Lindholm, and Jeff Reed.

Johanson hottest shooter

Bert Johanson shot both low gross and low net, 38 and 33 respectively, in the Mount Prospect Friday Twilight Golf League last week.

Birdies were shot by Bob Bracken on the eighth hole and Joe Kubik on the 12th and 15th.

Members of the Mount Prospect State Bank team which has an impressive first-place margin are Chuck Lynch, Ronald Krahn, Ray Downing and Bob Swyer. There is a close fight for second place.

Blackhawks Senior champs

The Blackhawks turned back the defending champ Generals twice, 4-1 and 1-0, to tuck away the championship of the Senior II (ages 15 and 16) Boys Baseball league of Arlington Heights.

In the 4-1 victory, Mark Spurr finished the season with a 5-2 pitching record with a fine show of control. He walked just one batter and scattered four hits. Rich Miner of the winners and Lentine of the Generals had two hits apiece.

In the 1-0 thriller that clinched the title, Pete Lund was even more brilliant, ending the year with a perfect 8-0 pitching record. The Generals played well despite being shorthanded. But Lund allowed no walks and struck out eight while being backed by a fine defense. Miner made a spectacular fielding play behind second base to end the game.

Defense stars in Rifles' 10-9 win

Most football teams rely upon their offense to win games, but in the case of the unusual Lake County Rifles the best offense is a good defense.

This was proved again Sunday night as Lake County defeated the West Allis Spartans, champions of the Central States Football League, 10-9.

The Rifles' defense last season was the best in the league and after two games this year again is the best.

Many times Sunday night the defense handed their offensive-minded teammates golden opportunities to score but it was not until only 10 seconds remained in the game that the offense got the message.

Bob "The Red Baron" Bercowitz threw a one-yard touchdown pass to Cliff Boyd, last year's rookie of the year in the league, to tie the score. Larry Schultz kicked the extra point. In the second period, Schultz started the scoring with an eight-yard field goal.

The Rifles' score came on a 41-yard drive that started with less than two minutes left in the game. Lake County got control of the ball in the West Allis territory on a bad punt, one that almost became the third blocked punt of the game by the Rifles defense.

In the drive Abe Brown powered through the middle three times for eight important yards; Boyd caught two passes.

Bill Trapp, the Rifles' leading receiver, made two nearly impossible catches, one for a 10-yard gain to the two yard line on a foot-dragging sideline reception. A. J. Owens, the Rifles' other outstanding receiver, caught an important fourth down 13-yard pass in this drive.

Boyd who ran back four kicks for 99 yards and nearly broke away for a score, helped to keep the West Allis team deep in their own territory most of the game.

The Rifles' defense had 11 standout players. There was Lance Cotton, a defensive tackle who just came from the Bears, and Terry Stanger and Tony Bertuca driving West Allis backs for large losses, including three sacks of West Allis quarterback Mike Gorecki.

Bill Schaefer was busy blocking punts while Mel Easley intercepted two passes and nearly ran both of them back for scores. Then Don Rowden and Ed Sublett played volleyball with the football as they teamed up for another interception.

John Angel played a steady line game. Backs Bruce Hart, who was injured in a pre-game warm-up collision, and Bruce Heagstedt played brilliant defense.

Even the score against the Rifles was only a 13-yard drive with 10 yards of it being gained by offside penalties. Errol Barnett finally scored on a two-yard plunge in the third quarter. Gary Zauner made the extra point. A safety eight minutes later scored the other two West Allis points.

An indication of the Rifles defense is that the longest gain against it by passing or rushing was only 11 yards.

Lake County returns home this Saturday to meet the Manitowoc Chiefs at 7:30 p.m. in Carmel Field, on highways 176 and 63 in Mundelein.

Six football teams, Zion-Benton, Warren, Wauconda, Libertyville, Mundelein and Marion (McHenry County) will be guests of the Rifles.

All residents of those districts may attend the game at half price by showing a drivers license at the gate which indicates they live in the districts. Ace Hardware on highway 21 west of 63 in Libertyville has discount ticket coupons for those who do not live in those school districts.

Kowalski Polish Bloomers place second at Elk Grove

Kowalski's Polish Bloomers have concluded their season with a 12-2 record for second place in the Northwest Suburban Traveling League.

Trophies were given at the Elk Grove double elimination tourney last weekend where the Bloomers won four of five games.

The Bloomers were winners over Buffalo Grove, the Hoffman Irish Settlers, Elk Grove's "A" team and Streamwood during the tourney. They lost only to Roselle.

Naponelli, first baseman Kathy Evans, second baseman Diane Bedard, third baseman Diane Rossman, short center fielder Debbie Naponelli and shortstop Lisa Jaworsky.

Right field was shared by Christy Mullbeck and Debbie King. Center field was shared by Sandy and Lin Binkowski.

The club's original first baseman, Johnny Wolf, was injured in the tournament's first game.

Maine West will begin cross-country practice at 3:30 p.m. next Monday. Team members should report to the far side of the indoor track with tennis shoes, gym shorts and a tee-shirt.

Thereafter, practices will be held at 3:30 p.m. on weekdays and at 9 a.m. on Saturdays.

The Warriors will run a 14-meet schedule. Between 80 and 90 boys are expected to participate.

Former Warriors who will be running on college teams this fall are: Jack St. John at Southern Illinois, Kevin Wright at Purdue and Chip Barbour at DePaul plus Tom Duntemann, Jerry Krainik and Dean Kamin at Northern Illinois and Frank Balles and Scott Sedlack at Oakton.

Lee LaBadie, former Maine West cross-country runner, later became the first Big Ten miler under four minutes when he did it while running for the University of Illinois.

Card golf meeting Monday

Arlington High School golf coach Bud Bornman has called a meeting of the golf teams for 9 a.m. Monday at Grace Gym. Anyone interested in going out for the team is invited to attend.

Hockey signup set in Rolling Meadows

Registration is now underway for the 1973-74 Rolling Meadows hockey program at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex, 3900 Owl Dr.

This year the hockey program will consist of a house league with four mite and squirt teams and six teams in each of the pee wee, bantam and mid-level divisions.

A preseason session of ice time practice will be held in early September. Following the preseason session the boys will be rated and placed on teams in their division so each team will be of equal balance.

The house league will consist of 20 games and 10 practices. Emphasis will be placed on developing skating and the fundamentals of hockey.

All participants in the hockey program will have an opportunity to try out for the traveling team in their division. The traveling teams will play at least 40 games and have 10 practices, in addition to participating in state and other tournaments. The emphasis will be placed on winning as well as further development of the individual's hockey skills.

The program will have a fulltime experienced hockey instructor who will conduct preseason hockey school sessions, assist the team coaches and coordinate the overall hockey program.

The cost of participating in the hockey program is $45 for Rolling Meadows residents and $75 for non-residents. There is no additional cost to play on the traveling teams. Registration is limited and boys will be accepted on a first come first serve basis.

Interested boys may register at the sports complex on Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 12 p.m. and 1 to 5 p.m. and also during all public skating hours.

Contest sign-up Monday

Registration for Ford Division's 13th annual Punt, Pass and Kick (PP&K) program will open Monday, Aug. 20, at participating Ford dealerships in the division's Chicago sales district, according to District Manager D. M. Shultz.

During the registration period — which runs through Sept. 28 — more than 1.2 million youngsters across the nation are expected to enroll for PP&K, bringing the 13-year total participation to more than 10 million. PP&K is co-sponsored by the National Football League and the Ford Dealers of America.

"We're looking back on a history of solid success with PP&K," the Ford executive said. "Each succeeding year has been better than the last and this reflects the acceptance of the program by American youngsters and their parents."

Any youngster, eight to 13 years of age and accompanied by a parent or guardian, may register at any participating Ford dealership to compete in PP&K. Registrants compete only against those in their own age group. There is no body contact and no special equipment is required.

Scoring is based on distance and accuracy. One point is received for every foot of punting, passing and kicking distance and one point is deducted for every foot of deviation from a center line.

There are six phases in the competition — local, zone, district, area, divisional and final. Twelve national finalists — two in each of the six age groups — will compete on national television for the championship at the NFL Super Bowl game in Houston Jan. 13. All finalists and their parents will be guests of Ford Division.

Winners will have their names inscribed on the permanent PP&K display at the Pro Football Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio. NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle will present the first-place trophies.

Athletic fees due soon at FV

Students wishing to participate in football, cross country, fall golf, girls arch-

Hoffman girls begin practice Monday, Aug. 27

Practice for Hoffman Estates High School's girls' sports teams will begin the final week of August.

All girls interested in participating on the gymnastics or tennis teams should report to the girls' locker room at 1 p.m., Monday, Aug. 27.

Every girl must submit a physical examination form, an emergency card, insurance card and a parental permission slip before being allowed to practice.

All necessary forms may be obtained in the main office at the high school.

ery may pay their fees any time during the day on Friday, Aug. 17. The fee for football insurance is $13, with the school district paying an additional $13 for each boy enrolled.

In order to participate in football without purchasing football insurance, a waiver must be presented. Boys and girls going out for any sport other than football must be covered either by the school time or 24-hour policy unless a waiver is presented. Waivers are available in the main office or the athletic office.

School time coverage for girls is $6, while the rate for boys is $8. The 24-hour coverage for girls carries a charge of $17, and the same coverage is available for boys at $22. Entering freshmen, transfer students, and boys and girls going out for fall sports must turn in medical examination cards which have been completed during the past six months.

Bouton, Belinsky books

The book represents something of a comeback for Bouton who, it seemed, was always trying comebacks after his glory days of 1963 and '64 with the Yankees.

When "Ball Four" took the country and baseball czar Bowle Kuhn by storm, a sequel was quickly hustled off the press. Excepting a few funny lines, "I'm Glad You Didn't Take It Personally" was a complete bust and waste of money.

Now, however, Bouton and researcher Offen succeeded in a different way. For eight bucks, you get some baseball history plus the Bouton wit which made "Ball Four" a sure bet.

(Under other books by Bouton are his two baseball works plus . . . and get this . . . "War and Peace.")

The Bouton wit: "On managing: 'As a player I could get drunk in the back of the bus with the rest of the guys and forget where I was. As a manager I'd have to sit up in the front of the bus with the coaches. This is very similar to sitting alone.'"

On Rocky Bridges: "The reason Bridges was a great (minor league) manager was that he understood that baseball is supposed to be mainly fun. That's probably why my favorite manager has never managed in the big leagues."

On Image: "Looking and acting like a big-leaguer is very important to baseball people. If Jerry Rubin could hit .400, he'd still have trouble making the cut."

On a Yankee: "Ralph Houk's promotion from manager to general manager was a classic example of the Peter Principle in operation. As a general manager, Houk arrived at his level of incompetence. Mike Burke eventually recognized the Peter Principle, applied the Peter Prescription and demoted Houk back to manager, where he belonged."

On the book: ". . . we asked the greatest living authority . . . on Joe Schultz to write that chapter, and I agreed."

That little old bookmaker Bouton will continue popping up blither and yon where least expected. But as Maury Allen shows, Bo Belinsky has plummeted to the celebrity status of a first base coach.

Unlike many sports biographies, there is some real meat to "BO/Pitching and Woeing." The book will succeed where others fail because Allen, author of nine novels, combines strong research with excellent writing.

The language (Belinsky's) gets spicy, but it wouldn't be appropriate any other way. Bo is not nappy-pumpy.

For the California Angels in early May, 1962, Belinsky fashioned a no-hitter against Baltimore's Orioles, the club that gave up on him and offered Belinsky in the expansion draft.

It was a card from the start, refusing to sign, then taking the minimum $6,000 from California. (He never made more than $18,000.) Then came the No-Hitter.

Hollywood crowned him Playboy of the Major Leagues and Bo Belinsky numbered Walter Winchell among his friends.

He swashbuckled from one champagne party to another, surrounded by wine, women and song. (As if he hadn't been before it.) The writers loved it.

Bo Belinsky was never a great pitcher. He cared not whether he pitched in Hawaii or New York, unless perhaps he preferred Hawaii.

But he was a social whirlwind . . . dating Tina Louise, Ann-Margret and dozens more . . . making and breaking an engagement with Mamie Van Doren . . . finally marrying Playmate-of-the-Year Jo Collins.

But the Belinsky left arm grew old and tired without accomplishing much, only 23 wins.

"You know you are going downhill," Belinsky told Allen, "when you have to pay a cabdriver to take you to your pad. You also know you are going downhill when you enjoy telling him your troubles."

Bo Belinsky, at last juncture jobless and residing with Jo Collins and their daughter (stevie) in Chicago, has seen the lights. He rose from a New York City Jewish ghetto to play in baseball's great towns. Like Philadelphia.

Allen writes: "Besides booting funerals in Philadelphia, as Belinsky was quick to point out, Philadelphia fans would boo an Easter egg hunt, a parade of armless war vets, and the Liberty Bell."

In time, they would also boo Bo Belinsky and a teammate destined for larger fame, Richie Allen.

Robert "Bo" Belinsky — sometimes pitcher, full-time pool room and woman hustler — finally had to pay the piper. He came up short of cash. Maury Allen misses none of it.

Belinsky to Allen: "I don't feel sorry for myself. I've been in the sun. You know who I feel sorry for? I feel sorry for those guys on my team, those guys on any team, those guys anywhere and everywhere who never heard that music."

Allen, in the book's last line, asks: "What is a man anyway, if he isn't the sum total of his memories?"

Bo Belinsky has many memories and Maury Allen deftly catches the most important in a fine biography.

24. The Doubles Game

In doubles, the two most important single strokes are the volley and the return-of-serve. The big serve counts for little less than in singles, and most players prefer the slice or twist which will cause the opponent to hit up and which will enable the server to get a good volleying position. The server and his partner have the advantage, and between them they attempt to dominate from the net. The volleyers have the edge over the groundstrikers and, except in intermediate tennis, one almost never hears of a team that does not volley winning a big tournament.

Doubles is a team game. An aggressive player and a touch artist can successfully team together, the latter setting up the former. One player may be a safety volleyer who can consistently hit deep volleys down the center; the other may be an aggressive poacher who will take chances to end the point immediately. Two different tennis personalities can blend beautifully as a team, with one providing the consistency and the other the aggressiveness.

Niles Saints to launch football season Saturday

The Niles Saints kick off their football season this Saturday night Aug. 18 at 8 p.m. at Notre Dame High School, 7655 Dempster, Niles.

The Saints, under new head coach Ken Stone, have put in a new pro offense with the acquisition of veteran pro quarterback Gus Williams, who's played with both the Rockford Rams and the Joliet Chargers.

The Saints will play another suburban rival, the Berwyn Barons. Last year the Saints defeated the Barons 23-6.

An added highlight to this game is the bringing together of two former teammates, as opposing coaches. Neal Anderson, head coach of the Barons, and Ken Stone, head coach of the Saints, were teammates with the Rockford Rams of the Central States Football League. Stone ran the offense as quarterback, and Anderson led the defense as middle linebacker.

Some outstanding returning veterans are John Pecora, who was the team's leading rusher last year with a 6.5 yards per carry average. Kicker Wally Schulz, who set a couple of league records last year, kicked a record 48 yard field goal and three field goals in one game.

Leading the offensive line is Rose Bowl veteran Bill Bergman, 6-foot-4, 250 pound offensive tackle. Bergman was a member of John Pont's Indiana team which went to the Rose Bowl in 1968.

Anchoring the defense is last year's most valuable player, middle line backer, Rich Battaglia. Rich is a 5'11", 220-pound veteran from the University of Kentucky.

Season tickets for the Saints games will be on sale at this game.

Softball tourney coming to area; 16-inch feature

For the second straight year, the Rolling Meadows Park District is hosting the Chicago Metropolitan 16-inch American Softball Association tournament for teams all over the Chicago area beginning Friday and running through Aug. 26.

Most games will be played on McKenzie Field at Sauk Park. There will be a small admission charge.

The tournament will be double-elimination with 23 teams entered.

The Herald area will field three teams — the host Raiders and Kemmerly Realtors from Rolling Meadows and Olson Construction of Mount Prospect. The Raiders will take on Aurelio's of Home-wood-Flossmoor at 9:00 p.m. Friday and Kemmerly will go against the Joliet Roadrunners at 10 p.m.

The first two games on opening night will be Sobie's (Chicago Park District) against Park Forest at 7 p.m. and Blue Island against the Dwarfs (CPD) at 8 p.m.

Games will be played all day Saturday and Sunday afternoon with the tourney continuing nights next week. Watch the Herald for scores and schedules.

Pro-Am golf meet Friday

The 16th Annual Pro-Amateur Best Ball Championship of the Chicago District Golf Association will unroll at a comparatively new course Friday. Plum Tree National Golf Club in Harvard will host its first top event when 50 PGA professionals and their low-scoring amateur partners compete for a $500 purse and the Charles N. Eckstein trophy. Now in its fourth year, Plum Tree will play at 6723 yards with par 36-36-72.

From the Herald area, Inverness (Palatine) and Rolling Green (Arlington Heights) will be among the 50 clubs represented. Inverness pro will be George Capoun with John Seehausen, Carl Dilsaver and Fred Gore rounding out the foursome. Rolling Green pro is Bill Ventresca.

The championship is at scratch, combining the two best balls on each hole.

Last year's event at Prestwick County Club produced a tie when Onwentsia carded a 70-67-137, seven under par, and Woodmar reversed it with 67-70-137. Woodmar will be back with the same team.

Irv Rosenthal, a CDGA director who represents Idlewild and Plum Tree, will act as chairman.

Kilfoy wins twice over Vehe in Meadowhill Park bike racing

Dennis Kilfoy of Arlington Heights and Rich Vehe of Mount Prospect placed one-two in the intermediate boys' point race last Thursday in bike racing at Northbrook's Meadowhill Park.

Kilfoy and Vehe were also one-two in the intermediate boys' sprint final.

Dick Robertson of Mount Prospect placed fourth in the senior men's mixed-and-out competition.

Meadowhill Park races will resume at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, with seven street bicycle races followed by 15 races for registered Amateur Bicycle League riders.

Remaining summer events are Thursday night racing on Aug. 23 and Aug. 30 plus the Miller High Life Classic on Saturday, Aug. 25.

There is no admission or parking charge for Thursday races. Meadowhill Park is located just west of Waukegan between Shermer and Techny in Northbrook.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence F. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Is there any scientific basis for the statement that eating more food in the evening and less in the morning hours adds weight faster than the same number of calories distributed more evenly?

Dear Reader — There's not a particle of truth to this. The simplest way I know to explain the effects of calories on obesity and the body functions is to think of it simply as a checking account. The calories in the diet are calories (money) in, or calories deposited. They are used or spent (calories out) for the daily needs to provide the energy for the normal body functions, including the beating of the heart, the movement of the muscles and even respiration.

If there are more calories in than calories out, the balance is deposited — as fat (bank energy balance). Physical activity increases the need for calories and is spending calories. The active person needs to have more calories in because he's a "big spender" (calories out).

Now, just as in the checking account, it doesn't matter whether the calories are deposited in the morning, or at noon, or in the evening, or during a midnight snack, it's still a deposit. Similarly it doesn't matter a lot when the calories are spent — whether you exercise in the morning, at noon, in the evening, or even get out of bed at midnight and run two miles.

FAT DEPOSITS are calories available to spend, just as your bank balance is cash available to spend. If you're not putting in enough money, you use your checking account balance to meet your needs.

The body does the same thing. If you're not eating enough calories you use the fat deposits of calories to provide the body's calorie needs. This is why a person on a reducing diet with very few fat calories in the diet still uses a large portion of calories from fat — the fat calories that are already in the body available for use.

When a person is under starvation conditions, such as being in a plane that crashed in an area where no food is available, like in the Arctic, the body spends the fat deposits to meet the energy needs of the body. This will continue until all of the fat deposits are gone. At that point, the protein in the muscles is mobilized, converted to sugar by the liver, and used for energy.

You may recall that the emaciated war prisoners from World War II had lost muscle mass. This occurs because the muscle protein was mobilized and converted to blood sugar (glucose) for the body's vital energy needs. This is an important lesson about protein — the body can and does convert it to glucose and excess glucose is converted to fat.

IT IS USUALLY better to have multiple small meals than any one single large meal. One must be careful that frequent meals don't become multiple large meals.

It's not necessary to eat all essential nutrients in one meal as some uninformed advocates have stated. The nutrients are retained long enough for the body to assemble all of these various chemicals to accomplish its various functions within a 24-hour period.

Beyond 24 hours you run the risk of having a momentary deficiency. Vitamin C for example, is rapidly excreted from the body and should be replaced on a daily basis. This does not mean that it needs to be replaced at each meal of the day.

Doctor warns against casual sterilization experiments

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A panel of physicians disturbed by recent reports of human experimentation and sterilization without informed consent has called for mandatory instruction on medical ethics for all students of the health sciences.

"What we need is a massive educational program in all institutions that have to do with the health sciences," said Dr. Paul H. Andreini, an internal medicine consultant at the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn.

"I have been very disturbed over the past five or six years in the apparent lack of interest by many physicians in the area of ethics and by the lack of interest by attorneys in this area," he said at a news seminar on the subject sponsored by the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation.

DR. ANDREINI was one of three physicians recently awarded $18,000 fellowships by the foundation to study medical ethics.

In announcing the awards, Mrs. Eunice Kennedy Shriver, executive director of the Kennedy Foundation, said, "recent headlines recording gross abuses of medical patients have dramatically underlined the need for more intensive training of physicians in ethics and morality."

DR. GEORGE D. Shoup, a Jesuit who received a Ph.D. in anatomy from the University of Colorado in 1956 and an M.D. from Yale in June, said most medical students are not taught about ethical principles or the value of human life.

"Not being taught any ethics is in a sense being taught bad ethics because then it's left up to the prevailing ideas in a society or in a community," he said. "It seems to me that the prevailing idea in a society or in a community is simply a cost benefit type of approach. If it's economically beneficial, then it's good. If it's not economically beneficial, then it's bad."

Dr. David Allen, now chief resident of the Harvard Psychiatric Service at Boston City Hospital and another winner of a Kennedy fellowship, said he was trained in the United Kingdom, in Scandinavia and worked in the West Indies and in Boston and never received any formal discussion of medical ethics or controversial problems.

Population control called a major world problem

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, a fully-accredited 133-bed psychiatric hospital.)

An armchair philosopher could sit back today and reflect upon our country's social circumstances. He would be confronted with individual and group violence and pollution: air, water, noise, disease, corruption, food and fuel shortages and overpopulation.

Dr. H. Curtis Wood Jr. is the medical consultant for the Association for Voluntary Sterilization, a volunteer family planning organization in New York. He is not an armchair philosopher but an outspoken obstetrician-gynecologist who believes population control is one of the world's most serious problems. He recently discussed some of his views.

"IN RECENT YEARS," Dr. Wood explained, "my concern has been in the overall population problem as it relates to conditions in this country and all over the world."

"I feel overpopulation is the most serious problem of all the innumerable problems we have. If we do not solve the population problem it is not realistic that we can solve our other problems such as the energy crisis or the pollution of our air, water or land."

"There are now three and a half billion people in the world and two billion of them are hungry all the time. Every day 12,000 people die of starvation. At present rates the world population is increasing by 2 per cent a year which means that every year there are 70 million more of us in the world. If this keeps up, by the year 2000, which is less than 30 years away, the world population will double and go to 25 billion. That means more pollution, more starvation and less of everything for everyone. Overpopulation is and will be the underlying cause for our world's social problems."

ACCORDING TO Dr. Wood there are two ways of solving the world population problem. One is to effectively reduce the birth rates and the other is to tremendously increase the death rates.

The Association for Voluntary Sterilization is working to bring down the birth rate through what they think is the most effective means of birth control — sterilization. That is tubal ligation for women and vasectomies for men. These procedures are, says Dr. Wood, most effective biologically and psychologically, and in a certain number of cases the procedures can be reversed.

"But we say the chief contribution of sterilization is that it is considered a permanent irreversible procedure."

THE ASSOCIATION was started in 1937 by a group of New Jersey citizens who lived near a state institution for the mentally retarded. "They were aware of the large number of babies being born there and the children were born to parents who could not take care of them. Most of the children, too, were born retarded and destined to live the same type of helpless life their parents did. So the Association was formed originally to control the birth rate among the retarded."

"Today we feel sterilization is a good and satisfactory method of birth control for the population in general."

Dr. Wood's group has run into opposition in this country — primarily from religious groups. But he thinks the attitude toward sterilization will change drastically.

Social Security and You

Social security payments will keep pace with the American standard of living for the next 50 years, according to Norman R. Thoresen, manager of the Arlington Heights Social Security office.

"A recent change in the law has made social security inflation-proof," said Mr. Thoresen.

"Increases in benefits are tied directly to increases in the cost of living. Each year, beginning in 1974, living costs will be compared with those of the year before. If living costs have increased 3 per cent or more and a general Social Security benefit increase has not been enacted, benefits will be increased by the same percentage the following January."

The first automatic increase in benefits could be for January 1975.

TO HELP MEET the increased costs for automatic increases in benefits, the Social Security law also provides for automatic increases in the contribution and benefit base — the maximum amount of annual earnings on which Social Security contributions are paid and benefits are based.

Increases in the base go into effect when automatic benefit increases become effective and will go up in proportion to rises in average wages covered by Social Security. But this will occur if that average has increased since the base or benefits were most recently increased.

"Benefit improvements in the past, while not automatic, have been substantial. Just in the past five years, Congress has legislated increases amounting to 70 per cent of average benefits paid out," Mr. Thoresen said.

Q—I have a household worker who does not wish to have her earnings reported to Social Security. She insists on being paid the full amount of wages without any deductions. I have not reported her earnings as I am afraid she might quit. Is this wrong?

A—If you pay a household worker $30 or more in cash wages in a calendar quarter, social security contributions must be reported and paid to the Internal Revenue Service. You may deduct $85 per cent from the worker's cash wages or pay part of the contribution yourself. Your share of the contribution is an equal amount. Write or phone the Arlington Heights Social Security office and ask for pamphlet entitled Social Security and Your Household Employee.

Q—Am I responsible for payment of any taxes on wages not previously reported for a domestic or household employee?

A—The time limit set by the law for correcting anyone's earnings record (3 years, 3 months and 15 days) does not apply to wages paid in a period by an employer who made no report of any wages paid to the worker. The employer is responsible for payment of both the employer's and employee's share of the taxes due and may be subject to a penalty for failure to report on time. Domestic service has been covered by Social Security since 1950.

'What's right with Illinois education' conference topic

Illinois education at its best will be on display today and tomorrow at the O'Hare Inn, Des Plaines, where the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction will sponsor a conference on "What's Right with Illinois Education."

Films, presentations and a series of exhibits will highlight the two-day conference, as Illinois educators take the opportunity to tell about and to learn more about innovative and exemplary educational programs currently under way within the state.

The purpose of the conference is to provide educators a chance to share ideas and experiences which might prove valuable in the operation of their school districts. The conference also hopes to draw public attention to the positive aspects of what schools are doing.

Attending the conference will be superintendents of Illinois Educational service regions and school district superintendents.

AMONG THE ACTIVITIES at the conference will be a series of 16 seminar sessions featuring outstanding education programs dealing with areas such as adult education, gifted education, individualized instruction, dropout prevention, safety education, reading and bilingual education.

An exhibit area, displaying 23 innovative programs, will include projects in environmental education, language arts, human relations, community involvement and ethnic studies. There will be multi-media and film presentations, information booths, and informal sessions for small group discussions.

From the Northwest suburban area, High School Dist. 214 will enter an exhibit of its cooperative teacher education program. The program is directed by Roderick McLennan, Dist. 214 assistant superintendent for instruction.

State Supt. Michael Bakalis will moderate a panel of news media representatives at the formal breakfast tomorrow. The panel will discuss their views of education and how the media and schools can work together for mutual benefit. Panel members will be Edith Herman of the Chicago Tribune; Frank Agraz, WLS-TV reporter; Burtleigh Hines, WBZM-TV editorial director; Ron Rogers, Lerner Home Newspapers education editor, and Frank Barnako, WMA Radio news director.

Herman F. Hinz, Sr.

Herman F. Hinz, Sr. of Hot Springs, Ark., formerly of Arlington Heights, died Monday at St. Joseph Hospital, Hot Springs. He was 81.

Mr. Hinz was born July 12, 1892 and was treasurer for the village of Mount Prospect from 1949 to 1954. He was associated with and director of the Herman F. Hinz Printing Co., Mount Prospect, from 1949 to 1969. He was also associated with Western Union for 30 years.

Visitation will be from 2 to 8:30 p.m. at Lauterburg and Oehler Funeral Home, 2000 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights. Services will be at 1 p.m. Friday. Burial will be at Memory Gardens, Arlington Heights, with the Rev. Robert O. Bartz officiating.

His survivors include his widow, Betty B. (nee Davis); a son, Herman F. Jr.; a sister, Helen Hassmann and two brothers, Arthur and Edwin. He was preceded in death by his first wife, Marguerite, and two brothers, Albert and Henry.

Frank F. Gilmore

Frank F. Gilmore, 57, of 1054 Sixth Ave., died Tuesday at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge. A resident of Des Plaines, he was born April 2, 1916, in Wisconsin.

He was president of Gilmore International Inc., of Palatine, and owned the company for the last eight years.

Visitation is today from 3 to 9:30 p.m. in the Des Plaines Funeral Home Chapel, Lee and Perry streets.

Funeral service will be at 2 p.m. Friday in Trinity Lutheran Church, Des Plaines.

Mr. Gilmore is survived by his widow, Judith; daughter, Suzanne Longman; son, Dennis; two grandchildren; three brothers, Russell of Lake Zurich, Hugh of Arkansas, and Paul; and sister, Gladys Pasvogel.

In lieu of flowers, the family appreciates that contributions be made to the Orthopedic Research and Education Fund number 1250 at the Children's Memorial Hospital, 2300 Childrens Plaza, Chicago, 60614.

Claude M. Butler

Claude M. Butler, 85, died yesterday in Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, after a long illness. He was born Sept. 22, 1887 in Corning, Kans. and resided at 801 E. Central, Arlington Heights.

Visitation hours will be from 3 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. tomorrow at Haire Funeral Home, 207 N. Vail, Arlington Heights.

Service will be at 10 a.m. Friday at the funeral home with Rev. William H. Herman officiating. Burial will be at Memory Gardens Cemetery, Arlington Heights.

Survivors include his wife, Ida May, Onarga, Kan.; three daughters, Mrs. Gwendolyn Bohnert (Frank), of Mountaint Home, Ark., Mrs. Frances Kindhart and Mrs. Marguerite Schmidt (Joseph) both of Arlington Heights; two brothers, Louis L. of Homewood and George W. of Pomona, Calif. He was preceded in death by his first wife, Rosa (nee Berridge).

Mr. Butler was a retired mason contractor in the Northwest suburbs.

Vigilantes?

Police growing more concerned as citizens

by TOM TIEDE

NEW YORK — A drunken gunman shot and killed one man and wounded two others recently on 134th Street in Manhattan. Then, according to police reports, angry neighbors of the victims chased the killer, subdued him, "beat his goddamn head in," and turned him over to authorities.

The incident was viewed by police, press and many desperate New Yorkers as another in a recent series of similar events that may indicate a new citizen determination to help the police do something about crime in the streets.

According to the trend theory, people are fed up with being pushed around by thugs. No longer will they merely stand by in fear and docility while their neighbors are being victimized. Manhattan police report that shortly after the incident on 134th Street 30 taxi drivers chased the suspects of an armed robbery and held them, too, for arrest.

WHAT'S MORE, the hope is that the phenomenon is spreading to the rest of the nation. Several urban papers have recently commented on "citizen actions" in their own cities. In an suburb of Newark, for example, three little girls spotted a supermarket break-in, phoned the cops, gave a description of the getaway car, and, quick as one could yell "Stop-you-dirty-thief," the bandit was hauled to the clinic.

To be sure, it is no wonder people grab onto such occurrences as "trends."

NW educational co-op announces $339,400 grants

Gloria Kinney, executive director of the Northwest Educational Cooperative, last week announced the receipt of grants totaling $339,400 for operation of two programs for the 1973-74 school year.

A total of $238,400 was approved by the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction department of bilingual and migrant education, to operate the bilingual education service center. The center is administered by the cooperative and is located in Mount Prospect but serves all school districts in the state outside Chicago.

Staffed by nine professional and clerical personnel, the center provides in-service training for teachers and administrators, and a variety of consultant help in materials selection and program development. Mrs. Maria Swanson is director of the center.

The state superintendents department of gifted children also approved $101,000 to support activities of the North Suburban Area Service Center for Gifted Children which serves a six-county area in northeast Illinois. Marilyn Meissner is director of the gifted program with offices in Arlington Heights.

The center trains educators in techniques for teaching gifted children through consultant and workshop activities. It also maintains a library of materials suited for use with gifted children. An assistant director and clerical personnel comprise the center staff.

The cooperative's member districts are elementary and high schools in Wheeling, Palatine, Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights, River Trails, Schaumburg and Elk Grove Village.

Many Americans have long been ashamed of the "Kitty Genovese" image of citizen non-involvement. Miss Genovese was the attractive young woman who, in 1964, was pursued and stabbed to death by a lone killer while 38 of her neighbors in Key Gardens, N.Y., looked on sheepishly. More recently, a woman in Trenton, N.J., was beaten and raped while a dozen people stood 100 feet away without so much as speaking disapproval.

But the "new involvement," as it has already been faddishly termed, does have its critics. Police, while happy that people may be coming out of their cocoons, have cautioned citizen activists not to take the law into their own hands.

"Stopping a criminal is one thing," says a P.D. spokesman, "but kicking his teeth in is another. Police cannot act as judge and jury, so neither should regular citizens."

THE AMERICAN Civil Liberties Union, too, has voiced a bit of alarm. Barbara Shock of the New York chapter says that, technically, any citizen who beats up another, whether as a means of law deterrence or not, is liable to legal consequences.

"While it's commendable when citizens help in criminal apprehension, it becomes a problem when force is used. The situation could get out of hand and we could have mobs arresting and beating other people because they look different or they have different life styles. Clearly, we can't have untrained citizens roaming our cities as vigilantes."

So it goes in New York and elsewhere — another issue, another controversy. But in this case all the hopes and all the arguments may be for naught. The "new involvement?" A closer look suggests this is one trend that just ain't.

The incident on 134th Street, for example, was not at all as the reports assumed. None of it occurred, say the people on the block, in the name of community spirit.

COMMUNITY SPIRIT? On 134th Street? According to one resident of the area, Luis Figuera, "The only time people get together here is to go to the welfare office to get their check."

One-thirty-fourth, off Amsterdam Avenue, is in the heart of the Spanish Harlem ghetto. "Three kinds of people live here," says a cop, "bad people, pretty bad people and scared people."

The block is a crowded canyon among decrepit and often dangerous tenement apartments. Dog urine stains the stoops, drug pushers operate openly, women can be bought for $5 an hour. The trash collectors fear to tread, there is no cop on the beat and it is not far from the truth to say that strangers — especially whites — are not welcome after dark.

Jose Espinosa, an anti-poverty worker, says that the neighborhood consists of Puerto Ricans who don't like Dominicans, Dominicans who don't like Cubans and blacks who don't like anybody. "Very few people speak English. Many of them are in the country illegally. Welfare is a way of life. It is hard to get anyone to understand, much less cooperate."

IN THIS atmosphere, then, the police

On Williams dean's list

George D. Egan, Jr., a junior majoring in applied behavioral science at George Williams College, Downers Grove, Ill., was recently named to the dean's list.

Egan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Egan, 514 Debra Dr., Des Plaines.

version of the recent street killing is suspect. Indeed, residents say it didn't happen like the official version at all. Says Luis Figuera: "There was this guy who hated this family. He said a month ago he was going to kill them. So when the family had a party, this guy showed up and started shooting. He killed one boy and wounded two brothers. The brothers then fought back. Other people at the party joined in."

There was no spontaneous reaction in the neighborhood, Figuera says. "It was a family thing. Families stick together."

Disappointing? Of course. The American spirit is such today that it desperately needs something stimulating, something to be proud of, like a "new involvement." But it can't be found by hoping, not on 134th Street anyway, where community spirit is buried under neglected community need.

World Philatelic Exhibition in Poland to be honored

The U.S. Postal Service will issue a souvenir card honoring Polska '73, the World Philatelic Exhibition, being held in Poznan, Poland, Aug. 19 through Sept. 2.

The card, which is being printed by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, will be available for $1 each, plus a 50-cent handling charge per order, from "Polska Souvenir Card, Philatelic Sales Unit, Washington, D.C. 20036."

Polska '73 is the largest international exhibition ever held in Poland and philatelists from almost 100 countries will participate. It is being held in connection with events marking the 500th anniversary of Nicholas Copernicus.

The U.S. 8-cent Copernicus stamp and two stamps issued by the Polish Ministry of Posts and Telecommunications appear on the souvenir card.

Other souvenir cards currently on sale at the Philatelic Sales Unit are Belgium, Olympia-Philatelic and Ibra '73. They are $1 each plus a 50-cent handling charge per order.

Those high denomination tagged stamps, released April 3, were issued in an Postal Service expansion of phosphor stamp tagging which makes possible high speed facing and canceling of mail.

There was no conventional first day cancellation service on these stamps but the Postal Service did cancel some stamps on envelopes and hand them back across the counter at the FDR station in New York on April 3. The denominations included the 20-cent, 25-cent (in two forms — Paul Revere coil and the Frederick Douglass sheet stamp), 30-cent, 40-cent, 50-cent, $1 and $5.

TO L.A. of Rolling Meadows: the following stamp clubs are active in the area: The Northwest Suburban Stamp Club meets at 7:30 p.m. on the second Monday of the month at the Des Plaines Funeral Home, 1717 Rand Rd., Des Plaines.

The Northwest Philatelic Club meets at 7:30 p.m. on the first Tuesday and the Third Wednesday of the month at St. Mark's Youth Center, 205 W. Wille, Mount Prospect.

The Twinbrook Stamp Club meets at 7:30 p.m. on the second and fourth Friday of the month (except during June, July and August when the one monthly meeting is on the second Friday) at the Vogel's Park Administration Building, 650 W. Higgins Rd. (just west of Golf Road), Hoffman Estates.

Guests are welcome at all club meetings.

Send your questions to Stamp Notes, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Collecting Coins

by Mort Reed

In response to inquiries for a more understandable description of a Numistamp, the sketch illustration depicts a Type III United States Dime Numistamp commemorating the coin in the photograph. The word Numistamp is a contraction of the word numismatic prefixed to the word stamp, indicating the article is of a numismatic nature.

The perforation has absolutely nothing to do with its purpose other than to give a slightly decorative touch, but only the design properties found on the coin itself appear inside the border. The difference between the coin obverse displayed on the numistamp and the actual coin lies in its overall size. Each coin reproduction must measure no more nor less than one inch in diameter regardless of its legal size.

High relief of the central figure, which is much higher than the profile on the coin. Each of the 118 pieces is plated according to the finish of the coin represented. Large and small one-cent pieces are copper; five-cent pieces are nickel; dimes, quarters, half dollars and dollars are silver and gold coins are gold plated.

To enhance the Collectors Numistamp Type Set, each coin is dated the first year of issue and no mint marks are shown except in the case of the 1942-1945 Jefferson nickel, which did bear a large letter "P" above the dome of Monticello to show it was struck at the Philadelphia Mint.

On completion of the 118 general circulation coinage issues, United States Numistamp will produce a 50-piece set of United States commemorative coins issued between 1892 and 1951. Following the commemorative series, every effort will be made to issue all known rarities not previously included in 118 piece set.

IN RECENT WEEKS, United States Numistamp has issued the Type I and Type II Buffalo nickels dated 1913; the Type I 1938 Jefferson nickel and 1942 "Silver" Jefferson nickel with the Type I and Type II U.S. dimes dated 1897 and 1899 due to be released before Aug. 15. Added to the six-piece small cent series already concluded makes a total of 16 Numistamps finished. The balance will be minted at the rate of three per month until the first of the year when production will be stepped up to allow one Numistamp per week.

Interested readers may write United States Numistamps, 300 West National Road, Vandalia, Ohio 45377 for illustrated details. The price of each medal is $4.50 regardless of finish.

This, along with other preventative measures, insures against use for counterfeiting. The reverse design and inscription is obviously not available for such purposes since the issuing authority and denomination are placed on a horizontal plane rather than in radius as they would be seen on a coin.

EACH MEDAL measures 2 and one-fourth inch in length, 1 and three-eighths inch in width and approximately one-eighth inch thick when you include the

The Almanac

Today is Thursday, Aug. 16, the 228th day of 1973 and 137 to follow.
The moon is approaching its last quarter.
The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn.
The evening stars Venus and Jupiter.
Those born on this date are under the sign of Leo.
Robert Lingling, originator of the major circus world, was born Aug. 16, 1897.
On this day in history:
In 1896, gold was discovered in the Klondike region of Canada's Yukon Territory.
In 1948, baseball home run king Babe Ruth died in New York City of cancer.
In 1963, all 30 persons aboard died when a plane crashed and sank in Lake Michigan.
In 1971, New York stocks broke a 179-year price and volume record in an upward response to President Nixon's wage-price-rant freeze announced the day before.
A thought for the day:
American naturalist John Burroughs said, "Time does not become sacred until we have lived it."

The Hollywood Scene...by Vernon Scott

TV-cinema caste system hard to beat

HOLLYWOOD — The caste system in motion picture-television employment is more clearly defined among directors than it is even for actors.
If a television director decides to try movies he's out of luck.
Producers have refined the distinction among directors further by separating them into dramatic and comedy categories.
A PRIME example is a youthful and excellent director named Jerry London who has been at the helm of "Hogan's Heroes," "Love, American Style," and "The Brady Bunch," to name a few.
"But when I wanted to direct a 'Man-nix' episode or other dramatic shows the producers would ask to see some of my dramatic work on film," London said unhappily.
"Moving from the tube to movies is the toughest step in show business. It's impossible. Yet producers say they are looking for new, young talent. They won't let you get away from the stigma of situation comedy."
With nowhere to go but more sitcoms, London, together with "Brady Bunch" producer Lloyd Schwartz, raised $700,000 to make their own motion picture, "Goodnight Jackie."
THE FILM was shot in 17 days on location in various parts of Los Angeles.
"We didn't take any salaries ourselves," said London. "Our actors worked for scale and a piece of the profits or deferred payments."

Schwartz said, "Our cast includes Wendell Burton, Lana Wood, Jim Backus and Tina Holland. They're all professionals who know what they're doing."
"We were able to work fast because most of our crew was picked from television craftsmen we'd both worked with before. Fortunately we made the picture during the television hiatus, so they were all available."
"MY APARTMENT was used for one of the locations. We supplied our own wardrobes and shot at the houses of friends."
"Wendell decorated one bedroom for a scene with things from his own house. We cut corners wherever we could, but made sure we didn't give that feeling on the screen."
Neither man has illusions that the finished product will rank with "The Godfather" as a boxoffice hit. But the partners are convinced they have an entertaining, quality picture nonetheless.
"It will appeal to young people," said Schwartz. "They're the ones who go to the movies. And it is something you can't see on television."
LONDON HAS more at stake than simply making a good movie for profit.
"I think we have the ingredients of success," he said. "This picture will help convince the guys who ask to see some of my dramatic work. I can run this picture off for them the next time I ask 'Room 222' for a chance to direct one of their episodes."

"If the picture does well, we can easily borrow money for another," Schwartz said.
London grinned, "I'll say this, making a picture is a lot easier than doing television."

The patients in pediatrics

Hospitals try hard to allay their fears

by KAREN THOMPSON

Pink, blue and animal printed miniature sleeper pajamas, Peanuts characters, Mickey Mouse and Wizard of Oz murals are just a few of the added touches area hospitals use to allay the fears of little ones entering the hospital for the first time.

Through past experience, hospital officials have become more aware of the difficult adjustment a child must make when admitted to a hospital. The trend has been slow and has just taken hold the past 10 years.

The experience is frightening and alien to children and area pediatrics staffs are seeking ways to ease these uncomfortable feelings.

"A child needs to be treated as a whole person. You can't just treat a leg or cure a disease without taking into account the child's entire environment — his family, his personality, his experiences and his feelings," said Dr. Seymour Metrick, chairman of the division of pediatrics at Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge.

ILLNESS AND hospitalization present a stressful situation and the most trying factor is separation — from family, friends and home environment.

Hospitals in the area have introduced myriad special programs to create an atmosphere of warmth and hominess for convalescent children.

The Arlington Heights Woman's Club has just finished a new playroom at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights. The room, decorated with hand-painted murals of Peanuts characters, holds toys, games and books by the boxfuls just waiting to be picked up by the tots in the ward.

"We show the kids the playroom first," said Mrs. M. Stafford, head pediatrics nurse at Northwest. One of the doctor's wives will soon be redecorating the ward.

CANDY STRIPERS and aides play games with the children, paying special attention to those confined to their rooms.

The character of the ward could easily be sensed by watching one little girl, hospitalized for several weeks and quite familiar with the ward, as she sat chatting with the nurses complete with her own "authentic paper" nurse's cap and doctor's case.

Nearly recovered and ready to go home, the energetic 7-year-old followed the aides around the nurses' station aiming to shoot them with her mini "hypodermic" needle and paste Band-aides wherever they might land.

"We restock the refrigerator three times a day," said Mrs. Stafford. Hospitalization doesn't seem to hamper young appetites and tonsilectomy patients, especially, find Popsicles and ice cream the best throat soothers. The pediatrics ward at Northwest has recently been doubled in size.

PLAY FOR THE pediatrics patient represents the child's real world. "Play is essential to the mental well-being of the child," said Patricia Anderson, pediatric clinical specialist at Lutheran General Hospital. "It is his media for self-expression, for mastery of new experiences and for meeting his social and intellectual needs. It is the child's work," she said.

Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village is awaiting the arrival of Brother Valentine White, an artist from the California order who will completely redecorate the pediatrics ward.

Known for his giant circus wagon approach at the Alexian Brothers Hospital in San Jose, Calif., Brother White will begin work here in early fall.

Director of the activities at Alexian Brothers is Mrs. Mary Shallcross, known affectionately in the ward as the play lady. "I've been called everything from game warden to play girl," said the soft-spoken mother of 11 children.

WHEN ASKED about special moments or memories in her work as play lady, Mrs. Shallcross said, "Every day is a special day for me here in the pediatrics ward." She was formerly head of the Alexian hospital day care center for five years.

Mrs. A. Kosin, head pediatrics nurse, explained the hospital's philosophy of familiarizing children. "We answer their questions as truthfully and simply as possible. If they are going to get a shot, they know they are going to get a shot. Kids can't be fooled. We also stress freedom of movement about the ward," she said.

Alex the Puppet welcomes children to Alexian Brothers and he acquaints new patients with the procedures at the hospital. Also entertaining the tots are child care technicians, carolers at holiday time, assorted clowns, magicians and ventriloquists.

The nutritionist at Alexian is now preparing a special menu for the tots in pediatrics. "Finger foods" will be the theme, and it will cater to the kids' food preference, but at the same time be nutritional.

MRS. KOSIN recently received a heartwarming donation from a trio of girls in the Elk Grove Village area who gave a carnival with benefits to go to the hospital children's ward. Accompanying the $3.41 was a note explaining that "We strived to make $10 but . . ." The nurses will buy new toys for the playroom with the donation.

Decorated with Mickey Mouse caricatures, the playroom at Alexian Brothers holds stacks of games, rows of books and what Mrs. Shallcross calls the "junk cart" situated in the middle of the room. "The playroom is theirs and we don't mind the mess," she said. "They must be free to be creative at their work-play."

Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines sponsors tours of its facilities on Saturdays for presurgical orientation. Parents and children learn how the hospital operates and what the day-to-day routine entails.

Mrs. Dolores Szatkowski, head pediatrics nurse, has many plans for the pediatrics ward including a new corkboard for the display of art work by hospitalized children in the near future, and further off, introductory kits for new patients when they arrived for their stay.

THE REFRIGERATOR at Holy Family is well stocked with juice, Popsicles, ice cream and Kool-aid for the hungry tots. New cribs are the most recent addition to the children's ward at the hospital.

One of the frontrunners in modern pediatric medicine is Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge.

Innovations abound at Lutheran General. One of the newest, just six months old, is total involvement of parents. Working on the premise that a "child's recovery is helped by his parents' presence," the hospital encourages mom and dad to be at the hospital to take part in the care of their child.

"The mother is the ego strength of the child," said Miss Anderson.

PARENTS OF convalescent children are invited to bi-weekly information sessions aimed at enabling parents to express their feelings and share those feelings with other families.

"Giving support and information to groups of parents of children having surgery reduces the children's anxiety about hospitalization," according to research done at Lutheran General by Dr. Rodney Landes, formerly on the hospital staff.

"This research has shown that 'treating' parents (informing them about what's involved in hospitalization) enables them to better prepare their children and, thereby, lessen their anxiety," his studies report.

Another way the emotional trauma of hospitalization is being eased at Lutheran General is through the presurgery puppet program.

ALEX THE PUPPET entertains James Bulwa, 4, and Christy Moats, 22 months, at Alexian Brothers Medical Center. Mrs. Mary Shallcross has as much fun as the little ones in her role as play lady at the hospital.

Suburban Living

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

APPREHENSIVE CHILDREN get a taste of what is ahead for them when they are admitted to Lutheran General Hospital. Mrs. Sharon Matulis, teacher and play activities coordinator, uses puppets to get the point across and make hospitalization a bit less frightening for tykes.

PEANUTS AND the Gang look on as Mrs. David Meeker helps Ken McAuley build towers. The new playroom, at Northwest Community Hospital, was donated by the Arlington Heights Women's Club and Mrs. Meeker painted the murals on the walls.

An Acapulco honeymoon for July 14 newlyweds

Mrs. David R. Burdette

After a week's honeymoon in Acapulco, Mexico, Linda Jean Blandford and David Robert Burdette are making their home in Glenview where David is stationed with the U.S. Navy.

Married July 14 in Faith Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights, Linda is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blandford, 256 Redwood Ave., Elk Grove Village, and David, who has been making his home in Wheeling, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Burdette, Charleston, W. Va.

The 5 p.m., double ring service was followed by a reception for 150 at Henri's O'Hare Inn.

Linda chose an apricot, ivory and brown color scheme for her wedding, and her sister, Karen Ann Blandford, as maid of honor.

HER FIVE BRIDESMAIDS were the groom's sister, Beverly Burdette, Charleston; Katie Young, Des Plaines; Maureen Kohnke and Linda Wheeler, Elk Grove Village; and Linda Keith, Hoffman Estates.

Mat Peyatte, Charleston, was best man, and ushers were the bride's brother, Mike Blandford, Elk Grove, and Kemp Clifton, Steve Howard, Chris Lajiness and Nathaniel Bivalacqua, all of Glenview.

A graduate of Elk Grove High School, Linda is employed in Des Plaines by the Richardson Co. David is a graduate of a Charleston high school.

Sept. 19 is day for love

Sept. 19 is a very special day for love in the Robert Fabian family. Karen Patricia Fabian met William Edward Wells on a blind date on that day in 1970, the same date as her parents' wedding anniversary and the day they met.

And on July 28 Karen and William were married at Immanuel Lutheran Church in Des Plaines. The couple's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Fabian 55 Michael Road, Des Plaines, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Wells of Joliet.

For the double ring ceremony the bride chose a gown of white organza featuring an Empire bodice, long sleeves, scoop neck and A-line skirt trimmed in white Venise lace and appliques. A cathedral-length veil in matching lace and a bouquet of white carnations, stephanotis, baby's breath and yellow and white roses completed her ensemble.

MAID OF HONOR for the 5:30 p.m. rite was a Leslie Guenver of Arlington Heights. She preceded the bride down the aisle in a floor-length gown of yellow voile accented by a tiny border of white cotton lace around the Bertha collar and double ruffled cap sleeves. She wore a pale yellow picture hat and carried a cascade of white daisies, yellow carnations and yellow stephanotis.

Sisters of the bride, Sharon and Robin, both of Des Plaines, served as bridesmaids and were attired identically to the maid of honor.

Dressed in a princess-style long dress with a high neck, long sleeves and a pinafore was flower girl Laurie Vance, 6, cousin of the bride from Wildwood, Ill. Her dress was fashioned of yellow puckered seersucker with a ruffled sash at the bottom and a pinafore of yellow and white dotted swiss. She carried a basket of yellow carnations, yellow stephanotis and white daisies.

Luncheon for ORT

Twin Acres Chapter of Women's American ORT (Organization for Rehabilitation through Training) will hold a re-enrollment luncheon next Wednesday at the home of Sheila Brownstein, 920 Westbourne Lane, Buffalo Grove.

The meal will be served at 12:30 p.m. A drawing follows for all enrolled members.

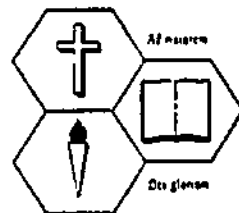

The groom's brother, Robert, of Rockville, Ind., was best man and ushers were Russell Meifert and James Fritz, both of Joliet.

Following a reception for 140 guests at Heuer's in Rosemont, the newlyweds left for Charleston, S.C., where William is stationed in the air force.

Karen is a 1972 graduate of Elk Grove High School and attended Western Illinois University. She was employed at Wieboldt's Distribution Center prior to her marriage. The groom is a 1972 graduate of Joliet East High School.

Potting Shed

If you watch old movies on TV, the county fair conjures up thoughts of young love, corn feeds, sheep shearing, outsize flowers and bursts of song.

What person with bovine interests could resist going to a fair, especially when it happens under her nose? So here I was — Sheepishly clutching my floral entry, rather embarrassed to be competing for ribbons. I reasoned that I must have had a deprived youth — void of 4-H and Girl Scouts — and was now trying to relive it. (I always thought a "Brownie" was something to eat.)

The county agent was there, smiling and fixing a pesticide display; a slowpoke driving a car with the bumper sticker, "I'm glad to be a farmer"; chubby little ladies entering cookies and things in the pastry competition; carnival hucksters; and sheaths of wheat, oats and alfalfa sitting next to paper plates of snap beans and lettuce anxious to wither in the summer heat.

EVERY TIME I go to a flower show, I always marvel at how the entries get so big at the right time. These showmen either have an awful lot of flowers or they rifle the gardens of neighbors who do.

I knew I should never have poked my nose out of the terrarium exhibit I was setting up. But I wanted to see what other folks were entering. The begonia category was my Waterloo.

I still had an atomizer filled with water in my hand from sprucing up my glass garden, when my eye caught a most unusual begonia. It was white with a single, huge petal that looked like a cymbidium orchid, and out of the top of the petal was a flutter of pink fibrous begonias flowers.

Then I caught sight of a potted tuberous begonia with a stem the size of a table leg and massive cascades of six-inch across blossoms.

WITHOUT THINKING, I flicked some dirt off one huge bloom and when it resisted, I instinctively started spraying it with my water atomizer. Then I held it up and sprayed it until the stubborn soil particles dripped onto the floor in a puddle of water.

At that, an official-looking lady walked over to me and demanded, "WHAT are you doing?"

Suddenly I realized what I was doing. In the flower show world, this was tantamount to breaking and entering, shoplifting, cracking a safe or knocking over Monte Carlo. Eek! I felt like a Hobbit.

"I was just spraying this flower," I replied, in the smallest voice possible, looking around for a hole in which to crawl.

The lady looked at my atomizer like it was "Sudden Death" I was spraying on the flowers.

"I knew this entry deserved first place, but it would never measure up with all that dirt on it," I tried to explain.

"Is it yours?"

"NO, BUT I have one at home just like it."

"Why," the lady said, "are you tampering with somebody else's entry, and don't tell me the devil made you do it."

If I never go to the county fair again — and they probably won't let me in again — I hope that anyone reading this column who may be possessed to enter a flower show remembers to enter a groomed bloom.

The Arlington Heights Public Library has a book called, "Growing for Showing," somewhere on its shelves. It outlines the standards for entering flower shows. It reminds showmen only to enter their best or none at all. Get the book. Read it. Follow directions. Who knows but that you might save some overzealous showgoer from being kicked out on her ear!

The Consumer

by Monica Wilch

Complaint centers for consumers' auto repair gripes are being established by auto dealers in seven cities across the country as an experimental project. But Chicago is not one of the cities.

At the urging of Virginia Knaauer, the President's consumer adviser, the National Association of Automobile Dealers and the Automotive Trade Association Managers are helping state associations set up the complaint centers.

However, the project is strictly voluntary, according to Alan Mariette of the NAAD, and auto dealers in Illinois opted not to do it.

Mariette said the metropolitan Chicago auto dealers declined to set up such a center because "they already have a and, if they don't, they are subject to pressure from that organization as well as from their peers.

This is essentially the same principle on which the auto complaint centers will operate, according to Mariette. Dealers will not be bound to the panel's decision, but he added, "it (peer pressure) works."

HOWEVER, BOTH Mariette and Baumhart conceded that there is not much their organizations can do if peer pressure fails. In other words, there are still virtually no remedies for thousands of frustrated auto owners short of a costly legal battle. (Nearly 3,000 contacted the Chicago BBB last year.) Their only hope continues to be that the dealer will be in a conciliatory mood, or that he fears the disapproval of other dealers.

In one recent case in the northwest suburbs, however, a dealer refused to do anything about a defective used car it sold to an 18-year-old Des Plaines girl, and also refused to assume any responsibility for negligent repair work subsequently performed on the car.

This dealer had made no response whatever to four of eight previous complaints filed with the Better Business Bureau, and had failed to explain or settle two of the remaining four complaints. (The Consumer, March 22.)

A CONSUMER handbook detailing how to select and care for all major appliances is available from the Major Appliance Consumer Action Panel, 20 N. Wacker Dr., Chicago, 60606, for 50 cents.

MACAP is sponsored by the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers, the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association and the National Retail Merchants Association.

The booklet is a relatively objective compilation prepared by experts in consumer affairs, family economics and engineering, culled from universities and government agencies.

While this booklet gives useful general information about all major appliances — things to consider in selecting an appliance, how to maintain it — anyone in the market for an appliance would still do well to check either Consumer Reports or Consumer Guide for evaluations of particular brands and models.

Peer pressure used to satisfy auto complaints complaint-handling program there through the Better Business Bureau."

The "program" referred to by Mariette is not a special agreement, according to James Baumhart, director of operations for the Chicago BBB. Rather, it is simply the normal procedure by which the BBB handles complaints against members of any trade group.

HOWEVER, the BBB does have a special auto trade committee composed of four auto dealers who "provide us with expertise" in the handling of auto complaints, Baumhart said.

When consumers file an auto complaint with the BBB, Baumhart explained, it is "brought to the attention of the dealer." If the problem is not settled, it is turned over to the special committee.

Since the Chicago Automobile Trade Association is a member of the BBB, all of its members are associate members of the BBB. Thus, they are expected to measure up to the standards of the BBB

Sun can hurt

Many diseases are worsened by exposure to sunlight. These include cold sores or shingles (viral herpes simplex) and the relatively minor venereal disease, lymphogranuloma venereum.

"The children are introduced to the hospital and hospital procedures through the use of puppets which were made by the Service League to look like a doctor, nurse, boy and girl. Since most children have some fear and apprehension about going into the hospital, it is hoped that this program will help to allay these fears," Mrs. Sharon Matulonis, teacher and play activities coordinator, said.

"I GIVE THE children some idea of what to expect when they are admitted to the hospital. I talk about admitting procedures, blood tests, getting x-rays, anesthesia, surgery and how the children will feel before and after," she explained.

The pediatrics staff at Lutheran General has developed a very sophisticated therapeutic play program.

"Through play, the child can find an outlet for his emotions," Mrs. Matulonis said. The children are encouraged to play out their fears after surgery using operating dolls — bandaging them up, putting casts on, giving shots and wheeling them back to their rooms.

"The idea is to find out how they interpret the hospital environment," said Mrs. Matulonis.

Also encouraged are motor activities such as the bean bag throw and bowling to get the kids out of bed and active again. A willingness to play shows that the child is feeling better.

A MULTI-DISCIPLINARY approach, in which a team sets goals for each patient, is used at Lutheran General. "We try to share and plan together for the good of the patient," said Miss Anderson.

In the working stages is an attempt to institute a serial growth program where one nurse works with the same child and is better able to detect progress and growth. "We try to anticipate what each individual child will be going through and gear a program especially for him," said Miss Anderson.

Garbed in baggy pants, suspenders and carrying a suitcase full of surprises, Dean Weiss, vice president of the State Bank in Lake Zurich, spends part of his day off each week entertaining the children at Lutheran General Hospital. Dino the Clown like hundreds of other dedicated pediatrics personnel and volunteers works daily to make the stay in the hospital just a little bit less frightening for tykes experiencing the dilemma for the first time.

Romance has no ceiling

Janene Johnson

The engagement of Janene Louise Johnson to Carl Eugene Johnson, son of the Carl W. Johnsons of 1431 Gloria Drive, Palatine, is announced by her parents, Mrs. Dorothy Johnson, 1501 Churchill Drive, Palatine, and William D. Johnson of Chicago.

Their marriage is set for Nov. 24 in the First United Methodist Church of Palatine.

The young couple work for Ohm/Elctronics in Palatine. Janene graduated from Fremd High School in 1970 and her fiance from Palatine High in '68. Carl then attended the University of Illinois and plans to resume his studies there next January.

Linden Finegan

Mr. and Mrs. Byron P. Finegan of Andover Road, Long Grove, announce the engagement of their daughter, Linden Anne, to John Barton Simonson, son of Mrs. Raymond Simonson of Woodberry Road, Barrington, and the late Mr. Simonson. A winter wedding is planned.

A '69 graduate of Palatine High School, Linden studied at the University of Valencia in Spain and graduated this spring from Millikin University, Decatur, Ill. She is an expert manager at Innotron in Lake Zurich.

John Graduated in '69 from Barrington High, studied at Iowa State University, Ames, and works for Ozite Corp., Libertyville.

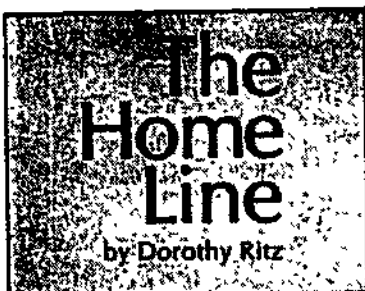

Marianne Brown

Marianne Brown of Arlington Heights and Stanley M. Eden Jr. of Coventry, R.I., are engaged and planning an April 6, 1974 wedding.

Marianne's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond C. Brown of 415 N. Arlington Heights Road, are making the announcement. Her fiance is the son of the Stanley Edens of Coventry.

A graduate of Arlington High School and Quincy College, the bride-to-be works for Charles A. Stevens, Woodfield. Since attending Rhode Island Junior College, Stan is in the U.S. Navy stationed in Rota, Spain.

Dear Dorothy: I was given a lovely, lacy-looking plastic tablecloth as a wedding gift. Between several moves and storages, the cloth has some ugly red spots. I've tried pure bleach, strong detergents and have had no luck at all with the stains. Do you or your readers know what else I might try?—Bonnie Mason

Stains on plastic materials are chancy things and what you have used has probably complicated matters. I hope you are living in a place safe from marauders. If so, wash the cloth and hang it outdoors for 24 hours.

Dew, night air and sunshine the next day are supposed to have almost magical effects on stains. I do know that doll hospitals recommend leaving stained vinyl dolls outdoors until the stains are gone. Your cloth seems worth such a try.

Dear Dorothy: When I buy a room rug runner, they come folded and, when on the floor, the fold or crease will not come out. I've tried steaming and wetting the crease but it still bends up at the fold. Any ideas?—Bernice Y. Barnes

Only one thing left to do — paste a heavy tape to the underpart of the crease. It will finally straighten out.

Dear Dorothy: Can I use coffee cans for freezing?—Rhoda P.

They can be used for any type of food. Be sure that they are washed and rinsed thoroughly, then left to air-dry so the coffee odor is completely gone. Then use freezer tape to seal the lid on.

Dear Dorothy: I find that rubbing alcohol cleans the outside of the stove beautifully — grease and dirt are gone. I also use it on the counters and the outside of the refrigerator.—Pat B.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Prospect High graduates are married

Prospect High School graduates Linda Sue Christiansen and James Ronald Underwood were married July 22 and are now making their home in a Wheeling apartment after a 10-day honeymoon in Hawaii.

Linda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Christiansen, 428 S. Waterman, Arlington Heights, also studied a year at Valparaiso University, Valparaiso, Ind., and is now employed by Illinois Tool Works, Inc., Chicago.

James, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Underwood, who moved in June from Mount Prospect to Gulfport, Fla., studied at Harper College. He is now with General Fire Extinguisher Corp., Northbrook.

The couple's wedding was held at 4 p.m. in Faith Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights. Linda chose a white organza gown embroidered with Venice lace and daisies for the double ring service. The gown was made with fitted bodice, belled sleeves and tight cuffs and a circular skirt with long train trimmed in daisy motif.

Her flowers were a cascade of white

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Underwood

orchids and stephanotis.
CYNTHIA CHRISTIANSEN, Arlington Heights, was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Marylou Barrett, Mount Prospect, Sheryl Zika, Chicago, sister of the groom, and Gretchen Mitchell, Arlington Heights.

All wore flower prints in orange, yellow and blue on a white organza background. The gowns were made with ruffled scooped necklines and the bodices were trimmed in yellow velvet ribbon. The girls wore picture hats, Cynthia's in orange, the others in yellow, and all carried nosegays of orange roses, white daisies, yellow carnations and baby's breath.

The bride's 3-year-old sister, Anita, was flower girl wearing a gown like the brides. She carried a small basket of the same flowers.

Jack Schultz, Long Grove, was best man, and ushers were Brian Adair, and the groom's brother, Jeffrey Underwood, Mount Prospect, and the bride's brothers, Jack, Elk Grove and Richard, Arlington Heights.

The service was followed by a dinner reception for 150 at Nordic Hills Country Club, Racine.

A '52 nickel in Nancy Nicoll's shoe

When Nancy Nicoll became the bride of Thomas E. Mahon she wore a keepsake sixpence and a namesake 1952 nickel in her shoe.

Nancy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Nicoll, 111 N. Pine St., Mount Prospect, and Tom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mahon, Hoffman Estates, met at Harper College Ski Club. When spring arrived their friendship didn't thaw but blossomed into romance, and on July 21 they were married in St. Raymond's Church, Mount Prospect.

For the 2 p.m., double ring service and as a gift to the church, Nancy and Tom had made a symbolic banner that read

"No longer two, but one."

Nancy designed and made her own wedding gown of dotted whipped cream crepe with intricate, lace-edged neckline, sheer bodice edged in lace, and sheer, billowy sleeves with lace ruffled cuffs.

AN EMPIRE waist and deep lace-edged ruffle at the hemline completed the country-style gown which she wore with an elbow-length veil and lace crown. On her petticoat was lace that belonged to her great-grandmother.

Her flowers were Starburst mums, bachelor buttons, daisies, baby's breath and ivy carried in a natural wicker basket.

Marcey Mangan, Arlington Heights, was Nancy's only attendant, wearing a gown fashioned by Mrs. Nicoll. Of dotted, flower garden pink plaid, Marcey's country-styled gown featured a sweetheart neckline and deep, ruffled hemline. Her carnations, daisies, bachelor buttons and baby's breath were carried in a white basket, and she wore a white picture hat.

WILLIAM LEMKE, Hoffman Estates, was best man, and usher was Nancy's brother, David Nicoll, Mount Prospect.

A reception was held at the Mount Prospect Holiday Inn where guests admired more of Nancy's handiwork. She made the decoration for the top of the wedding cake and also the molded sugar bells which were edged in pastel colors.

The newlyweds honeymooned in the East and in Canada and are now residing in their new home in Hoffman Estates. The new Mrs. Mahon is a graduate of Prospect High School and the groom is a graduate of Conant High School. Both studied at Harper from which Tom was graduated. He is now with Kraft Foods, Glenview, and Nancy clerks in Mount Prospect.

EVERYBODY STOPS
HERALD WANT ADS!

It's Easy To Write A Good WANT AD!

Lots of people get confused when it comes to writing a Want Ad. Do you? If so, here are a few simple rules to make ad writing easy. A good ad is just conversation in print. So when you're preparing to place an ad, just write it the way you'd tell your neighbor about it.

Why Leave Them Guessing?

What do you want to sell or buy? Is it an appliance, what's the brand?
What's the size or capacity? Model? Year? Any accessories included? Does it need repair, or is it ready to use? Now put yourself in the buyer's position. If you were reading this ad, what would you like to know? Price? By all means, put that in. In nearly every ad, price is the most important information. Anything else missing? If so, fill in those blanks, too. All clear, now.
OK, just a few more little points.

Ordering Is Easy

Just write the Herald Classified Department or come in and see us at 114 West
Campbell, Arlington Heights.

Don't Cut Off Your Own Nose

Once the ad has been completed, read it over. It's time to eliminate a word here and there, but don't "edit" it to the point where the reader may have to guess at the meaning.
You might save a few pennies and lose dollars in results.

The Heck With It

If any of this seems complicated don't lose your grip. You can still place your ad. Just pick up your telephone and dial 394-2400. We have 8 lines to serve you, with an experienced ad writer on each one waiting to help you.

AND EVERYTHING NICE ABOUT FOOD

SALAD DAYS

Salads can make the meal, especially when you collect an attractive variety of them on a party table for a salad buffet. The selection can include appetizers and main dish salads, as well as salad desserts. The salad buffet is an interesting alternative to entertaining with a traditional meal, and it offers solutions to two traditional problems as well. How can you spend more time with your guests? Plan a salad buffet and complete most of your preparations before they arrive. How can you trim food costs for entertaining? Choose to serve a salad buffet in which you can utilize less expensive sources of protein.

The colorful array pictured features a Marinated Vegetable Medley to launch your salad-eating adventure. Beginning with a savory salmon mold, the entree salads, including a Gourmet Garden Salad of the tossed vegetable variety, and Sea Shell Macaroni Salad, a hearty main dish salad with tuna, offer an interesting variety of flavor and texture. On the sweet side, for dessert, there are Al Fresco Salad with a sweet Refreshing Dressing and Lemonade-Lime Souffle, a molded beauty enhanced with cream cheese and mayonnaise.

Marinated Vegetable Medley

|----------------------------|---|
| 3 cups zucchini slices | 1 8-oz. bottle Italian or Caesar dressing |
| 3 cups mushroom slices | Natural Swiss cheese, cut in strips |
| 1/2 cup green onion slices | Summer sausage, cut in strips |
| 1 cup pitted ripe olives | |

Combine zucchini, mushrooms, green onion and olives. Pour dressing over vegetables. Cover; marinate in refrigerator 3 to 4 hours, stirring occasionally. Serve on lettuce-covered platter with cheese and sausage. 6 to 8 servings.

Snappy Salmon Mold

- | | |
|--------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin | 1/2 cup dairy sour cream |
| 1 1/2 cups cold water | 1 1-lb. can salmon, drained, flaked |
| 1 cup salad dressing | 1 cup chopped celery |
| 1/2 cup French dressing | |

Soften gelatin in cold water; stir over low heat until dissolved. Cool. Combine salad dressing, French dressing and sour cream. Stir in gelatin; chill until slightly thickened. Fold in salmon and celery; pour into 1 1/2-quart mold, brushed with salad dressing. Chill until firm; unmold. Garnish with endive, if desired. 5 to 6 servings.

Sea Shell Macaroni Salad

- | | |
|--|-----------------------------|
| 3 cups (10-ozs.) shell macaroni, cooked, drained | 1/2 cup green onion slices |
| 1 7-oz. can tuna, drained, flaked | 1/4 cup sweet pickle relish |
| 1/2 cup celery slices | 1 tablespoon mustard |
| 4 hard-cooked eggs, chopped | 1 teaspoon salt |
| | 1 1/4 cup salad dressing |

Combine macaroni, tuna, eggs, celery, green onion, relish, mustard, salt and dressing; mix lightly. Press mixture into a 1 1/2-quart bowl. Chill 3 to 4 hours. Unmold; serve on a lettuce-covered plate. Garnish with hard-cooked egg slices, tomato wedges and green onion pieces, if desired. 6 to 8 servings.

Gourmet Garden Salad

- | | |
|--------------------|-------------------------------------|
| Iceberg lettuce | Crisply cooked bacon, crumbled |
| Curly endive | Sharp natural Cheddar cheese, cubed |
| Green pepper rings | Thousand Island Dressing |
| Tomato wedges | |

Combine lettuce, endive, green pepper, tomato, bacon and cheese; toss lightly. Serve with dressing.

Al Fresco Fruit Salad

- | | |
|-------------------------|---|
| 2 bananas, sliced | 1 13-1/4-oz. can pineapple tidbits, drained |
| 1 cup strawberry halves | 2 cantaloupes, cut in thirds |
| 1 cup blueberries | Refreshing Dressing |

Combine bananas, strawberries, blueberries and pineapple; mix lightly. Spoon fruit mixture onto cantaloupe. Top with:

Refreshing Dressing

- | | |
|--------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| 1/2 cup mayonnaise | 1/4 cup slivered almonds, toasted |
| 1/2 cup shredded coconut | 1/2 cup heavy cream, whipped |

Fold mayonnaise, coconut and almonds into whipped cream. 2 cups. 6 servings.

Lemonade-Lime Souffle

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|---------------------------|
| 1 3-oz. pkg. lemon flavored gelatin | 1 cup mayonnaise |
| 1 3-oz. pkg. lime flavored gelatin | 1 8-oz. pkg. cream cheese |
| 2 cups boiling water | 4 egg whites |
| 1 cup lemonade | 1/2 cup sugar |

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add lemonade. Combine mayonnaise and softened cream cheese, mixing until well blended. Gradually blend in gelatin mixture; chill until slightly thickened. Beat eggs until soft peaks form. Gradually add sugar, beating until stiff peaks form. Fold egg whites into gelatin mixture. Wrap a 3-inch collar of aluminum foil around top of 1-quart souffle dish or six to eight 1/4 cup dessert dishes; secure with tape. Pour mixture into dish; chill until firm. Remove foil collar before serving. Garnish with lime slices, if desired. 6 to 8 servings.

Dinner on the patio

She entertains in traditional style

by LOIS SEILER

An appetizing menu that is perfect for the patio or indoor dining has been shared with readers by Esther Taylor of Arlington Heights. Her favorite recipes can be used year-round and reflect the family's life style.

"I find that in setting a table, preparing food, decorating your house and how you dress, you are building a picture that represents you and how you wish to communicate with the people in your environment," Esther said.

"Our life style tends towards the traditional, and this feeling is conveyed throughout our home and in the way we entertain. The meal is meant to blend with the evening, rather than dominate it."

When the weather permits, the Taylors patio provides a pleasant setting for dinner parties. To relax their guests, Esther's husband, Jay, serves cocktail sherry and their friends help themselves to an appealing array of appetizers. Included in the assortment is a tasty chicken liver pate, cheese marinated onions and pickled carrots surrounded by crisp crackers. Esther has small cocktail trays, tiny plates and cocktail forks and napkins available for the convenience of her guests.

ALL CAN BE prepared in advance and the onions and carrots will keep well for days. Men especially enjoy spreading the pate on crackers and topping it with the blue-cheese flavored onions, and the spicy carrots are a nice flavor contrast.

During the cocktail hour the entree and side dishes have been slowly cooking and are ready to be served. Boned chicken breasts in wine sauce can be baked in the oven or cooked outdoors on the grill.

"I try to keep the cooking as simple as possible, relying on quality products to bring out the full flavor of each dish," Esther said.

She selects chicken pieces with little fat and solid white meat, coats them with egg and dry onion soup mix, wraps each individually in foil and adds sherry before sealing the foil to form a boat shaped like a gondola. "The sherry keeps the chicken moist and the onion adds a subtle flavor," Esther said.

Served with the chicken on a buffet table are a tomato dish, mushroom and rice casserole and spinach and mushroom salad. All complement the entree as well as each other in color and texture.

THE TAYLORS have an extensive vegetable garden, so the onions and carrots used for appetizers are picked fresh and Esther cans her own tomatoes for use in the side dish. However, she assures us it is also delicious made with the commercially canned variety.

Although this good cook prefers plain white rice or natural brown to serve with the chicken, the savory mushroom and rice casserole frees her from the kitchen to spend more time with her guests. Only the dressing for the spinach salad needs last-minute attention — a quick mix in the blender before being tossed with the greens. The salad provides the necessary color contrast and crispness to this meal, and soft rolls or sour dough bread may be included as extras.

The Taylors' travels abroad for five months last year with their daughter, Lauren, 11, taught them that expensive wines are not always the best tasting ones.

"It is more important that the flavor blends with the foods you are serving," Esther said. "A proper combination of wines and meat can be a true delight." Jay recommends a dry white Rhine wine to serve with this meal.

THIS ADVENTURE in pleasurable dining is completed with refreshing lemon ice and a vanilla wafer and heavily-bodied Caffe Noir or regular coffee, if you prefer. The final gesture of the Taylors hospitality is an after-dinner cordial served in the relaxed atmosphere of the living room or family room.

In addition to her interest in cooking, Esther's main hobby is studying history. She is a member of the Service League for Handicapped Children and Our Lady of the Wayside Women's Club.

Tea has new image

A "little old ladies" drink. The advent of instant tea has changed that image, according to the Tea Council of the U.S.

Iced tea, especially in the younger age brackets, has become a full-fledged part of the beverage revolution which now sees cold drinks served all year long, the council said.

Household hints

To protect against bursting and release of hot fats and juices inside cooking bags, coat inside of the bag or wrap with at least one tablespoon flour, suggests the consumer panel of National Family Opinion Inc.

Frozen fruits thaw easily if left overnight on a shelf in the refrigerator.

Evaporated milk will whip easily only when it is icy cold. If it does not whip stiff, it can be re-chilled and whipped again.

BEFORE GUESTS arrive for a patio dinner party, Mrs. Jay Taylor has daughter Lauren test the Tomato Casserole side dish. With it Esther Taylor is serving Mushrooms and Rice (front casserole), Boned Chicken Breasts in Wine Boats and a tossed Spinach and Mushroom Salad. The Arlington Heights hostess prefers traditional menus but ones simple to prepare.

CHICKEN LIVER PATE

1 pound chicken livers
1/3 cup butter
1/3 cup chopped celery
1/3 cup chopped onion
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 hard-cooked egg

Saute livers for a few minutes in butter. Add celery and onions and saute until soft. Add seasonings. Put through food grinder. Put through grinder again adding egg the second time. Chill for at least one hour. Serve with crackers.

CHEESE MARINATED ONIONS

3 ounces bleu cheese
1/2 cup salad oil
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon sugar
Dash of pepper
Dash of paprika
4 medium onions, thinly sliced (about 4 cups)
Mix all ingredients together except onion rings. Pour over onions and chill

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

While excellent quality is available in the market, there is a great personal satisfaction and considerable economy at this time of the year in making your own pickles and relishes.

Many recipes are ready for use as soon as made; others require storage for 4 to 6 weeks. Home canners usually take advantage of low prices on ingredients during peak of production and prepare a winter's supply in advance.

Today we'll deal with three popular types of relishes, the first India Relish, suggested by Mrs. Leo R. Cozad of Monticello, Ill. Wash 2 pounds cucumbers, 2 pounds green tomatoes, Chop 1 pint celery without leaves (or firm cabbage), 1 cup onion, 1 1/2 cups of mixed green and red sweet peppers, 2 tablespoons hot red peppers.

Put the prepared vegetables place in a food chopper, medium blade. Place in a glass or enamel-lined bowl and add 4 1/2 teaspoons pure salt. Let stand overnight. Drain thoroughly next day and add 1 1/2 cups sugar, 2 cups vinegar, 1/4 cup white mustard seed, 2 teaspoons celery seed, 1/2 teaspoon each of turmeric, mace and cloves. Heat in a large saucepan to simmering and cook 8 to 10 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Pack in clean, hot jars and seal with enamel-lined lids. Makes 4 1/2 pints.

MRS. LYDIA TUCKER, 515 W. Pine, Plattesville, Wis., submits a favorite Uncooked Relish. Chop or grind 4 scraped carrots, 9 mixed green and red sweet peppers, 1 medium head cabbage and 4 medium onions. Add 1/4 cup salt and let stand 3 to 4 hours. Drain well.

Mix 3 cups vinegar, 2 cups sugar, 1 tablespoon celery seed, 2 teaspoons mustard seed. Pour over vegetables, mix thoroughly and seal cold. Will keep in refrigerator for a long time. Makes 4 to 5 pints.

Just about everybody's favorite is Piccalilli and variations of the recipe are many. Here's mine. Using coarse blade, put through a food chopper 5 green tomatoes, 4 green sweet peppers, 3 red sweet peppers, 5 medium onions and a small head of cabbage (1 1/4 to 1 1/2 pounds). Cover and refrigerate overnight.

Next day cover chopped vegetables with cold water, then drain thoroughly. Put them in a large saucepan and add 3 cups brown sugar, 1 1/2 teaspoons celery seed, 1 tablespoon mustard seed, 1 tablespoon whole cloves, a 2-inch piece of stick cinnamon and 2 cups cider vinegar.

Bring slowly to the boiling point then reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes. Remove cinnamon stick and seal in clean, hot jars. Makes 4 pints.

thoroughly. Serve with crackers. These will keep for days and can be used later in salads.

PICKLED CARROTS

6 medium carrots (about 1 pound)
3/4 cup sugar
3/4 cup vinegar
3/4 cup water
1 tablespoon mustard seed
2 1/2 inches stick cinnamon, broken
3 whole cloves
Scrape carrots and cut in 3-inch lengths. Cook for 5 minutes and drain. Cut in thin sticks and set aside.

In a saucepan, combine sugar, vinegar, water and mustard seed. Put cinnamon and cloves in a cheesecloth bag and add to vinegar mixture. Simmer 10 minutes. Pour over carrots and chill in refrigerator overnight. Will keep well for several days.

BONED CHICKEN BREASTS IN WINE BOATS

Chicken breasts, split (as many as you think guests will eat)
Onion soup mix (1 envelope for four half-breasts)
Two eggs, beaten
Heavy duty aluminum foil
Cooking sherry

Dip breasts in egg and coat with dry onion soup mix. Wrap individually in aluminum foil forming sealed boats with one end left open. When ready to cook, pour 2 to 3 tablespoons sherry in each "boat," seal tightly with ends up, and bake 1 to 1 1/2 hours in 350-degree oven or outdoors on the grill. Will keep well without much tending. Serve piping hot in the foil packages.

MUSHROOMS AND RICE

2-2/3 cups Minute Rice
6 tablespoons salad oil
2 small cans mushrooms, drained
2 green onions, chopped, or more
2 cans beef consommé, undiluted
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1/2 teaspoon salt

Mix ingredients together and bake, covered, at 350 degrees until liquid is absorbed, about 45 minutes. Do not stir. When preparing in advance, place dry ingredients in casserole and add liquids just before baking. Serves 8 to 10.

TOMATO SIDE DISH

2 large cans solid pack tomatoes or 3 quarts home-canned tomatoes
8 whole cloves
8 whole peppercorns
1 bay leaf
(at least 1 inch long)
Salt to taste
1/2 yellow onion or less, chopped
3/4 cup brown sugar
3 or 4 slices white bread broken into dime-sized pieces
2 tablespoons butter

Put cloves, peppercorns and bay leaf into a cheesecloth bag. Cook tomatoes undrained, with the cheesecloth bag and a dash of salt very slowly for 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove cheesecloth bag and turn tomatoes into a greased casserole. Add onion, sugar, bread and butter. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 1/2 hours or longer. Serves 8 to 10.

SPINACH AND MUSHROOM SALAD

1 pound fresh spinach
1/2 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
6 strips bacon, cooked, drained and crumbled
2 green onions and tops, thinly-sliced

Remove leaves from spinach and discard stems. Wash, dry and chill thoroughly. Just before serving, add mushrooms, bacon and onions. Prepare the following dressing:

5 tablespoons salad oil
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 egg yolk
1 clove garlic, mashed
3/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon sugar
1/8 teaspoon dry mustard

Place ingredients in blender and blend for a few seconds. Pour over greens, toss and serve immediately. Serves 8 to 10.

LEMON ICE

4 cups water
2 1/4 cups sugar
3/4 cups fresh lemon juice
Juice of 2 oranges

Make a syrup by boiling water and sugar together 20 minutes. Add fruit juices, strain and freeze. Serve in frappe glasses with a vanilla wafer. Serves 8.

CAFFE NOIR (Boiled)

1 cup ground coffee
1/2 cup cold water
1/2 egg and 1/2 egg shell
3 cups boiling water

Wash egg, break shell and all into a cup and beat slightly. Mix coffee with half of the egg and shell mixture (discarding remaining egg and shell) and half of the cold water. Turn into a scalded enamel coffee pot and add boiling water. Stuff spout of pot with soft paper, place pot in front of range and let boil three minutes. Add remaining cold water and let stand at rear of range over very low heat where coffee will not boil for 10 minutes.

Serve in after-dinner coffee cups with sugar. Yields one cup each for eight persons. Double recipe for 2 cups per person.

Beef deserves the best of care

by GAYNOR MADDOX

Today beef is so valuable a possession that extra steps must be taken to guard its freshness and wholesomeness. In general, most experts agree that beef, though high in price, is actually the best buy for your money. Therefore, treat it with care and respect.

Make meat the last thing you buy in the grocery store. Take it home right away and refrigerate promptly.

In buying canned beef, avoid cans that are severely dented, leak or swell. If it looks, tastes or smells suspicious, Don't eat it.

Remember when preparing, storing, and cooking fresh meat, first to keep it clean. Second, to keep these foods hot or cold — not in between. Don't let cooked foods sit around so that bacteria can form or multiply.

When storing, place beef in the refrigerator only if you are going to use it within a few days. For longer storage, freeze products. The refrigerator section should be kept between 35 and 40 degrees. Freezer temperatures should be kept at zero or lower. Wrap meat loosely for refrigerator storage. For freezing, wrap meat tightly in moisture-resistant material, such as aluminum foil.

How you defrost frozen beef is important. Always defrost it in the refrigerator if possible. Meat may also be defrosted at room temperature if left in a tightly closed double paper bag. It may also be placed in cold water to aid thawing if the wrapping is watertight. Cook promptly after thawing.

Special precautions should be taken when preparing beef for barbecues or picnics. You should be as careful as you can when eating food inside. Clean your kitchen frequently. Clean all work surfaces—including wooden cutting boards and counter tops — before and after using them for raw meat. Soap and hot water works well. Never place cooked, ready-to-serve meat on the same surface or in a utensil used for the raw product unless you have completely sanitized that surface or utensil. If possible, use separate cutting boards for raw and cooked products to avoid "cross-contamination." Wash your hands often.

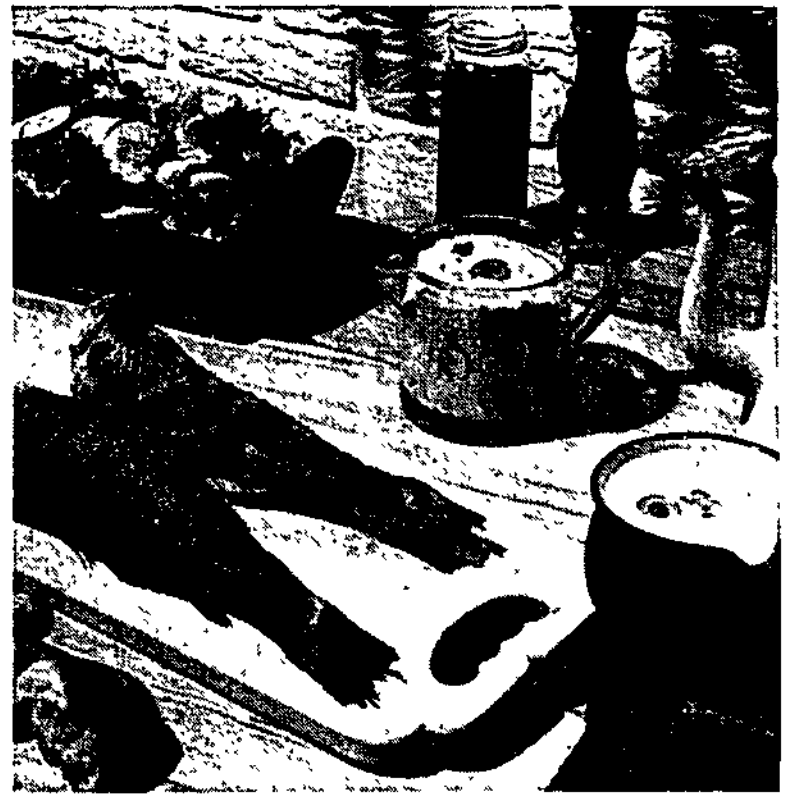

Salmonella food poisoning is something everyone dreads. But it can be controlled, as the fact sheet called "Salmonella — Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service — U.S. Department of Agriculture," points out:

Remember the last time you thought you had the "flu" or your stomach was upset? You might have been suffering from "the bug" known as Salmonella. The Salmonella bacteria that cause it are practically everywhere. Salmonella bacteria can live and grow in the digestive tract of man, once contaminated food is eaten. When this happens, these symptoms may occur in 12 to 36 hours: Severe headache, vomiting, diarrhea, abdominal cramps, and fever.

Heat and cleanliness are the two strongest weapons against salmonellosis. Heat, because salmonella bacteria in food are destroyed by heating it to a temperature of 155 degrees. Cleanliness, because clean hands, clean counters, and clean utensils stop the spread and growth of salmonella bacteria.

Heart Association Cookbook

Practical guide to healthful eating

by FIAN HECKART

Good eating habits are not an accident. But eating food that is good for you and palate pleasing is not an impossible dream.

The American Heart Association Cookbook, recently published by David McKay ($7.95), proves it can be fun to cook and eat right. The book emphasizes the use of fish, poultry and lean meat and the recipes are far from bland.

Compiled by nutritionists Ruth Eshleman and Mary Winston, the book expresses the recommendations of the Heart Association but with practical guidelines and attractive recipe suggestions.

Consider the following breakfast menu: fresh strawberries, wheat germ pancakes with maple syrup or preserves or cottage cheese, low-fat milk, coffee or tea. Although nutritionally sound, it's far from a typical "restricted" diet.

THE COOKBOOK contains basic, practical advice on how to plan daily menus for healthy living, and how to prepare fat-controlled foods, combining them for full nutritional benefit and abundant eating enjoyment.

"This is not a diet book" says the foreword. "It is a cookbook — a fun book for people who like to cook and to eat, whether they are young or old, living alone or in a family group, pursuing a career or busily involved in keeping a home."

The recipes use natural foods for the most part, except margarine and oils in place of fat. Economics is considered and modification of traditional diets is mild and modest.

High levels of blood cholesterol and other fats are linked to increased susceptibility to heart attack and stroke. More than a million Americans die annually from heart and circulatory problems. Thus, considering the fact that the foods we eat are risk factors, the cookbook is designed for the presently healthy people as well as those suffering from cardiovascular disease.

ONE LARGE EGG yolk alone has 250 mg. of cholesterol so the recipes limit the use of egg yolk. Our diets should be fat-controlled rather than fat-free.

No one type of fat should be consumed in excess, but neither should any one type be entirely removed from the diet, according to the book.

If offers the following example: If it were possible to remove all saturated fats (those that tend to elevate the cholesterol concentration in the blood), this would be neither necessary nor desirable. Buy lowering total intake and substituting polyunsaturated fats (those that reduce cholesterol deposition) for a portion of the saturated kind, you are helping your body work to its own advantage.

All of the 800 recipes in the association's cookbook have been tested by nutritionists.

Economical roast can be different

Those who want a different entree for dinner and also want to hold the line as much as possible with the budget will enjoy a Chuck Roast Milanese. Slow cooking in a tasty marinade turns this lesser cut of beef into a tender dish. Serve with rice, Brussels sprouts and an old-fashioned graham cracker pie.

CHUCK ROAST MILANESE

1 3-pound chuck roast
1 1/2 teaspoons Ac'cent
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can (8 ounces) tomato paste
1 cup dry red wine or bouillon
3 cups water
2 large onions, chopped
5 cloves
1/8 teaspoon garlic powder
Sprinkle roast on both sides with Ac'cent, salt and pepper. Melt butter in Dutch oven. Add roast and brown on both sides. Add tomato paste, wine, water, onions, cloves and garlic powder. Cover and simmer 1 1/2 to 2 hours, until tender. Serve with rice. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Baked bean dish goes a long way

A baked bean dish goes a long way during an outdoor cookout. With four types of beans combined, no one can miss getting those essential protein and in a very flavorful way. Leftovers make excellent cold sandwiches using rye or pumpkinseed bread and are packable for hikers or bikers to snack on.

BAKED BEANS AMERICANA

2 cans (1 lb. each) pinto beans, drained
1 can (1 lb.) kidney beans, drained
1 can (1 lb. 4 ounces) chick peas, drained
1 can (1 lb. 12 ounces) New England-style baked beans, undrained
8 slices bacon
4 large onions, peeled and separated into rings
1 cup dark corn syrup
1/2 cup cider vinegar
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
Mix pinto beans, kidney beans, chick peas and baked beans in 3-quart casserole. Cook bacon in large skillet over medium heat. Drain bacon on absorbent paper. Add onions, corn syrup, vinegar, dry mustard and garlic powder to bacon fat in skillet. Bring to boil. Cover, reduce heat and simmer 20 minutes. Crumble bacon. Add onion mixture and bacon to beans. Bake covered in 350-degree oven 30 minutes. Bake uncovered 1 1/2 hours until browned and liquid is thickened. Makes 12 servings.

Olive sauces enhance the catch

Put on your culinary thinking cap and you'll find plenty of interesting new grill ideas to try this summer.

For instance, next time your husband has been out fishing, barbecue the day's catch on the outdoor grill and serve with a tangy olive sauce. Put the cleaned fish in an oiled wire basket and broil over hot coals for about 15 or 20 minutes or until the fish is translucent and can be easily flaked with a fork.

Lean fish should be broiled frequently with butter or oil. But lean or not, fish usually has a delicate flavor that will get a delicious lift when served with a savory Olive Anchovy Butter or Olive Mayonnaise Sauce. Both sauces are versatile and will complement any variety of fish . . . even frozen fish, which is also nice on the barbecue.

OLIVE-ANCHOVY BUTTER

1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened
2 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon onion salt
1 egg, well beaten
2 tablespoons vinegar
1/4 cup thinly sliced

pimiento-stuffed olives
1 tablespoon anchovy paste
1/3 cup chopped celery

Sliced pimiento-stuffed olives
Beat butter until fluffy. Add sugar, pepper and onion salt; blend well. Slowly beat in egg until smooth. Add vinegar, chopped olives, anchovy paste and celery; beat well. Garnish with sliced olives. Serve with broiled, baked or fried fish as desired. Makes 1 1/2 cups

OLIVE-MAYONNAISE SAUCE

1/2 cup mayonnaise
1 small onion, chopped
1/3 cup finely chopped pimiento-stuffed olives
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons finely chopped celery
Sliced pimiento-stuffed olives
Combine mayonnaise, onion, olives, parsley, lemon rind, juice and celery; mix well. Chill. Garnish with sliced olives. Serve as a sauce for grilled or dried fish. Makes about 1 1/2 cups sauce.

These stimulants beneficial

Those tempting tidbits to titillate the taste buds — appetizers — are called whets in England, hors d'oeuvres in France, zakuski in Russia, gustari in Rumania or tapas in Spain. Whatever the name, appetizers must tease the appetite, arousing a desire for the dishes which are to follow.

Liver Pate a la Worcester is an easy canape spread or celery stuffing. It consists of beef liver and bacon, onion and a simple sauce seasoned to taste with Worcestershire sauce and whirled to smoothness in an electric blender. You can make it the day before it is to be served, for it should be thoroughly chilled before serving.

The savory spread for Hot Ham 'N' Cheese Canapes can be prepared hours before it's needed. Just before serving, spread it on triangles of bread and bake until heated through and crusty.

LIVER PATE A LA WORCESTER

1 pound beef liver, cut into 1-inch pieces
1 cup minced onion
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk

2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce

In a large skillet saute bacon until crisp; remove bacon from skillet; set aside. Remove all but 1/4 cup drippings from skillet; heat until hot. Add liver and saute for about 10 minutes or until cooked. Remove liver; set aside to cool. To drippings add onion; saute for 3 minutes or until transparent; remove from heat and set aside. In a small saucepan melt butter. Add flour; cook and stir for 1 minute. Blend in milk. Bring to boiling point, stirring constantly. Reduce heat; cook and stir for 2 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in Worcestershire sauce; cool. In container of electric blender place drippings and onions, one-third of the liver and one-third of the sauce. Blend until smooth; remove to bowl. Repeat until all ingredients are smooth. Thoroughly combine mixture in bowl. Spoon into a well-oiled 3 1/2 cup mold. Cover and refrigerate until thoroughly chilled. To unmold, dip mold into very hot water for 30 seconds; turn out onto serving dish. If desired, garnish with radish slices and serve with crackers and celery. Yield: 3 1/2 cups.

HOT HAM 'N' CHEESE CANAPES

1 package (8oz.) cream cheese, softened
1 can (4 1/2 oz.) deviled ham
1/2 cup minced onion
1/2 cup chopped sweet red or green pepper
1/4 cup chopped parsley
1 1/2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
8 slices white bread
In the large bowl of an electric mixer beat cream cheese with deviled ham until thoroughly combined. Blend in onion, pepper, parsley and Worcestershire sauce. Spread on bread slices. Cut each slice into 4 triangles. Place on baking sheet; bake in a preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) for 10 minutes or until hot. Serve immediately. Yield: 32 canapes.

Escape from dull summer fare

Play it cool with a salad entree

Tuna Mold Persille is adapted from a Burgundy classic. The recipe is a bit involved but one that cooks will enjoy.

It starts out as a broth mixture made with unflavored gelatin, accented with white wine and bay leaf. Egg whites and egg shells are added before boiling the mixture, to clarify the broth, a process which removes any particles suspended in it, and makes it crystal clear! When the egg coagulates, it draws and gathers minute cloudy particles in the liquid like a magnet. These gradually rise, leaving a sparkling-clear liquid below them. The egg and particles are easily separated from the broth by pouring the broth mixture through a strainer lined with several layers of cheesecloth, or a napkin rinsed in cold water and wrung out.

That's all there is to the intricate work. What's left is to blend the seasonings, chunks of tuna, parsley, scallions and green peppers with the gelatin-broth mixture. Let it chill in the refrigerator until the mold is firm — and you will then have an exceptional dish to match the work of any gourmet chef.

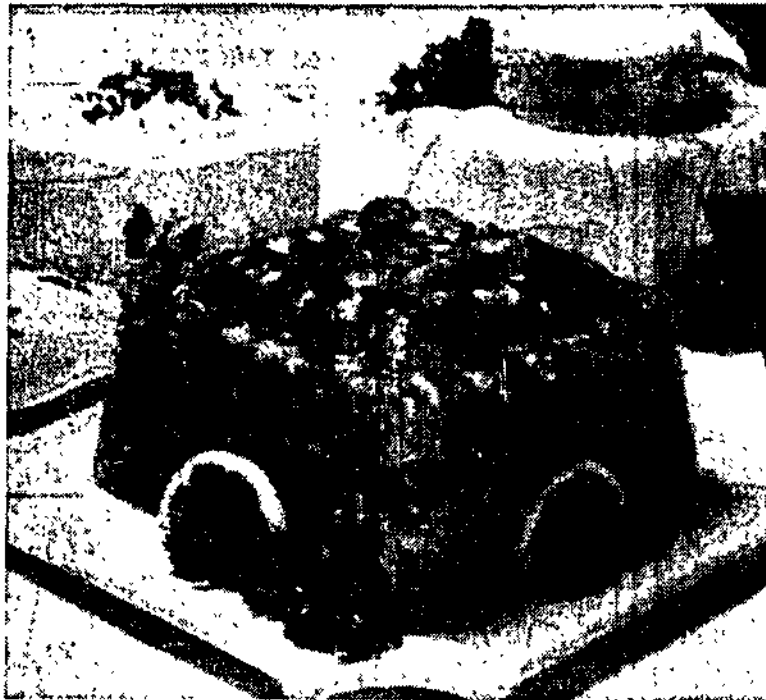

Tuna Mold Persille is delectable. But looks and flavor aren't all it has. Protein-rich tuna makes this a nutritious dish and tuna is one of the best protein buys for your money.

TUNA MOLD PERSILLE

4 envelopes unflavored gelatin

- 1 cup dry white wine or dry vermouth
- 2 cans (13 1/4 oz. ea.) chicken broth
- 2 egg whites, slightly beaten
- 2 egg shells, crushed
- 1 bay leaf
- 1/4 teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
- 1 teaspoon dried leaf tarragon
- 1/4 teaspoon dried leaf thyme
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 cans (6 1/2 or 7 oz. ea.) tuna in vegetable oil, drained of excess oil
- 1 cup finely chopped parsley
- 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
- 1/4 cup chopped scallions

Sprinkle gelatin over wine in large saucepan; allow to soften. Add chicken broth, egg whites, egg shells and bay leaf. Bring to a full boil, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; allow to stand a few minutes. Remove bay leaf. Pour gelatin mixture through strainer lined with layers of cheesecloth or a napkin that has been rinsed in cold water and wrung out. Add the Tabasco, tarragon, thyme and salt. Refrigerate; stir occasionally, until the consistency of unbeaten egg white. In large bowl, break tuna into small chunks. Add parsley, green pepper, scallions and slightly thickened gelatin mixture. Mix well and turn into a 6-cup mold. Chill until firm. Unmold and garnish with parsley sprigs. Yield: 6 servings.

Sautéed carrots are savory treat

English ladies of fashion once wore the feathery leaves of carrots to decorate their hair. In Greece, carrots were grown for medicinal purposes and used as a stomach tonic. Today, crunchy carrots make good eating and are of health value as a source of Vitamin A. For a quick vegetable dish, sauté carrots for a savory treat.

- 1 cup chicken broth
- 1/4 cup squeeze liquid margarine
- 2 cups onion slices
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1/2 cup water

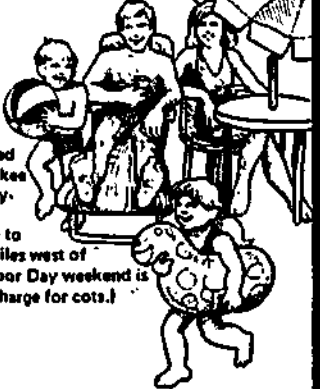

Cook carrots in broth until tender, do not drain. Sauté onion in liquid margarine; blend in flour. Gradually add water. Stir in carrots and broth. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened; continue cooking 2 minutes. Makes 8 servings. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Chill a checkerboard cake

Here's a really unique idea in cake making that you'll enjoy trying this summer. Starting from a white cake mix, this chilled-in-the-refrigerator cake is adorned with a chocolate-syrup-glazed "checkerboard" top (created with the tines of a fork), and features attractive chocolate marbling when the cake is cut for serving.

CHILLED CHECKERBOARD CAKE

- 1 package (18.5 ounces) white cake mix
- Chocolate Syrup Sauce
- Chocolate Syrup Whipped Cream

Prepare cake mix as directed on package. Pour into a well-greased and floured 13x9x2-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 to 35 minutes; cool in pan 15 minutes. Carefully pierce cake in pan with fork to depth of cake making parallel rows about 1-inch apart covering both length and width of cake. Spoon Chocolate Syrup Sauce over warm cake allowing the mixture to flow into holes and completely glaze top. Chill in refrigerator several hours or overnight. Serve with a dollop of Chocolate Syrup Whipped Cream or frost with your favorite chocolate frosting.

Chocolate Syrup Sauce

- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- 1/4 cup cold water

- 1/2 cup boiling water
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 cup canned chocolate flavored syrup

Sprinkle gelatin on cold water in medium bowl to soften. Add boiling water and stir to completely dissolve gelatin. Add sugar and blend well; stir in chocolate syrup. About 2 cups sauce (entire amount is used on cake).

Chocolate Syrup Whipped Cream

- 1 cup whipping cream
- 1/2 cup canned chocolate flavored syrup
- 2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla

Combine whipping cream, chocolate syrup, sugar and vanilla in small mixer bowl. Whip until mixture holds peaks. About 2 1/2 cups topping.

Soft drinks are No. 1

Liquid consumption studies place soft drinks as America's No. 1 beverage, ahead of coffee for the first time, report researchers at Royal Crown Cola Co. An estimated 84 per cent of all Americans over 13 years of age are soft drink consumers who last year imbibed more than 3.5 billion cases of carbonated beverages, the researchers said.

How to beat high cost of food

by AILEEN CLAIRE

Turkey is an ideal buy for those who want to stretch the family food dollar. It also is an excellent choice to combat the buildup of cholesterol that may result from a diet too high in saturated fats. Turkey also is low in calories.

With cholesterol in mind, select young turkey and favor the whole meat. Check labels of self-basting white turkeys since many include forbidden highly saturated fat coconut oil.

Curried Turkey with Noodles is a different way to use leftover turkey. Those on a weight-loss diet will want to skip the noodles and serve a low-calorie vegetable with the curried turkey.

The following recipe is from "The Doctors' Save-Your-Heart Diet" by Aileen Claire and David Hendin. To obtain a copy, readers may send name, address and zip with check or money order for 95 cents, plus postage and handling, to The Doctors' Save-Your-Heart Diet, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

CURRIED TURKEY WITH NOODLES

- 1 medium onion, coarsely chopped
- 1 cup sliced celery
- 1 tablespoon curry powder
- 2 tablespoons margarine
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 2 chicken bouillon cubes
- 2 cups water
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic salt (optional)

- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 2 cups sliced cooked turkey (light meat)
- 1 cup grated carrots
- 8 ounces medium noodles (about 4 cups), cooked according to basic directions
- chopped parsley

Sauté onion and celery with curry in margarine over low heat until vegetables are crisp-tender. Mix in flour and bouillon cubes. Gradually add water; cook, stirring constantly, until sauce boils, about 1 minute. Stir in seasonings, lemon juice, turkey, and carrots; heat thoroughly, stirring frequently. Serve over noodles. Sprinkle with parsley. Makes 4 servings.

Developers fail to pay fees

Village 'stuck' for sewer on McHenry Road

by LYNN ASINOF
The Village of Wheeling is still out $200,000 for a sewer and water main extension installed along McHenry Road to benefit developers in the northwest portion of the village.
Originally, developers hooking into these lines were supposed to pay the village according to a fixed formula for their benefit from the extension. Areas along McHenry Road were either designated as direct benefit or indirect benefit property, with the direct benefit parcels paying a greater amount per acre to the village.
In addition to the fixed formula, developers were also to pay 7 per cent interest computed from the time the recapture ordinance was passed in February, 1971. Through these payments, the village was supposed to be reimbursed for the cost of the project, which Village Mgr. George Passolt said was about $260,000.
PASSOLT SAID, however, so far only one developer has paid any money for hooking into the McHenry Road extension.

He said the Tekton Corp., developers of Cedar Run, paid $60,000 as originally specified when the recapture agreement for the extension was approved.
At least two other developments have hooked into the extension. Neither, however, has paid any money to the village despite the provisions of the village ordinance.
Fairway Greens, an apartment project at 1000 McHenry Rd., tied into the sanitary sewer lines extended by the village. The development's water connection, however, was to the south where it tied into water mains on Valley Stream Drive.
PASSOLT SAID Fairway Greens was not charged "recapture" fees because of additional work done by developers of the project. He said developers installed a lift station for their sanitary sewer system because of the slope of their land away from the road. The manager estimated the cost of the lift station at $29,000.
"That will benefit not only them," Passolt said of the lift station. "That will benefit the others up there, too."

The manager noted that developers of Fairway Greens also connected with the watermain on McHenry Road at the request of the village. "They were not required to do that," he said. "We requested that they do that to provide better water for the village."
Passolt said the connection with the McHenry Road water main provided an additional loop in the village water system. He said that in order to make the connection, developers had to auger under McHenry Road.
ACCORDING TO PASSOLT, the additional connection cost developers of Fairway Greens $5,170. "That is far beyond what they would have had to pay if they had been charged," he said.
If the developers had been charged, Passolt said the village would have collected only about $3,500. "We came out ahead in the deal," he said.

Areas benefiting from the extension of water and sewer lines on McHenry Road are shaded on this map. The areas that benefit directly from the lines are shown by cross-hatching, while indirect benefit parcels are shown by dots. The property owned by Whippetree Village and Addolorata Villa was not included, although Whippetree

Whippetree trailer park owner to be back-taxed

A 53-acre Wheeling trailer park property that remained off the tax rolls from September, 1970, to January, 1972, will be back-taxed, a spokesman for County Assessor P. J. Cullerton said yesterday.
The trailer park, Whippetree Village Inc., 325 N. McHenry Rd., escaped real estate taxes by holding onto the tax exemption of the property's previous owner, the Servite Sisters, for 15 months after it bought the land.
Owners of the trailer park will be asked to attend a hearing and show cause why the back taxes should not be levied against the property this year, the Cullerton spokesman said.
He said the owners were originally notified of Cullerton's intention to collect back taxes in February, 1972, but that no action has yet been taken to hold the hearing. He said the 10-month delay was not unusual.
"The back tax hearing has not been held. I expect it to be held later in the year," the spokesman said.
THE TAX exemption was one of several instances of preferential government treatment of Whippetree disclosed last week by the Herald. The trailer park has ties to the politically influential family of James Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman.

The Cullerton spokesman said Whippetree will probably be back-taxed for the 15-month period using the $3,000 per acre assessed valuation carried during 1972 by the trailer park. That assessment was increased last month to $12,500 an acre.
The assessor's office has denied that the increase came after Herald inquiries about Whippetree's taxes. Its $3,000 assessed land value for tax purposes was the lowest valuation of any area trailer park last year.
ALSO DISCLOSED last week was the fact that a $165,000 recreation and administration building at Whippetree has remained off the tax rolls since a permit was issued for its construction in March, 1971.
A copy of the permit, which was supposed to be forwarded by the Wheeling village building department, was never received at the local township assessor's office. Further information on Whippetree's taxes is not immediately available because its property records are out in the field, the Cullerton spokesman said.

The matter, however, was never considered at a village board meeting. Apparently, the requirements of the recapture agreement were waived in an informal manner without any public discussion. In fact, when first contacted on the matter, Passolt was unaware the development had tied into the McHenry Road sewer.
DEVELOPERS OF Whippetree Village, a mobile home park at 625 McHenry Road, also benefited from the sewer and water extension, but did not pay the village any recapture fees, the Herald disclosed last week.
Passolt said Whippetree was not charged because it was not designated as a benefit area in the original recapture ordinance. Several village officials have said the trailer park was not required to pay because sewer and water mains were already available to it.
A check of engineering plans on the McHenry Road project showed that sewer lines were available to the trailer park. Whippetree's sewer was tied into an existing 10-inch line about the same time that line was connected to the new McHenry Road sewer.
Water connections, however, were not made until after work on the McHenry Road extension began. Engineering plans show that the nearest connection prior to the "recapture" project was a six-inch main more than 300 feet from the point where Whippetree's driveway meets McHenry Road.

WHIPPETREE DID NOT connect to that six-inch main, but waited until the new 12-inch water main was completed and tied into it where the driveway meets McHenry Road, saving the cost of the 200-foot extension.
According to Thomas Moody, village engineering consultant, village officials may have assumed that the trailer park had water main connections because it already had sewer service.
"It was primarily a sewer project. The water was brought in sort of toward the end," Moody said. "Maybe nobody considered they left Whippetree out on the water because they had sewer. The water was added as an afterthought. I don't know why it wasn't included in there."
PASSOLT SAID, however, that despite this information on the water connections, he did not expect that Whippetree would be charged "recapture" fees.

"We went by the ordinance which said it was not an area benefited," he said.
A number of Wheeling residents have questioned the enforcement of the recapture ordinance. Some have charged that the sewer and water lines were installed to accommodate members of the Stavros family, who are connected with Whippetree. James "Jimmy" Stavros has been a recognized political force in Wheeling for many years.
Passolt said the McHenry Road extension is the only such project ever undertaken by the village. "It was done in relation to Tekton at the time," he said. "That was a big development that needed water."
ON OTHER OCCASIONS, members of the village board have repeatedly told residents and developers that the village "is not in the water and sewer business." In such cases, developers have had to pay the cost of bringing water and sewer to their own property.
The manager said that although the village is still out $200,000 on the extension, he is not worried about getting the remaining portion of the expenditure back from developers.

"THERE'S ENOUGH property up there to cover it. I'm not overly concerned about it," he said. "The thing is they have to develop the property before we get our money back. With the higher raw land taxes, I believe that the land will be developed."
Passolt said basic discussion of recapture arrangements is handled by the building department at the time developers apply for building permits. The recapture ordinance provides that no building permits shall be issued unless the applicant pays his "recapture" fees.
The ordinance also states that anyone who does not pay the recapture fees shall be fined not less than $50 and not more than $600. Moreover, the ordinance provides that the village shall remove all connections to the water and sewer lines if recapture fees are not paid.

Still only one applicant for vacant park seat

The Wheeling Park Board is still seeking applicants to fill the vacant park commissioner's seat created by the recent resignation of Park Board Pres. Gus Nizzi.
So far, Frank Schnaltmann, 51 George Rd., is the only park district resident to express interest in the position. Another person who lives outside the district has applied for the seat, but is ineligible to serve on the board because commissioners must live within the district boundaries.
The board has not set a deadline for accepting applications. Comm. Lorraine Lark has said she hopes the seat will be filled by September.
Several major decisions must be made by the park board around that time, she said, including pending land purchases, finalizing plans for scheduled remodeling at Heritage Park and taking bids on a proposed maintenance garage at Heritage Park.

ALL THE commissioners agree that a desire to serve the community is the main qualification for a good park commissioner. No experience in the field of recreation or prior experience on a governmental commission is necessary for the job.
Anyone interested in applying for the park board seat should submit a written application in the form of a letter to the board. Commissioners will review the applications and vote to appoint the new member.
The board must still decide whether to name the commissioner to serve until the next park board election in 1975 or to complete Nizzi's term that expires in 1977.

Newcomers will meet at Addolorata Villa

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Newcomers Club will meet at 8 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 23 at Addolorata Villa in Wheeling.

The program for the meeting will feature a discussion of the book "How to Enjoy Eating Without Committing Suicide" by Charles D. Ewart.

15-passenger van needs special step

Bus service change delayed

by LYNN ASINOF
Changes in the operation of the Wheeling village bus have been delayed because of problems in outfitting a 15-passenger van that will supplement bus service.
Village Mgr. George Passolt said the van has been delivered but has not yet been equipped with a special folding step. He said the step has to be custom-made and has not yet arrived.
When the van is ready, Passolt said it will be used to pick up passengers at the various village shopping centers and drop them off at the bus stop of their choice.
Passolt said, however, he can't give any estimate of when the van will be ready for use. "I know it's been quite a length of time," he said.
THE VAN IDEA was suggested by Passolt in February when response to the bus showed some people were concerned about the length of time between bus pick-ups.

"There seem to be some people who feel that it takes too long to get home from the shopping centers," the manager said.
As a result, Passolt recommended that the shuttle bus stop at each shopping center every 30-45 minutes to pick up passengers. He explained the van would not have any definite route other than the scheduled pick-ups, but would drop passengers at any bus stop they wished.
Passolt said he felt the van would improve the village bus service initiated last December. "By improving the return trip service from the shopping centers it is my opinion that we will be able to increase bus volume," he said.
In its first few months of operation, the number of residents riding the bus appeared to grow slowly but steadily. No surveys of cash collections or passenger load have been made since early in the year, so no information is available on the growth of bus service in recent months.

PASSOLT SAID he intends to update the data on the bus service as soon as he has time. He said he had to delay making reports on the bus operation so he could devote full time to preparation of the village budget.
According to Passolt, work in his office has also been slowed by a federal grand jury investigation into building and zoning practices in Wheeling. He said he has had to take time from other projects to answer questions about the investigation.
Originally, Passolt said he would consider revising the bus schedule in April or May to make it more convenient for residents to use the bus. Those revisions have also been delayed, and Passolt said he would consider them when reviewing regular bus operations.
Much of the cost of starting the bus service is being financed with federal revenue sharing funds. In the budget recently passed by the village board $35,000 was allocated to defray the cost of the bus operation.

Why are our oak trees dying?

by JOE SWICKARD

Hundreds of large oak trees are dying and forestry experts don't know the reason.

"We don't know what it is. It just looks like they're dead," said George Pour, Cook County Forest Preserve associate forester.

According to Pour, something is killing off the white and red oaks that abound in forest preserves. All preserves have been affected, he said, but Deer Grove, near Palatine, has been hit especially hard.

The blight is not confined to the preserves. The University of Illinois Extension Service in Des Plaines reports it has received about 10 calls a day from worried oak owners.

THE WIDESPREAD affliction first came to the attention of officials through helicopter surveys of the forest preserves, Pour said.

Pour said his department has called in expert advisers from the University of Illinois and the U.S. Forestry Service in St. Paul, Minn., to help combat or at least identify the ailment.

Oak wilt (a common disease) was at first suspected of being the culprit, but was ruled out in most cases through pathological tests, Pour said. Another theory is inclined to blame stress, he said.

"It might be stress on the plant system. We had a drought a couple of years ago and then two years that were really wet. It's hard on the roots," Pour said.

MELANIE SOWKA, of the extension service, concurred with this theory. The oak tree, despite its massive appearance, is actually a very delicate plant, she said.

"Oaks don't get along well with people. They're wild and they don't like a lot of people," she said.

She said the root system of the oak tree is near the surface and susceptible to "shock." The past three years of drought and then an over abundance of water have played havoc with the tree's nutrient gathering system, she said.

While saying the extension service is running tests to determine if a fungus is the cause of the die-off, Miss Sowka said affected trees near construction sites might point toward the stress theory.

Dirt becomes compacted under the heavy traffic of machinery, she said, cutting off the tree's food supply.

OAKS ON private property are also suffering because the lawn sod is too thick. The dense grasses use up most of the plant nutrients before it gets to the oak roots, she said. The roots are too shallow to tap underground water sources to make up for the surface starvation.

She suggested that homeowners with oak trees keep the soil bare around the tree to permit the rain and nutrients to be absorbed by the roots. She also recommended fertilizing the trees, but to avoid watering them.

Dan Brown, of the forestry service, said he was called into the area to make tests and inspect the diseased trees.

"I don't know what it is," Brown said, adding samples of roots, leaves and stems had been taken for further testing.

BROWN, TOO, tends to subscribe to the stress theory. He said the oak trees are often found in a clay soil, which holds moisture longer than regular loam.

He said cultures from the samples would be ready in about two weeks, but that results from tests on the cultures might take two months. The culture tests would tell plant pathologists whether the die-off was of a pathogenic (disease) origin, Brown said.

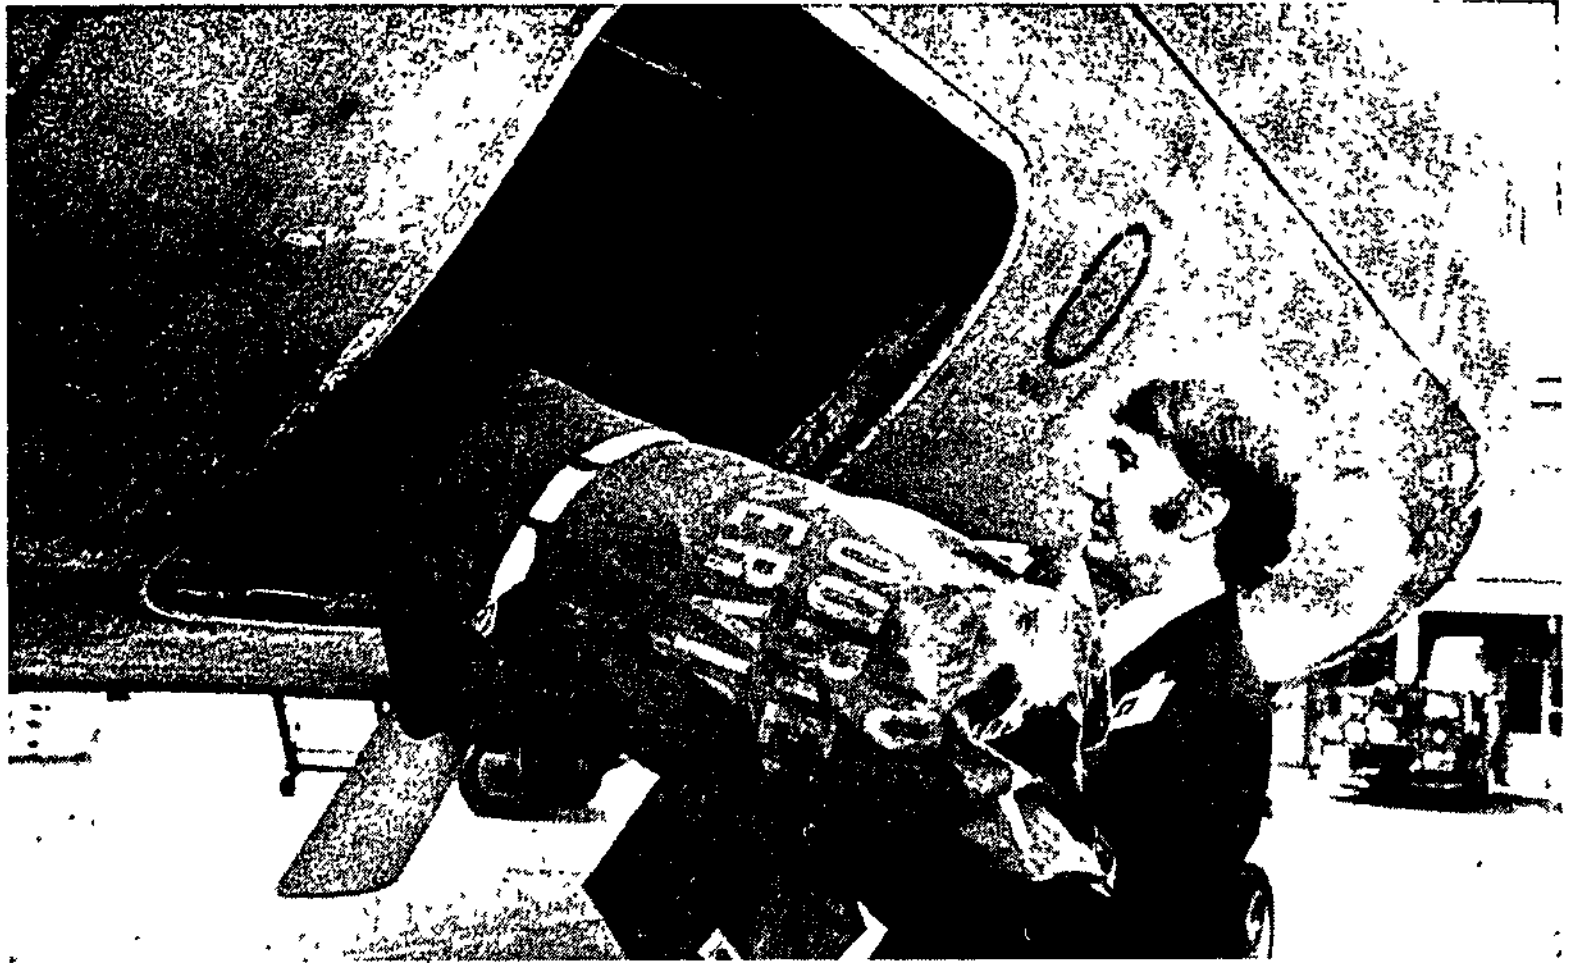

"It might be because of something pathogenic or physiogenic. If I had to make a guess I would say it was the latter," he said.

Brown said local foresters would watch the trees next spring to determine if the new leaves are diseased. If they are, it would support the fungus or infection theory.

THE BLIGHT seems to be centered around Chicago. Brown said there were one or two other cases of large oak die-offs, but circumstances are not similar to the local affliction.

Pour said not much can be done to prevent the blight until its source is identified.

"We have our men out marking trees now. We're watching them pretty close," he said.

THE COURIER'S JOB is to make sure all Network handled with care. In a few hours the packages be there to see the parcels are routed to the right Courier parcels are put on the correct flight and will be unloaded at another airport, and he must area.

Service for 'urgent' deliveries

by MIKE ZAREMBA

The man in the jet black suit looks a little mysterious, even intriguing, as he jumps out of the cab. He grabs a big brown duffel bag, a large envelope, pays the cabbie and walks through the automatic doors at O'Hare Airport.

A voice comes over the PA system: the TWA flight leaves in 15 minutes. The checker takes the duffel bag, slips on a tag and hands the man a receipt. The bag is now on the conveyor belt, going down to the loading center. No time to waste.

Reaching in his pocket, he pulls out an ID card and pins it to his breast pocket. He picks up his pace a little, working his way down the long steel staircase to the loading dock.

THE SIGN ABOVE the revolving doors reads: "Employees Only." A security guard stops him, but he flashes his I.D. card. "Okay, fine," the guard says.

He has sight of the bag again as it comes down the long conveyor. A few buttons are pushed by an operator, lights flash, the bag scoots down to a section marked "5."

The man in the jet black suit watches the baggage handler place the duffel bag in a big steel bin which is then hooked to a small scooter cab and wheeled out onto the airport concourse.

He flashes his I.D. card at another guard, following the duffel bag, still holding his envelope. His suit flaps in the jet blast as he runs after the scooter.

A mechanic, kneeling next to one of the jet tires, is checking something. He looks up and catches sight of the running figure.

The big brown duffel bag is the last piece of cargo to be stuffed into the plane's belly. He is sure of that.

THE MAN IN the black suit works for Network Courier Service (NCS), a company that picks up parcels and documents at offices all over the United States, safeguards them enroute and delivers them within hours, if necessary. He can't make mistakes; the job doesn't allow it.

The man hurries back to the loading center, up the staircase, through the terminal. Before he boards the plane, his envelope must pass through the X-ray detector. No problems. He grabs the envelope and walks onto the ramp.

The ticket girl noticed the I.D. card, but he was moving too fast. She turns to the steward and he points to a name on the list.

Every day, morning and night, this man and other NCS couriers working out of the company's Des Plaines office, 2500 Devon Ave., retrace those steps through the hectic O'Hare terminals.

RON MUNLEY, Chicago district manager, said the business was started by a Columbia Broadcasting System executive who found sending movie film, videotape and correspondence a risky task via

"No one can beat an eight cent stamp. But when it's urgent, where time is important, that's when the courier service is needed," Munley said.

"The couriers are well trained and know what to do in an emergency," Munley added. Most of the men are retired policemen or firemen. NCS keeps in constant touch with its men to locate a courier fast when he's needed. The company's operation is flexible, designed to get deliveries to their destination quickly and safely.

If a flight to New York is forced by bad weather to land in Boston, for instance, the courier may rent a car on the last leg of his trip. For morning deliveries to Wall Street customers, NCS couriers use a helicopter service from New York's Kennedy Airport. For shipments of valuables, an armed guard accompanies the NCS man.

Average cost for the service is about $40 for each shipment of less than 10 lbs. NCS couriers handle just about everything: legal documents, stock prospectuses, television scripts, computer parts or publisher proof sheets.

EVERY SATURDAY, during the hockey season, for example, a courier is sent to Montreal for films of National Hockey League games. He delivers them to New York, where they are broadcast nationwide on Sunday. After the Johnny Carson show is filmed each day in Los Angeles, an NCS courier makes sure the film gets to New York within hours.

The company has also handled some odd jobs. Its couriers went along with the electronic podium used for this year's Grammy Awards show from Nashville. They carried the manuscript and photographs for Norman Mailer's controversial new book on Marilyn Monroe.

A National Broadcasting Co. executive even hired NCS to fly along with his mother because he was afraid she'd get lost en route, Munley said.

ON HIS TRIP to New York, the NCS courier from Chicago lands at Kennedy Airport and reverses the steps he took to get on the plane. Through the terminal to the loading center, he flashes the I.D. card and walks onto the field. The brown duffel bag comes off the plane and he's on his way, envelope in hand.

He waves down a cab and is on his way. Minutes later, he is in an elevator. The doors open on the fifth floor of a Manhattan office building.

The courier delivers the packages in the duffel bag and the envelope, making sure they go to the right man, not a secretary.

He then finds a telephone booth in the main lobby, dials a Chicago number, identifies himself and verifies delivery and the exact time. His first assignment is complete, but his day is not over. In a few hours he might be sent to Los Angeles, Baltimore, Washington or San Francisco.

Leaf-burning bill's impact uncertain

by JEANNETTE DOWYZE

Despite the signing of a bill by Gov. Daniel Walker Monday that could allow leaf burning, it may be a while before Northwest suburban residents know whether they will be able to burn their leaves once again.

The bill, which will go into effect Oct. 1, lifts the Pollution Control Board's general ban on open-leaf burning. However, the board still will have the authority to curb burning in individual geographical areas where pollution is high and burning could be harmful to life or health.

According to Jacob Dumelle, acting chairman of the board, the board has not yet decided how it will handle setting the new standards for leaf burning.

The board already has held some public hearings on a proposal that would allow leaf burning in cities which meet federal air pollution standards.

TWO MORE such public hearings on the proposal will probably be scheduled for September, Dumelle said. Thus, new standards for leaf burning may be in effect by mid-October, he said.

Dumelle said he could not speculate on whether leaf-burning will be prohibited in the Northwest suburbs if the proposal is accepted.

Parts of the Chicago metropolitan area do not meet federal air pollution standards now. In the past, the board has treated the entire Chicago metropolitan area as a unit, he said.

However, depending on the outcome of the hearings, "anything's possible," Dumelle said.

REACTION to the bill from Northwest suburban government officials varied.

Some suburbs, like Hoffman Estates, already have separate ordinances prohibiting leaf burning and plan to continue their bans no matter what the pollution control board decides.

"I don't see any burning in the village," said Edward Kalasa, deputy chief of the Hoffman Estates fire protection district.

Village officials in Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Des Plaines, and Rolling Meadows, all of which now have ordinances prohibiting burning, echoed his sentiments.

"I think the people of Palatine have been more than cooperative in not burning leaves, and it's helpful to the environment. There isn't any reason for us to burn leaves with the bag program we have," said Palatine Village President Wendell E. Jones.

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer said the city will "try to look for more ways to handle" the leaf problem, despite the new bill.

MOST OF the suburbs that already prohibit burning now have effective alternative methods of handling dead leaves. Leaf disposal methods include bagging leaves, grinding them up, and using the leaves for mulch.

Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove and Schaumburg now have no separate ordinances prohibiting burning and village officials say they are uncertain as to what the suburbs will do in light of the new bill.

"If the state does permit leaf burning in the area, then we would have to sit down with the village board to evaluate what kind of problem it could cause the village of Schaumburg," Robert Grossman, village director of public health, said.

He said because of the newness of the community he did not think leaf disposal was now a significant problem.

Leaves also are not a major problem in Buffalo Grove, according to the village's public works director, Bill Davis. He said he did not know if the village will pass an ordinance prohibiting burning now.

AS A RESULT of another action taken by the governor Monday, the Cook County Forest Preserve District now plans to go ahead with its recommendation of a new tree-recycling plant east of Wheeling. Assistant General Superintendent James Tyndall said yesterday.

Construction of the new plant has been held up, pending word on a bill which might have allowed for open burning of area trees once again.

However, Gov. Walker vetoed the bill in question Monday. The district now plans to recommend construction of the plant to the Board of Forest Preserve Commissioners at its regular meeting next Monday.

Neptune's Pool closes for work

Neptune's Pool at Wheeling High School will close tonight for about three weeks while workers install ceramic tile at the indoor facility.

A new heater has been put in at Community Pool that will allow that pool to remain open probably until the work at Neptune's Pool is finished, according to Dave Phillips, park superintendent.

ENDING SOON ARE the summer daytime rides, part of the pleasure that "no school" means for little boys. They'll be back in the classroom a few weeks from now and the peace found by resting on the side of a quiet dirt road will be replaced with bustle youngsters experience in today's academic settings.

Dinner-dance tickets on sale at several spots

Tickets for the Buffalo Grove Days dinner-dance Sept. 1 are on sale at several locations in the village.

The dinner-dance is part of the 11th annual Buffalo Grove Days celebration Labor Day weekend, Aug. 31-Sept. 3. It will be in the parking lot of the Ranch Mart Shopping Center, Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads.

Cocktails will be served at 7 p.m., with dinner at 8 p.m. The buffet dinner will include beef, chicken, ham, Swedish meat balls, several salads and a relish tray.

From 9:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. those attending can dance to music provided by Bill Scott and his band.

The dinner-dance along with the other Buffalo Grove Days festivities will take place in a Gay 90s setting. Although not compulsory, those attending the dinner-dance are urged to dress in Gay '90s attire. Prizes will be given for the best costumes.

At the dinner-dance Village Pres. Gary Armstrong will present the Citizens Commendation Award to the person chosen as the outstanding resident in Buffalo Grove for 1973.

Tickets for the dinner-dance which are $5 a person are available at the Village Hall, 50 Raupp Blvd., Forest Liquors in the Buffalo Grove Mall or Rose-Lynn Flooring in the Ranch Mart Shopping Center. Tickets are also available by calling Bobbi Katz at 537-1498.

Confusion around Kildeer School's temporary closing

by JILL BETTNER

There is apparently some confusion surrounding the Dist. 96 Board of Education's plan to temporarily close Kildeer School in Long Grove next year for remodeling.

The board several months ago decided to close the school temporarily, not totally, after the new Twin Groves School in Buffalo Grove opens in January.

The current enrollment in Dist. 96, just over 1,140 students, is not sufficient to operate all three schools in the district, according to the board.

BECAUSE KILDEER School, the oldest in the district, needs some remodeling, the board decided to close it and do the work while the school is not needed.

The board's July 18 decision was made on the recommendation of a 13-member community relations committee of school board members and residents. The committee studied the projected use of all school facilities for several months.

Twin Groves School is scheduled to be completed by the end of November. School Dist. 96 Supt. William Hiltzman has said the equipment and materials at Kildeer School will probably be transferred to the new building during Christmas vacation.

HILTZMAN yesterday also clarified who will be going where when classes resume after vacation. Students in the fifth through eighth grades and four sections of kindergarten pupils are scheduled to attend Twin Groves School. Some kindergarten students and children in the first through fourth grades are to attend Willow Grove School.

Hiltzman said if the enrollment at Willow Grove increases between now and the time Twin Groves School opens, there is a chance that fourth grade students will attend the new school. Until that time, however, they will attend Willow Grove School.

low Grove, despite rumors to the contrary.

Construction is scheduled to close Kildeer School at least for one year from the time the work begins. School officials have said that although that means remodeling will probably be finished in January of 1974, they do not foresee a need to reopen the school until the following fall.

The School Dist. 96 architect has estimated the cost of completely remodeling Kildeer School at about $500,000. Because the district has only about $350,000 currently on hand, the work will be done in three phases.

THE FIRST PHASE, as it is now planned, would include enclosing the central courtyard to expand the library into a larger resource center and converting adjacent classrooms into "pod areas."

The pod areas are designed to better accommodate the Individually Guided Education (IGE) program adopted last year by the district. The pods, unlike conventional classrooms, are open areas with portable walls that would allow teachers to work with either small or large groups.

The second and third phases of the program would include the addition of two more pods which officials have said would probably be built during the summer when the necessary funds become available.

School officials have stressed that all funds for the remodeling will come from funds available to the district through regular taxes. A referendum will not be conducted to do the work, as had been rumored.

Depending on which grades are scheduled to attend Kildeer School when the building is reopened, the school board will decide how the school will be equipped. Materials may be transferred from other schools in the district or purchased new.

BUFFALO GROVE FIRE department cadets manage to lend a helping hand in many places. Here they assist at the recent village blood drive. The three year old cadet program includes Buffalo Grove teenagers between the ages of 14 and 17. Cadets receive training in fire fighting procedures and help out around the department.

Boys learn the ropes

Boredom? Not for future firemen

by JEANNETTE DeWYZE
Some teenagers complain of boredom, and others take to the streets for want of something to do. But one group of Buffalo Grove teenagers has no such problem.

Teenagers in this group are members in the Buffalo Grove fire department cadet program, who assist the department while learning about the job of firefighting. The program, now over three years old, is open to Buffalo Grove boys between the ages of 14 and 17.

Cadets have one training session of their own a month. They also participate in the regular department drill sessions, two Tuesday nights and one Sunday morning a month.

THE TRAINING which cadets receive includes sessions on fire prevention, ladder drill, hose drill, ventilation, and other fire-fighting techniques.

Although all cadets were sponsored by individual department members, only four firemen now act as advisors to the program. The basic organization of the cadets is the same as that of regular firemen. Cadets also elect officers from among themselves every six months.

Nine cadets are participating in the program, although up to twelve boys may be included in it at one time. In addition to their training sessions, cadets tend to spend a lot of time around the fire station helping out, according to department Lt. Robert Krause.

Although cadets are not allowed to ride on the trucks to fires, some of the older boys in the program can be called in to help with cleaning up after a fire is out, Krause said. "And they do a heck of a good job," he added.

Cadets also help around the fire station, cleaning the apparatus and doing general maintenance work on the equipment.

"Cadets just can't do quite as much as the regular men's fire program," Krause said.

"But we try," Cadet Dean Rosenquist, a member of the program since its inception, added with a grin.

ACCORDING TO KRAUSE, cadets tend to stay in the program for varying lengths of time. Some boys drop out after six months, while others have been in the program for over three years, he said.

In fact, three cadets already have gone on to join the regular men's program. In order to do so, a cadet must be 18 years old and have the consent of his parents.

The differences in cadet participation reflect the multi-faceted purpose of the program. While the program was "formed as a good place to get kids interested in permanent firefighting" it was also intended to provide interested teenagers with a briefer experience of what firefighting is about, Krause said.

Sometimes, the program's two purposes merge.

"I joined just to see what it would be like," Cadet Rosenquist said. "And then I found out that it was a lot of fun. And a lot of work, too, he added."

Leaf-burning bill's impact uncertain

Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove and Schaumburg now have no separate ordinances prohibiting burning and village officials say they are uncertain as to what the suburbs will do in light of the new bill.

"If the state does permit leaf burning in the area, then we would have to sit down with the village board to evaluate what kind of problem it could cause the village of Schaumburg," Robert Grossman, village director of public health, said.

He said because of the newness of the community he did not think leaf disposal was now a significant problem.

Leaves also are not a major problem in Buffalo Grove, according to the village's public works director, Bill Davis. He said he did not know if the village will pass an ordinance prohibiting burning now.

AS A RESULT of another action taken by the governor Monday, the Cook County Forest Preserve District now plans to go ahead with its recommendation of a new tree-recycling plant east of Wheeling, Assistant General Superintendent James Tyndall said yesterday.

Construction of the new plant has been held up, pending word on a bill which might have allowed for open burning of area trees once again.

However, Gov. Walker vetoed the bill in question Monday. The district now plans to recommend construction of the plant to the Board of Forest Preserve Commissioners at its regular meeting next Monday.

THE DISTRICT already has drawn up specifications and opened bids on the new plant. The need for a decision on the bill had forced the delay in the plant plans, however, Tyndall said, because the district feared the plant might be unnecessary if area suburbs were allowed to burn their own trees once again.

The proposed recycling plant is intended as a solution to a long-standing problem with diseased tree disposal in the area.

If the plant is approved by the board, it should be set up "within a couple of months," Tyndall said.

Boys, if you like football-why not sign up for a team Saturday?

Registration for the Buffalo Grove Boys Football Association (BGFA) program will be conducted Saturday, from noon until 2 p.m. at the park district building, 150 Raupp Blvd.

All boys between the ages of 11 and 14 who live in the Buffalo Grove area are eligible to participate.

No fee will be collected at the time of registration. A $15 charge will be due when a boy is placed on a team.

The first practice is scheduled for Aug. 27 following a league weigh-in Aug. 25.

Teams in the BGFA will compete in the Wheeling Invitational League and play a six-to-eight game schedule. The regular 1973 season will begin Sept. 15.

Because of a new league ruling, each boy will be required to play at least one quarter of each game.

Anyone interested in participating in the BGFA program who is unable to register Saturday should contact Jim O'Heir at 537-3844.

Newcomers will meet at Addolorata Villa

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Newcomers Club will meet at 8 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 23 at Addolorata Villa in Wheeling.

The program for the meeting will feature a discussion of the book "How to Enjoy Eating Without Committing Suicide" by Charles D. Ewart.

For more information, contact Bonnie Wetzel, 2 Aspen Ct., Buffalo Grove.

Why are our oak trees dying?

by JOE SWICKARD

Hundreds of large oak trees are dying and forestry experts don't know the reason.

"We don't know what it is. It just looks like they're dead," said George Pour, Cook County Forest Preserve associate forester.

According to Pour, something is killing off the white and red oaks that abound in forest preserves. All preserves have been affected, he said, but Deer Grove, near Palatine, has been hit especially hard.

The blight is not confined to the preserves. The University of Illinois Extension Service in Des Plaines reports it has received about 10 calls a day from worried oak owners.

THE WIDESPREAD affliction first came to the attention of officials through helicopter surveys of the forest preserves, Pour said.

Pour said his department has called in expert advisers from the University of Illinois and the U.S. Forestry Service in St. Paul, Minn., to help combat or at least identify the ailment.

Oak wilt (a common disease) was at first suspected of being the culprit, but was ruled out in most cases through pathological tests, Pour said. Another theory is inclined to blame stress, he said.

"It might be stress on the plant system. We had a drought a couple of years ago and then two years that were really wet. It's hard on the roots," Pour said.

MELANIE SOWKA, of the extension service, concurred with this theory. The oak tree, despite its massive appearance is actually a very delicate plant, she said.

"Oaks don't get along well with people. They're wild and they don't like a lot of people," she said.

She said the root system of the oak tree is near the surface and susceptible to "shock." The past three years of drought and then an over abundance of water have played havoc with the tree's nutrient gathering system, she said.

While saying the extension service is running tests to determine if a fungus is the cause of the die-off, Miss Sowka said affected trees near construction sites might point toward the stress theory.

Dirt becomes compacted under the heavy traffic of machinery, she said, cutting off the tree's food supply.

OAKS ON private property are also suffering because the lawn sod is too thick. The dense grasses use up most of the plant nutrients before it gets to the oak roots, she said. The roots are too shallow to tap underground water sources to make up for the surface starvation.

She suggested that homeowners with oak trees keep the soil bare around the tree to permit the rain and nutrients to be absorbed by the roots. She also recommended fertilizing the trees, but to avoid watering them.

Dan Brown, of the forestry service, said he was called into the area to make tests and inspect the diseased trees.

"I don't know what it is," Brown said, adding samples of roots, leaves and stems had been taken for further testing.

BROWN, TOO, tends to subscribe to the stress theory. He said the oak trees are often found in a clay soil, which holds moisture longer than regular loam.

He said cultures from the samples would be ready in about two weeks, but that results from tests on the cultures might take two months. The culture tests would tell plant pathologists whether the die-off was of a pathogenic (disease) origin, Brown said.

"It might be because of something pathogenic or physiologic. If I had to make a guess I would say it was the latter," he said.

Brown said local foresters would watch the trees next spring to determine if the new leaves are diseased. If they are, it would support the fungus or infection theory.

THE BLIGHT seems to be centered around Chicago. Brown said there were one or two other cases of large oak die-offs, but circumstances are not similar to the local affliction.

Pour said not much can be done to prevent the blight until its source is identified.

"We have our men out marking trees now. We're watching them pretty close," he said.

Trailer park owners to pay back taxes

A 55-acre Wheeling trailer park property that remained off the tax rolls from September, 1970, to January, 1972, will be back-taxed, a spokesman for County Assessor P. J. Cullerton said yesterday.

The trailer park, Whippletree Village Inc., 525 N. McHenry Rd., escaped real estate taxes by holding onto the tax exemption of the property's previous owner, the Servite Sisters, for 15 months after it bought the land.

Owners of the trailer park will be asked to attend a hearing and show cause why the back taxes should not be levied against the property this year, the Cullerton spokesman said.

He said the owners were originally notified of Cullerton's intention to collect back taxes in February, 1972, but that no action has yet been taken to hold the hearing. He said the 18-month delay was not unusual.

"The back tax hearing has not been held. I expect it to be held later in the year," the spokesman said.

THE TAX exemption was one of several instances of preferential government treatment of Whippletree disclosed last week by the Herald. The trailer park has ties to the politically influential family of James Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman.

The Cullerton spokesman said Whippletree will probably be back-taxed for the 15-month period using the $5,000 per acre assessed valuation carried during 1972 by the trailer park. That assessment was increased last month to $12,500 an acre.

The assessor's office has denied that the increase came after Herald inquiries about Whippletree's taxes. Its $5,000 assessed land value for tax purposes was the lowest valuation of any area trailer park last year.

ALSO DISCLOSED last week was the fact that a $165,000 recreation and administration building at Whippletree has remained off the tax rolls since a permit was issued for its construction in March, 1971.

A copy of the permit, which was supposed to be forwarded by the Wheeling village building department, was never received at the local township assessor's office. Further information on Whippletree's taxes is not immediately available because its property records are out in the field, the Cullerton spokesman said.

Barons do well in competition

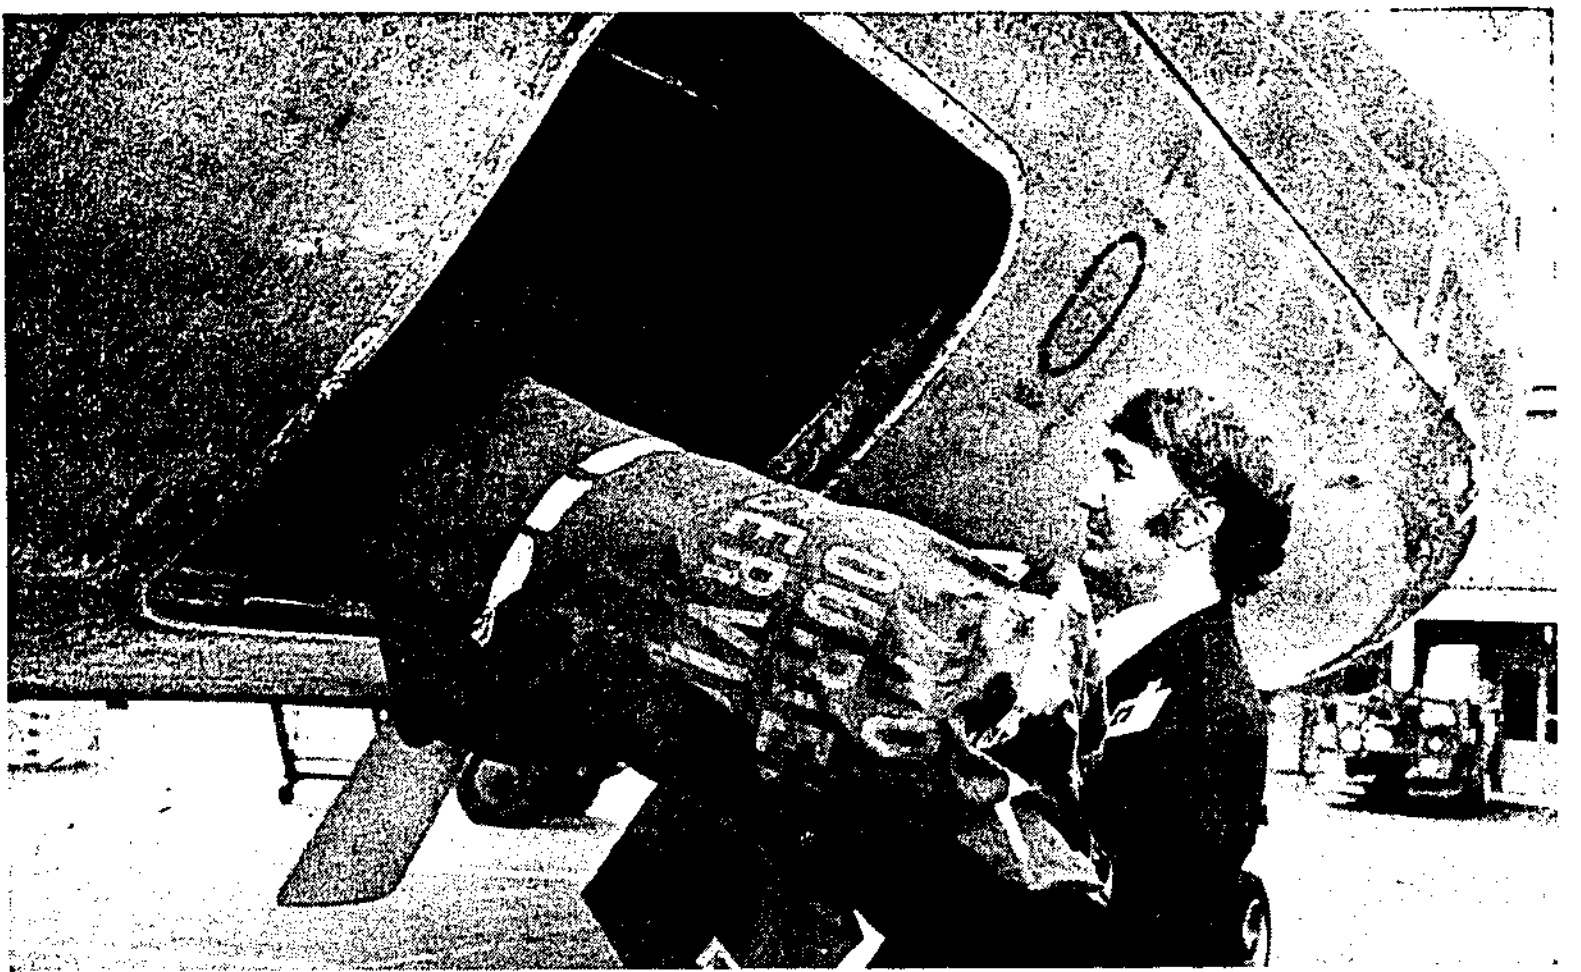

The Buffalo Grove Barons Drum and Twirling Corps recently placed high in national competition at the University of Notre Dame in South Bend, Ind.

The Barons placed ninth out of a field of 27 corps in overall competition and the music section of the corps placed second.

The week-long 1973 American Youth on Parade National Corps Championship is an invitational contest. The Barons were one of only three groups in Illinois to be asked to participate.

Gay Karp is the director of the 42-member corps sponsored by the Buffalo Grove Park District.

Although the national championship finished the Barons' regular performing season, they will participate in the pa-

Service for 'urgent' deliveries

by MIKE ZARENBA

The man in the jet black suit looks a little mysterious, even intriguing, as he jumps out of the cab. He grabs a big brown duffel bag, a large envelope, pays the cabbie and walks through the automatic doors at O'Hare Airport.

A voice comes over the PA system: The TWA flight leaves in 15 minutes. The checker takes the duffel bag, slaps on a tag and hands the man a receipt. The bag is now on the conveyor belt, going down to the loading center. No time to waste.

Reaching in his pocket, he pulls out an I.D. card and pins it to his breast pocket.

He picks up his pace a little, working his way down the long steel staircase to the loading dock.

THE SIGN ABOVE the revolving doors reads: "Employees Only." A security guard stops him, but he flashes his I.D. card. "Okay, fine," the guard says.

He has sight of the bag again as it comes down the long conveyor. A few buttons are pushed by an operator, lights flash, the bag scoots down to a section marked "5."

The man in the jet black suit watches the baggage handler place the duffel bag in a big steel bin which is then hooked to a small scooter cab and wheeled out onto the airport concourse.

He flashes his I.D. card at another guard, following the duffel bag, still holding his envelope. His suit flaps in the jet blast as he runs after the scooter.

A mechanic, kneeling next to one of the jet tires, is checking something. He looks up and catches sight of the running figure.

The big brown duffel bag is the last piece of cargo to be stuffed into the plane's belly. He is sure of that.

THE MAN IN the black suit works for Network Courier Service (NCS), a company that picks up parcels and documents at offices all over the United States, safeguards them enroute and delivers them within hours, if necessary. He can't make mistakes; the job doesn't allow it.

The man hurries back to the loading center, up the staircase, through the terminal. Before he boards the plane, his envelope must pass through the X-ray detector. No problems. He grabs the envelope and walks onto the ramp.

The ticket girl noticed the I.D. card, but he was moving too fast. She turns to the steward and he points to a name on the list.

Every day, morning and night, this man and other NCS couriers working out of the company's Des Plaines office, 2500 Devon Ave., retrace those steps through the hectic O'Hare terminals.

RON MUNLEY, Chicago district manager, said the business was started by a Columbia Broadcasting System executive who found sending movie film, videotape and correspondence a risky task via

"No one can beat an eight cent stamp. But when it's urgent, where time is important, that's when the courier service is needed," Munley said.

"The couriers are well trained and know what to do in an emergency," Munley added. Most of the men are retired policemen or firemen. NCS keeps in constant touch with its men to locate a courier fast when he's needed. The company's operation is flexible, designed to get deliveries to their destination quickly and safely.

If a flight to New York is forced by bad weather to land in Boston, for instance, the courier may rent a car on the last leg of his trip. For morning deliveries to Wall Street customers, NCS couriers use a helicopter service from New York's Kennedy Airport. For shipments of valuables, an armed guard accompanies the NCS man.

Average cost for the service is about $40 for each shipment of less than 10 lbs. NCS couriers handle just about everything: legal documents, stock prospectuses, television scripts, computer parts or publisher proof sheets.

EVERY SATURDAY, during the hockey season, for example, a courier is sent to Montreal for films of National Hockey League games. He delivers them to New York, where they are broadcast nationwide on Sunday. After the Johnny Carson show is filmed each day in Los Angeles, an NCS courier makes sure the film gets to New York within hours.

The company has also handled some odd jobs. Its couriers went along with the electronic podium used for this year's Grammy Awards show from Nashville. They carried the manuscript and photographs for Norman Mailer's controversial new book on Marilyn Monroe.

A National Broadcasting Co. executive even hired NCS to fly along with his mother because he was afraid she'd get lost en route, Munley said.

ON HIS TRIP to New York, the NCS courier from Chicago lands at Kennedy Airport and reverses the steps he took to get on the plane. Through the terminal to the loading center, he flashes the I.D. card and walks onto the field. The brown duffel bag comes off the plane and he's on his way, envelope in hand.

He waves down a cab and is on his way. Minutes later, he is in an elevator. The doors open on the fifth floor of a Manhattan office building.

The courier delivers the packages in the duffel bag and the envelope, making sure they go to the right man, not a secretary.

He then finds a telephone booth in the main lobby, dials a Chicago number, identifies himself and verifies delivery and the exact time. His first assignment is complete, but his day is not over. In a few hours he might be sent to Los Angeles, Baltimore, Washington or San Francisco.

ENDING SOON ARE the summer daytime rides, part of the pleasure that "no school" means for little boys. They'll be back in the classroom a few weeks from now and the peace found by resting on the side of a quiet dirt road will be replaced with bustle youngsters experience in today's academic settings.

Dinner-dance tickets on sale at several spots

Tickets for the Buffalo Grove Days dinner-dance Sept. 1 are on sale at several locations in the village.

The dinner-dance is part of the 11th annual Buffalo Grove Days celebration Labor Day weekend, Aug. 31-Sept. 3. It will be in the parking lot of the Ranch Mart Shopping Center, Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads.

Cocktails will be served at 7 p.m., with dinner at 8 p.m. The buffet dinner will include beef, chicken, ham, Swedish meat balls, several salads and a relish tray.

From 9:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. those attending can dance to music provided by Bill Scott and his band.

The dinner-dance along with the other Buffalo Grove Days festivities will take place in a Gay '90s setting. Although not compulsory, those attending the dinner-dance are urged to dress in Gay '90s attire. Prizes will be given for the best costumes.

At the dinner-dance Village Pres. Gary Armstrong will present the Citizens Commendation Award to the person chosen as the outstanding resident in Buffalo Grove for 1973.

Tickets for the dinner-dance which are $5 a person are available at the Village Hall, 50 Raupp Blvd., Foremost Liquors in the Buffalo Grove Mall or Rose-Lynn Flooring in the Ranch Mart Shopping Center. Tickets are also available by calling Bobbi Katz at 537-1498.

Protection for citizens and police

Smile—you're on village's candid TV police cameras

Elk Grove Village squad cars will soon be equipped with television cameras to assist in police work.

Police Lt. William Kohnke said the first camera unit should be installed next week. The cameras will be used on a trial basis. The units are being purchased with a grant from the Highway Safety Department.

Kohnke said the cameras will be used to record activity on a video cassette machine in the car's trunk. The cassette can then be used as evidence in court.

For example, if a patrolman observes a traffic violation such as running a stop sign, he can turn on the camera to film the incident. The film could be replayed when the offender appears in court.

THE CAMERAS will be mounted on the dashboard of the cars, but they can be removed and used outside.

Kohnke said the department will require the patrolman to turn the camera on every time he leaves the car for arrest or investigation. He said the filmed record will be a protection for both the policeman and any citizen he might stop.

The film will show the encounter between the policeman and the citizen to verify or disprove charges of police brutality, said Kohnke.

The cameras will only record visual images. No sound will be recorded because films are admissible in court, but sound recordings cannot be used as evidence.

The cameras will be equipped with "automatic eyes" to adjust the lens openings. "You just pick it up and shoot," said Kohnke.

THE FILM will be recorded on the cassette instantly and the camera can be used in daylight and at night.

The police department is also attempting to get a grant to purchase mobile "teleprinters" for the squad cars. The printers are data processing devices that would provide information such as pending traffic tickets and warrants for arrest on a suspect. With the teleprinter, a patrolman in a squad car could request information directly from the records department in Springfield without contacting the local police headquarters.

Officials rip convention center site annexation

Elk Grove Village officials will appear at tonight's Arlington Heights public hearing on annexation of the Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center site to protest the Arlington Heights action.

The village board designated Elk Grove Village Mgr. Charles Willis and the village attorney to attend the hearing. They will personally present an Elk Grove Village resolution objecting to the expected annexation.

Willis said he would also make a statement to the Arlington Heights Plan Commission at the meeting, scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Arlington Heights Municipal Building, 35 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

The Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center is planned for a now unincorporated site south of the Northwest Tollway and east of Arlington Heights Road.

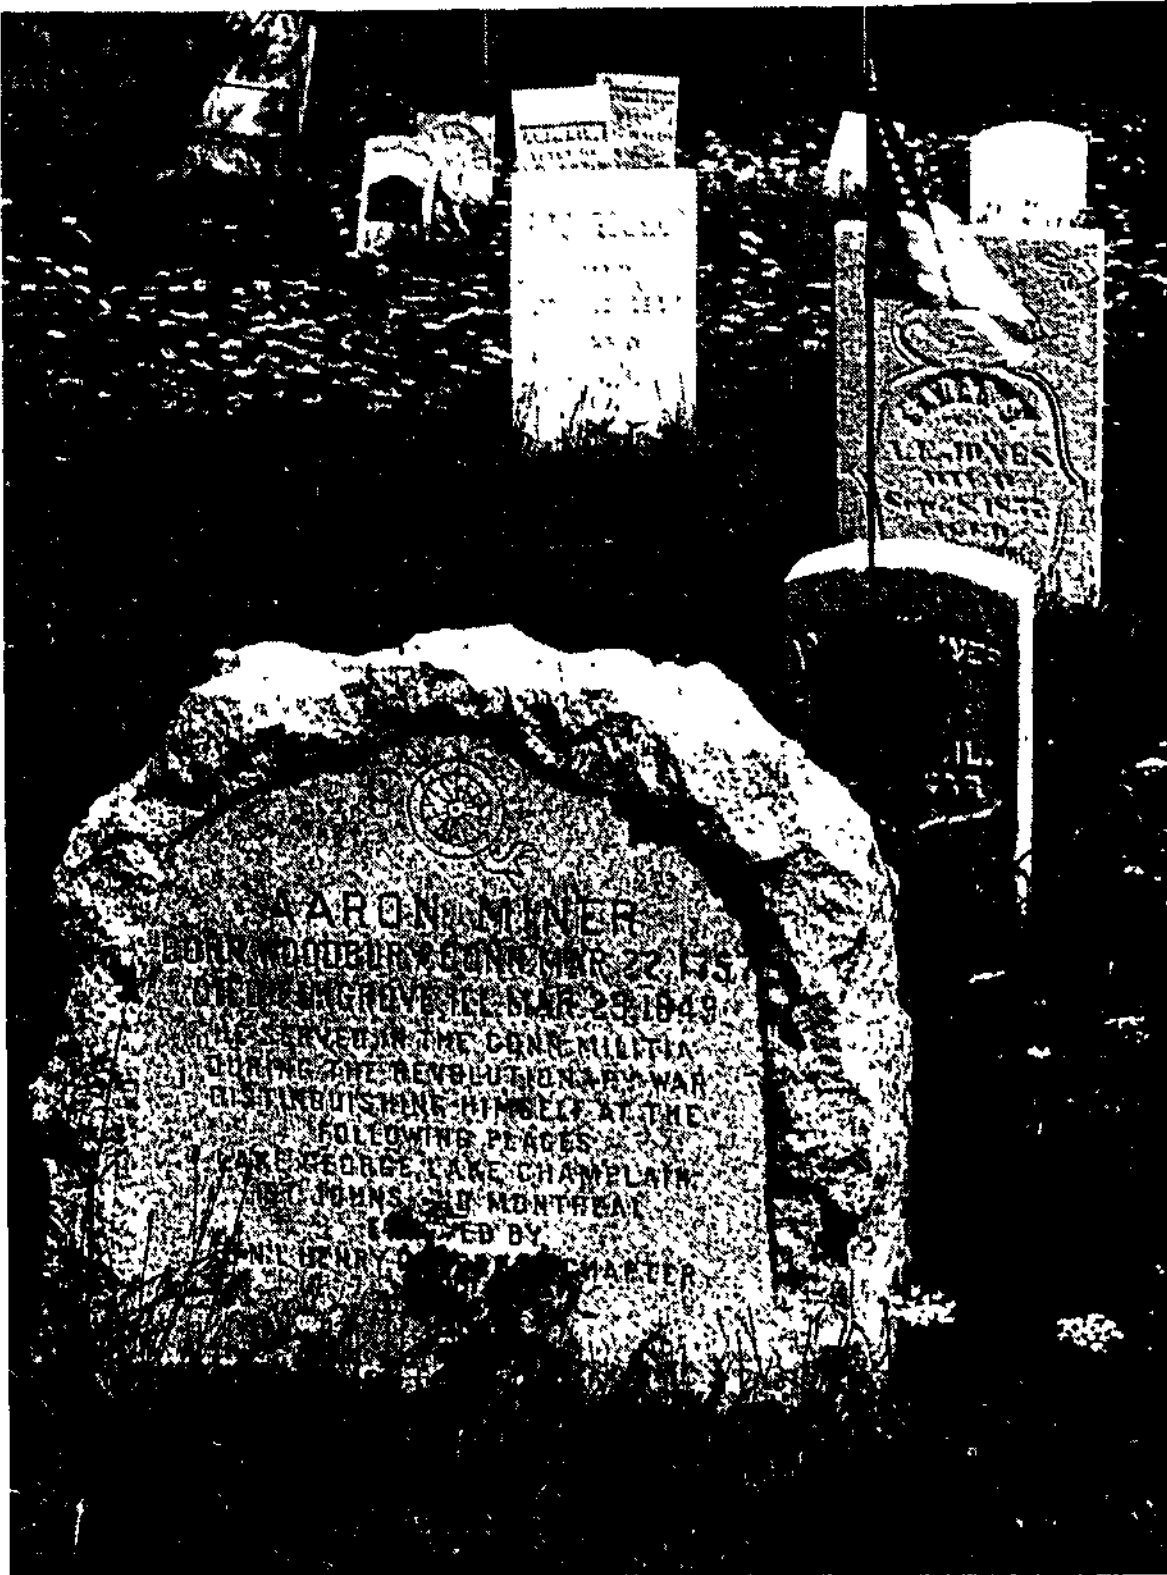

TO ANNEX THE property, Arlington Heights would have to annex a portion of the tollway to maintain contiguous boundaries.

At Tuesday's Elk Grove Village board meeting, a resolution was passed protesting the Illinois Tollway Commission's granting of permission for annexation. A copy of the resolution will be sent to the commission.

Charles Klehm, owner of the property, is seeking annexation to Arlington Heights.

An attorney for Klehm recently presented a list of demands to Arlington Heights that the village must honor if it wants to annex the 120-acre site.

- THE DEMANDS include:
- No density or height limitations on apartment buildings for the site.
 - Liquor licenses, if needed, with 4 a.m. closing time.
 - Approval of any other special uses for future development of the site.
 - Right to introduce more than one planned development on the site.
 - Waiver of the village's right of eminent domain.
 - Guarantee against any increases

A PILGRIM GRANITE stone marks the grave of Aaron Miner, a Revolutionary War Veteran who later settled in Elk Grove. The stone was erected in 1931 by the Dearborn Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

ELI SKINNER, an early settler in the Elk Grove area, served as a fifer in the Revolutionary War. He is buried in the Elk Grove Cemetery. See another photo on Page 5.

Trade center will overshadow graves

Tiny cemetery links past, future

by LINDA PUNCH

In the late 1830s, a small girl named Mary Barnes was buried in the cemetery of a Congregational Church in what is now known as Elk Grove Township.

The great granddaughter of a Revolutionary War veteran, Mary was among the first pioneers to settle in this area. She was also the first person to be buried in the Elk Grove Cemetery.

The church and pioneer homes have long since disappeared, but the cemetery has somehow survived the onslaught of progress. Tucked into a triangle of land between a tollway entrance ramp and Arlington Heights Road, the one-acre tract will soon be overshadowed by the proposed Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center. The cemetery remains one of the few untouched historical sites in the area.

OF THE FOUR Revolutionary soldiers buried in Cook County, two — Aaron Miner and Eli Skinner — are buried in the Elk Grove Cemetery.

Miner, a Connecticut Minuteman, served in the Continental Army from 1775-83. He was a member of the First Connecticut Regiment and fought at the battles of Lake George, Lake Champlain, St. John's and Montreal.

Miner was 76 years old when he began the journey to Illinois in 1833. Along with his son and granddaughter, he made the trip in a covered wagon drawn by oxen. He died in 1849 and was buried near his great granddaughter, Mary Barnes.

Skinner was born in Vermont in 1780 and joined the Continental Army as a fifer at the age of 15. He served through eight years of rebellion, including the battle of Ticonderoga.

LIKE MINER, Skinner moved during the 1830s to Elk Grove, where he lived in a house at the corner of Arlington Heights and Algonquin roads. He served as road commissioner when Elk Grove Township was formed in 1850 and died a year later at the age of 91.

There are other soldiers buried in the cemetery, including one veteran of the War of 1812, five Civil War veterans and two unknown soldiers. Most of their graves are designated by small faded flags and markers placed by the American Legion.

The history of the area is reflected in the names on the headstones — Goebert, Sharringhausen, Cooley, Clough, Wheeler and Busse.

ALLEN BUSSE, secretary of the Elk Grove Cemetery Association, notes that the tombstones "show the different nationalities and types of people who lived in this area."

"The early stones are all New England Yankees — Skinner, Clough, Cooley, Miner," he said. "Later in the 1870s you start getting German names."

The grave markers also hint at private tragedies suffered by pioneer families. Numerous stones mark the graves of babies and children. Many are faded by time and weather with little else but the name and date visible.

Others are still legible, such as the stone marking the grave of two-month-old Ann Maria Draper, who died in the late 1850s. It reads: "Ere sin could blight or sorrow fade/ Death came with friendly care/ The opening bud to heaven conveyed/ And Bade it blossom there."

ANOTHER STONE marks the graves of 15-year-old Maria Corey and 16-year-old Alice Corey, twin sisters who died in 1854 and 1855. Nearby, a simple white marker stands over the grave of a mother and child: "Mary Cooley and baby, Aug. 30, 1904. 'She hath done what she could.'"

Several headstones tell a brief story such as the one marking the grave of a Civil War soldier: "Eugene H. Skinner, co.G., 113 Ill. Inf., died at Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 21, 1865, 21 years, 6 mos. Son of Lucius and Juliette Skinner."

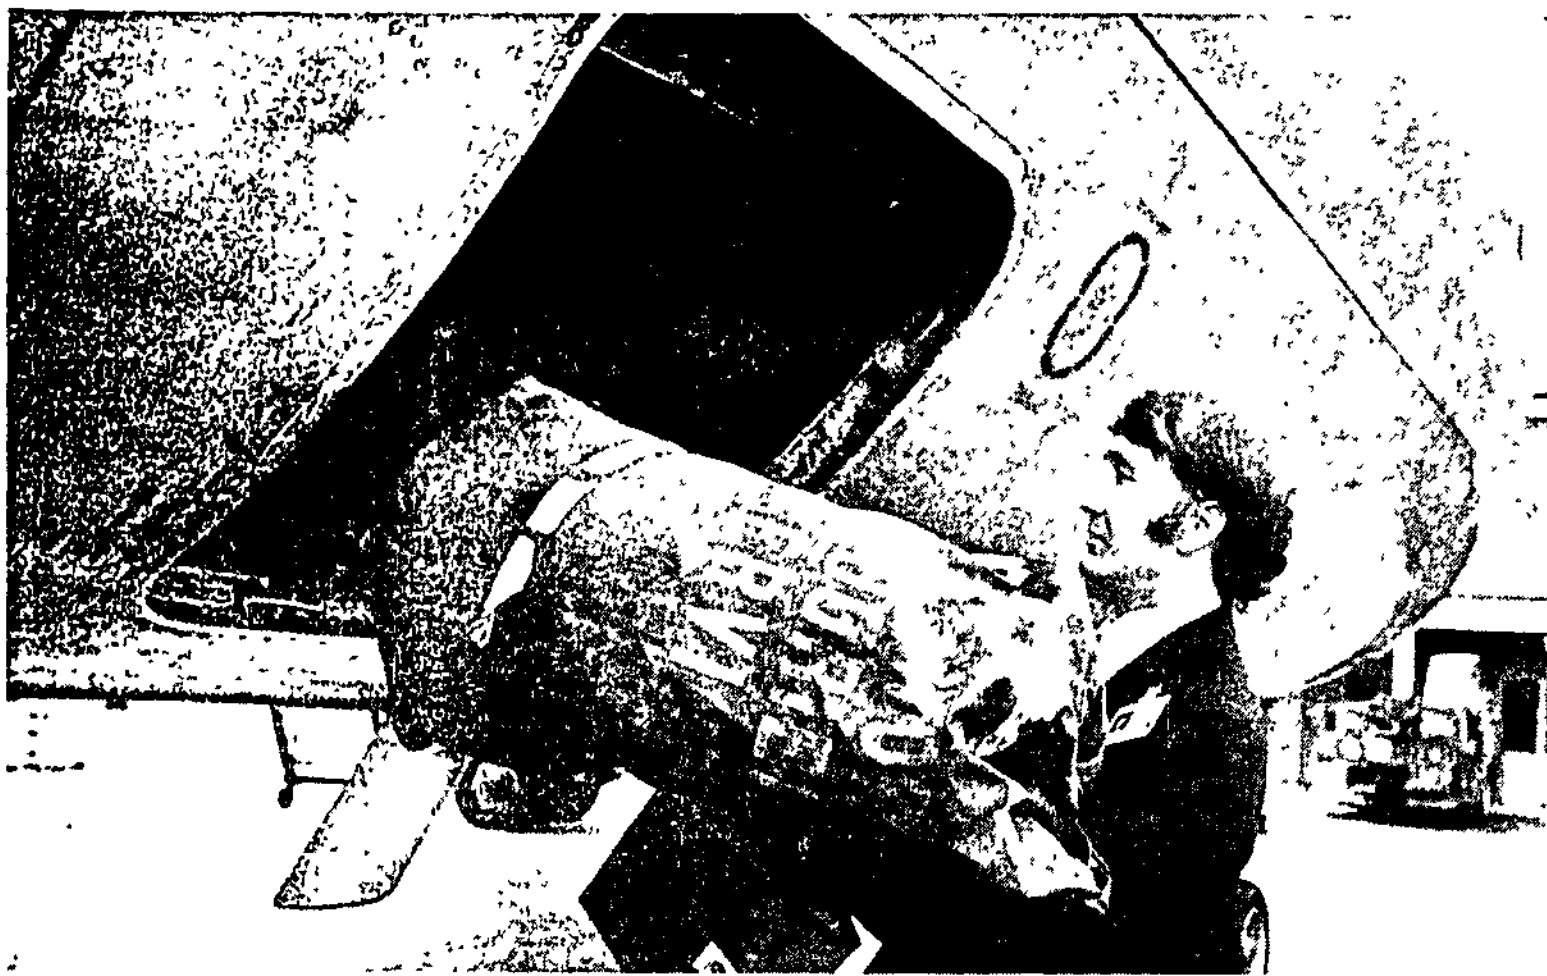

Many of the graves are unmarked, the stones long ago faded and cracked with age. Others have sunk into the ground, to be covered by dirt and creeping grass.

As time passes, new graves will join those of the Early Elk Grove settlers. The names of Skinner and Miner will be remembered by few but the most avid history buffs.

And the Elk Grove Cemetery will continue to be one of the last strongholds of the past in a suburban area looking to the future.

Girl gets 19 stitches to close cut in cheek

Susan Lynch, 10, of 152 Basswood had 19 stitches Tuesday to close a razor cut in her cheek.

According to Elk Grove Village police, Miss Lynch was cut as she left the 7-Eleven store at 565 Landmeier Rd. Scott Hennessey, 16, had been working at the store, scrapping the floor. Hennessey had attached a razor blade to a broom handle to do the scraping. He had placed the broom, with the razor, in the doorway.

When Susan walked out of the store, Hennessey accidentally bumped the broom handle, cutting the girl, according to police.

The girl was taken to Alexian Brothers Medical Center for treatment.

by JEANNETTE DEWYZE

Despite the signing of a bill by Gov. Daniel Walker Monday that could allow leaf burning, it may be a while before Northwest suburban residents know whether they will be able to burn their leaves once again.

The bill, which will go into effect Oct. 1, lifts the Pollution Control Board's general ban on open-leaf burning. However, the board still will have the authority to curb burning in individual geographical areas where pollution is high and burning could be harmful to life or health.

According to Jacob Dumelle, acting chairman of the board, the board has not yet decided how it will handle setting the new standards for leaf burning.

The board already has held some public hearings on a proposal that would allow leaf burning in cities which meet federal air pollution standards.

TWO MORE such public hearings on the proposal will probably be scheduled for September, Dumelle said. Thus, new standards for leaf burning may be in effect by mid-October, he said.

Dumelle said he could not speculate on whether leaf-burning will be prohibited in the Northwest suburbs if the proposal is accepted.

Parts of the Chicago metropolitan area do not meet federal air pollution standards now. In the past, the board has treated the entire Chicago metropolitan area as a unit, he said.

However, depending on the outcome of the hearings, "anything's possible," Dumelle said.

REACTION to the bill from Northwest suburban government officials varied.

Some suburbs, like Hoffman Estates, already have separate ordinances prohibiting leaf burning and plan to continue their bans no matter what the pollution control board decides.

"I don't see any burning in the village," said Edward Kalasa, deputy chief of the Hoffman Estates fire protection district.

Village officials in Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Des Plaines, and Rolling Meadows, all of which now have ordinances prohibiting burning, echoed his sentiments.

"I think the people of Palatine have been more than cooperative in not burning leaves, and it's helpful to the environment. There isn't any reason for us to burn leaves with the bag program we have," said Palatine Village President Wendell E. Jones.

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer said the city will "try to look for more ways to handle" the leaf problem, despite the new bill.

MOST OF the suburbs that already prohibit burning now have effective alternative methods of handling dead leaves. Leaf disposal methods include bagging leaves, grinding them up, and using the leaves for mulch.

Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove and Schaumburg now have no separate ordinances prohibiting burning and village officials say they are uncertain as to what the suburbs will do in light of the new bill.

"If the state does permit leaf burning in the area, then we would have to sit down with the village board to evaluate what kind of problem it could cause the village of Schaumburg," Robert Grossman, village director of public health, said.

He said because of the newness of the community he did not think leaf disposal was now a significant problem.

Busse basin bid OK hits a snag

A "minor problem" with the low-bid offer for excavation work of the Busse Woods retention basin has prevented the state from awarding the contract.

John Guillou, chief engineer of the state Division of Waterways, said the bidder indicated an incorrect figure for the estimate of excavation work required. He said the state and bidder were working on the problem and should solve it within a "couple days."

Guillou refused to release the name of the low bidder.

The contract work is for the first phase of construction, excavation and clearing of the site for the basin.

OTHER CONTRACTS will have to be awarded for succeeding phases on construction.

The Busse Woods retention basin, located in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve in unincorporated Elk Grove Township, will be the major structure of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed flood control plan.

The Busse Woods structure will create a 589-acre basin for flood water storage. The area around the basin will be developed as a major recreational site.

Gov. Daniel Walker recently approved more than $3 million for the construction of the retention basin.

Total cost of the flood control program, which will provide a series of retention basins on the creek, is $26.5 million. State and local governments have committed funds for about half the cost of the project. Federal funds are being requested for the remaining costs.

Convention center site annex hit which might be encountered in future developments.

Arlington Heights negotiated a similar list of demands before annexing the Arlington Park Race Track property.

ELK GROVE Village is protesting the annexation of the site by Arlington Heights because the land has long been planned to be part of Elk Grove Village.

A comprehensive plan for Elk Grove Village, adopted in 1967, showed the land as ultimately being annexed.

No written agreement, however, was ever drawn up between Elk Grove Village and Arlington Heights.

In addition to violating the master plan, village officials said Elk Grove will be forced to provide police service and other utilities to the center, without receiving any tax revenue.

Driver in fatal crash charged on three counts

Robert Lilly has been charged with three traffic violations after a June 27 triple-fatality auto accident.

Lilly, 28, of 1125 Perth Dr., Schaumburg, was charged with crossing a yellow line, leaving the scene of an accident and driving under the influence of alcohol.

Killed in the accident were Anthony Wilson of Island Lake and Beverly Mackson and Ralph Peters of Chicago. Charges against Lilly were not filed until recently, and the state's attorney's office is still investigating.

According to police, Lilly was driving north bound on the Northwest Tollway near Higgins and Oakton roads when his auto crossed into the southbound lane. He was later found dazed and injured near a motel close to the accident scene.

Lilly is scheduled to appear in Mount Prospect branch of Cook County Circuit Court on Aug. 23.

Funds OK'd for paramedic ambulance

Elk Grove Village has authorized the purchase of the last equipment needed to equip its paramedic ambulance.

At Tuesday's village board meeting, expenses of about $6,000 for radios, medical supplies and other equipment for the ambulance were approved.

Fire Chief Allen Huelt told the trustees the department is expecting delivery on the "van-type" ambulance in two to three weeks. He said the total cost of the ambulance, when fully equipped, will be about $30,000.

A federal grant will repay the village for up to $10,000 of the cost of the ambulance.

Huelt said the paramedics of the department are now working with members of the Alexian Brothers Medical Center emergency staff to coordinate procedures.

Paramedics are personnel trained to give emergency medical treatment. During an emergency, paramedics are in direct radio contact with a physician at a hospital.

The fire department will save several hundred dollars on the cost of the radios by converting surplus radios donated by the village police department.

In other action at the meeting, the board passed a resolution supporting state house bill 1958, a regional mass-transit authority for the Chicago metropolitan area. The resolution was prepared by the Council of Governments of Cook County.

The board also expressed encouragement that Gov. Daniel Walker, Chicago Mayor Richard Daley and members of the general assembly settle their differences over a regional transit authority.

ELK GROVE'S HISTORY can be read in the stones marking the graves in one of Cook County's oldest cemeteries.

What is causing the deaths of so many?

Killer blight pounces upon oak trees

by JOE SWICKARD

Hundreds of large oak trees are dying and forestry experts don't know the reason.

"We don't know what it is. It just looks like they're dead," said George Pour, Cook County Forest Preserve associate forester.

According to Pour, something is killing off the white and red oaks that abound in forest preserves. All preserves have been affected, he said, but Deer Grove, near Palatine, has been hit especially hard.

The blight is not confined to the preserves. The University of Illinois Extension Service in Des Plaines reports it has received about 10 calls a day from worried oak owners.

THE WIDESPREAD affliction first came to the attention of officials through helicopter surveys of the forest preserves, Pour said.

Pour said his department has called in expert advisers from the University of Illinois and the U.S. Forestry Service in St. Paul, Minn., to help combat or at least identify the ailment.

Oak wilt (a common disease) was at first suspected of being the culprit, but was ruled out in most cases through pathological tests, Pour said. Another theory is inclined to blame stress, he said.

"It might be stress on the plant system. We had a drought a couple of years ago and then two years that were really wet. It's hard on the roots," Pour said.

MELANIE SOWKA, of the extension service, concurred with this theory. The oak tree, despite its massive appearance is actually a very delicate plant, she said.

"Oaks don't get along well with people. They're wild and they don't like a lot of people," she said.

She said the root system of the oak tree is near the surface and susceptible to "shock." The past three years of drought and then an over abundance of water have played havoc with the tree's nutrient gathering system, she said.

While saying the extension service is running tests to determine if a fungus is the cause of the die-off, Miss Sowka said affected trees near construction sites might point toward the stress theory.

Dirt becomes compacted under the heavy traffic of machinery, she said, cutting off the tree's food supply.

OAKS ON private property are also suffering because the lawn sod is too thick. The dense grasses use up most of the plant nutrients before it gets to the oak roots, she said. The roots are too shallow to tap underground water sources to make up for the surface starvation.

She suggested that homeowners with oak trees keep the soil bare around the tree to permit the rain and nutrients to be absorbed by the roots. She also recommended fertilizing the trees, but to avoid watering them.

Dan Brown, of the forestry service, said he was called into the area to make tests and inspect the diseased trees.

"I don't know what it is," Brown said, adding samples of roots, leaves and stems had been taken for further testing.

BROWN, TOO, tends to subscribe to the stress theory. He said the oak trees are often found in a clay soil, which holds moisture longer than regular loam.

He said cultures from the samples would be ready in about two weeks, but that results from tests on the cultures might take two months. The culture tests would tell plant pathologists whether the die-off was of a pathogenic (disease) origin, Brown said.

"It might be because of something pathogenic or physiogenic. If I had to make a guess I would say it was the latter," he said.

Brown said local foresters would watch the trees next spring to determine if the new leaves are diseased. If they are, it would support the fungus or infection theory.

Edison 'playground' to require license

Residents bordering on Commonwealth Edison Co. property will not be able to use the right-of-way for gardens or play equipment unless they take out liability insurance and get a license for the land from the Palatine Park District.

The park district leased the right-of-way from Commonwealth Edison last year to construct a 4.7 mile hiking and bicycle trail through the village. In most cases, only the middle 85 feet of the right of way will actually be used for the trail route, leaving 50 feet of land along both sides of the trail for homeowners to license.

Palatine Park District commissioners voted this week to notify some 25 homeowners who already have play equipment or gardens on the leased right-of-way property that the private use will have to stop unless the residents take out a license from the park district.

THE PROBLEM for the park district started when no homeowners chose to license the bordering land because of stringent insurance requirements. The 2.2 miles of trail on the Commonwealth Edison right of way is expected to be finished this year.

Residents must carry insurance coverage for the portion of right-of-way they want to license in amounts totalling $300,000 for individuals, $1 million for group injuries and $100,000 damage to property. If more people would have agreed to license the property, the park district was considering a group policy that would cost approximately $15 to $25 annually per resident.

The park board is putting the brakes on private use of the right of way because the district could be held liable for injuries suffered on private play equipment if the accident happens on park district land.

MANY OF THE gardens and play sets were installed before the park district leased the right-of-way from Commonwealth Edison last year. Park director Fred P. Hall said yesterday the residents will be asked to remove their items on the right of way probably by next spring.

"Certainly by next year, any gardens that go in will have to be on licensed property," Hall said.

All property not licensed will be mowed and maintained by the park district. The actual trail will largely be routed within the central 85 feet of the right of way.

The entire utility right-of-way totals 185 feet wide, but park commissioners had hoped to license the 50 feet on each side of the actual trail to neighboring homeowners for two reasons. The park district would have that much less land to maintain. And the homeowners could use the 50 feet to extend their own backyards.

The only catch is the liability provision, specifically designed to protect the district if a guest of the homeowner is injured on the perimeter of the leased right-of-way.

RESIDENTS WHO license the right-of-way cannot fence in the extension or close it off from the trail. But they could use the land for gardens and other private activities. Approximately 130 homes border the right-of-way along the trail route, running east-west through Palatine.

Voters approved the Palatine Trail as part of a $14 million park improvement referendum last fall. The entire 4.7 mile trail will cost approximately $190,000 when finished.

It begins at Anderson Drive in eastern Palatine and will go through several parks before ending in the Palatine Hills Golf Course and Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

Braun leaves village on a note of pride

by MARCIA KRAMER

Bert Braun is fond of relating an incident that occurred in Grand Rapids, Mich., 15 years ago when he was assistant to the city manager there.

A small pothole had developed at the edge of a residential street and the neighbors wanted it patched immediately.

The public works foreman inspected it and reported to Braun that it wasn't a serious problem and wouldn't need much work.

To which a woman who lived on the block sputtered indignantly: "He was standing out there and looking at the street as if the money to repair it was going to come out of his own pocket."

BRAUN LEANED forward, a smile slowly crossing his face. "That's one of the best compliments I've heard about public employees," he said.

"The community's concern is their concern."

The comment has characterized Braun's own career as a public employee. From Grand Rapids to West St. Paul, Minn., to Palatine, the 41-year-old municipal administrator has prided himself on efficient operation of the community's government.

Braun will be leaving Palatine Friday, having resigned as village manager following a series of conflicts with the new village board. And, in typical Braun fashion (he took just four weeks' vacation in 6 1/2 years), he'll start at his new job as village administrator in Woodridge, after a two-day interval.

HE REFLECTED on his general outlook toward municipal administration, and specifically his tenure as the chief day-to-day administrator of the Village of Palatine, in an interview yesterday in his office.

The job, Braun said, has its ups and downs, its pluses and minuses. Paramount among the pluses is the satisfaction derived from seeing Palatine grow in "an orderly way."

"A community has only one chance to do a job right the first time. If things are let go, everyone sort of running off at random, it's easy in the short term. It's what happens five to 10 years from now, when you have to undo a lot of these things."

The credit, or blame, for overseeing the village's growth lies largely with the elected, rather than appointed, officials, Braun says. "The elected representatives decide what we do. If the policies and directions of programs are good — if the community perceives that we have been on the right path — the credit for that does not rest with any administrative persons, but with the elected representatives."

BRAUN HASN'T always agreed with the board's policies and has made no secret of his opposition. He has openly criticized actions of the village board — occasionally with previous boards and fairly frequently with the present board, leading to his decision to quit.

But once the board has acted, regardless of whether Braun personally agrees with the policy, it is his responsibility to execute it. And in that sense, Braun says with pride, "I think we've done well. A lot has been accomplished here."

He regards his primary role as manager as one of coordination — keeping track of the multitude of chores which have to be performed and making sure they are.

BRAUN IS the one who sits to the left of the village president during board meetings, passing out advice on everything from parliamentary procedure to background on a problem facing the village.

He also deals — often in his spare time — with individual problems, though not, he readily acknowledges, always to the satisfaction of the complainant.

"One of the difficult parts of this kind of job," he says, "is that there's nothing any of us would like better than to say 'yes' to everyone who calls. That would be delightful."

"But it's not always possible. You have to say, 'This is the answer; if you feel it should be otherwise, come to the board and ask them to change the law.'"

BRAUN'S POLICY is not to do anything for one person he couldn't do for the next, though that attitude frequently gets the response: "I don't care what you do with the next person."

By and large, Braun said, "There is a valid basis to practically every phone call I've gotten." In fact, he added, shrugging: "Under the circumstances, I might have raised the same question."

However, as a village administrator, Braun can't always ask the questions he would like to pose as a private citizen.

"There's no way John Doe as city manager could appear before another taxing body with a personal gripe without being identified as John Doe the city manager, not John Doe the individual."

Voting, too, has been affected by his job. Though Braun cast ballots in open primaries in Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota, he has shied away from Illinois' closed primaries.

"UNFORTUNATELY," he explained, "people's responses to you are often based on inferences" which BIKERS AREN'T WAITING for blacktop to smooth out the new Palatine Trail for bicycling and hiking. They're already using the route as a good alternative to village streets. This particular segment runs along the Commonwealth Edison Co. right-of-way leased by the park district. It should be completed by the end of the year. The trail will cost an estimated $190,000 when the entire 4.7 miles are finished, running east-west through Palatine.

Await outcome of hearings

by JEANNETTE DEWYZE

Despite the signing of a bill by Gov. Daniel Walker Monday that could allow leaf burning, it may be a while before Northwest suburban residents know whether they will be able to burn their leaves once again.

The bill, which will go into effect Oct. 1, lifts the Pollution Control Board's general ban on open-leaf burning. However, the board still will have the authority to curb burning in individual geographical areas where pollution is high and burning could be harmful to life or health.

According to Jacob Dumelle, acting chairman of the board, the board has not yet decided how it will handle setting the new standards for leaf burning.

The board already has held some public hearings on a proposal that would allow leaf burning in cities which meet federal air pollution standards.

TWO MORE such public hearings on the proposal will probably be scheduled for September, Dumelle said. Thus, new standards for leaf burning may be in effect by mid-October, he said.

Dumelle said he could not speculate on whether leaf-burning will be prohibited in the Northwest suburbs if the proposal is accepted.

Parts of the Chicago metropolitan area do not meet federal air pollution standards now. In the past, the board has treated the entire Chicago metropolitan area as a unit, he said.

However, depending on the outcome of the hearings, "anything's possible," Dumelle said.

REACTION to the bill from Northwest suburban government officials varied.

Some suburbs, like Hoffman Estates, already have separate ordinances prohibiting leaf burning and plan to continue their bans no matter what the pollution control board decides.

"I don't see any burning in the village," said Edward Kalasa, deputy chief of the Hoffman Estates fire protection district.

Village officials in Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Des Plaines, and Rolling Meadows, all of which now have ordinances prohibiting burning, echoed his sentiments.

"I think the people of Palatine have been more than cooperative in not burning leaves, and it's helpful to the environment. There isn't any reason for us to burn leaves with the bag program we have," said Palatine Village President Wendell E. Jones.

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer said the city will "try to look for more ways to handle" the leaf problem, despite the new bill.

MOST OF the suburbs that already prohibit burning now have effective alternative methods of handling dead leaves. Leaf disposal methods include bagging leaves, grinding them up, and using the leaves for mulch.

Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove and Schaumburg now have no separate ordinances prohibiting burning and village officials say they are uncertain as to what the suburbs will do in light of the new bill.

"If the state does permit leaf burning in the area, then we would have to sit down with the village board to evaluate what kind of problem it could cause the village of Schaumburg," Robert Grossman, village director of public health, said.

He said because of the newness of the community he did not think leaf disposal was now a significant problem.

Leaves also are not a major problem in Buffalo Grove, according to the village's public works director, Bill Davis. He said he did not know if the village will pass an ordinance prohibiting burning now.

AS A RESULT of another action taken by the governor Monday, the Cook County Forest Preserve District now plans to go ahead with its recommendation of a new tree-recycling plant east of Wheeling, Assistant General Superintendent James Tyndall said yesterday.

Construction of the new plant has been held up, pending word on a bill which might have allowed for open burning of area trees once again.

However, Gov. Walker vetoed the bill in question Monday. The district now plans to recommend construction of the plant to the Board of Forest Preserve Commissioners at its regular meeting next Monday.

THE DISTRICT already has drawn up specifications and opened bids on the new plant. The need for a decision on the bill had forced the delay in the plant plans, however, Tyndall said, because the district feared the plant might be unnecessary if area suburbs were allowed to burn their own trees once again.

The proposed recycling plant is intended as a solution to a long-standing problem with diseased tree disposal in the area.

If the plant is approved by the board, it should be set up "within a couple of months," Tyndall said.

Latest brainstorm-village newsletter

Palatine residents may be relieved that their next notification from the village will not be a water bill or overdue parking ticket.

The Palatine Village Newsletter is being sent to residents this week. It describes the village's mosquito control efforts and various programs and regulations.

The newsletter, the first since the April 17 election, also contains pictures of the present village board members.

Scouts go canoeing

Canoeing and camping highlighted the summer for Scout Troop 69, sponsored by the American Legion.

Two leaders and 18 boys canoed 78 miles down the Flambeau River in Wisconsin earlier this summer.

Last month the youths camped near Galena for a week. Other youths interested in joining the troop should contact Peter Flick, 358-3243, after 6 p.m.

Troop 69 meets every Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. during the school year at Sanborn School, 101 N. Oak St., Palatine.

Penny carnival Friday

Youths in the Palatine Park District playground program are preparing games and booths for Friday's annual Penny Carnival at Community Park from 6 to 8:30 p.m.

All proceeds from the carnival will be donated to Maryville Academy, a Des Plaines orphanage. Families are invited to bring picnic suppers to the park and participate in the games. Approximately 500 children joined the park district program for the summer.

Manager to be honored

A Palatine village trustee, James L. Shaw, a former trustee, Terry L. Leighty, will coordinate a recognition program for outgoing Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun.

Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones this week picked Shaw and Leighty to arrange a tribute to Braun, who will leave Palatine at the end of this week to become village administrator in Woodridge.

Details of the tribute have not yet been worked out.

5 arrested in drug raid at Old Madrid

An afternoon drug raid Tuesday at Old Madrid apartments in Palatine resulted in the arrest of three men and two women from Palatine and Rolling Meadows, all charged with possession of marijuana.

Agents with the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG) and Palatine Police conducted the investigation that led to the five arrests. An unspecified amount of raw and processed marijuana was uncovered during the raid.

Four of the people arrested reside at Old Madrid apartments, 730 N. Hicks Rd., Palatine. They are Gary Robert Hanlon, 21; Kent David Floyd, 19; Mary Jane Sloan, 17; and Linda May Moore, 17. Michael Dennis Soderlund, 18, of 1817 Vermont St., Rolling Meadows, also was arrested.

A court hearing is set for Sept. 10 at 2:30 p.m. in the Skokie branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Youth gets cycle lesson-the hard way

A 17-year-old Palatine youth learning to ride a motorcycle suffered facial cuts and a possible skull fracture yesterday when he lost control of the cycle and it crashed through a plate glass window.

John Smith, 355 Morris Dr., was practicing on a cycle behind a home at 858 Plate Dr., Palatine. He reportedly lost control of the cycle, which ran into a porch at the home and went through a window.

He is being treated at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights. The accident occurred at 1:22 p.m.

Cubs winners-at shopping center

The Chicago Cubs as a team may not be doing very well lately, but the Cubs as individuals are still drawing big crowds wherever they go.

So much so, in fact, that they were forced to leave 15 minutes early from an appearance this week at the Palatine Mall shopping center.

Cub stars Jose Cardenal, Billy Williams and Ferguson Jenkins answered questions and provided autographs for a crowd estimated as large as 1,000 persons Monday night.

Dianne Kabor, public relations director for the Palatine Mall, said she cut the appearance short for the safety of youngsters, because the crowd was gathering close to the athletes.

Because some fans were disappointed by the shortened appearance, autographed pictures will be made available at Twilliby's Limited clothing store after 5 p.m. Monday, she said.

Can affliction be nipped in the bud?

Cook County oaks fall prey to mystery killer blight

"Oaks don't get along well with people. They're wild and they don't like a lot of people," she said.

She said the root system of the oak tree is near the surface and susceptible to "shock." The past three years of drought and then an over abundance of water have played havoc with the tree's nutrient gathering system, she said.

While saying the extension service is running tests to determine if a fungus is the cause of the die-off, Miss Sowka said affected trees near construction sites might point toward the stress theory.

Dirt becomes compacted under the heavy traffic of machinery, she said, cutting off the tree's food supply.

OAKS ON private property are also suffering because the lawn sod is too thick. The dense grasses use up most of the plant nutrients before it gets to the oak roots, she said. The roots are too shallow to tap underground water sources to make up for the surface starvation.

She suggested that homeowners with oak trees keep the soil bare around the tree to permit the rain and nutrients to be absorbed by the roots. She also recommended fertilizing the trees, but to avoid watering them.

Dan Brown, of the forestry service, said he was called into the area to make tests and inspect the diseased trees.

"I don't know what it is," Brown said, adding samples of roots, leaves and stems had been taken for further testing.

BROWN, TOO, tends to subscribe to the stress theory. He said the oak trees are often found in a clay soil, which holds moisture longer than regular loam.

He said cultures from the samples would be ready in about two weeks, but that results from tests on the cultures might take two months. The culture tests would tell plant pathologists whether the die-off was of a pathogenic (disease) origin, Brown said.

"It might be because of something pathogenic or physiogenic. If I had to make a guess I would say it was the latter," he said.

Brown said local foresters would watch the trees next spring to determine if the new leaves are diseased. If they are, it would support the fungus or infection theory.

THE BLIGHT seems to be centered around Chicago. Brown said there were one or two other cases of large oak die-offs, but circumstances are not similar to the local affliction.

Pour said not much can be done to prevent the blight until its source is identified.

"We have our men out marking trees now. We're watching them pretty close," he said.

Special recycling drive set for Meadow Trace residents

The Rolling Meadows recycling program is going to the people — at least to the residents of the Meadow Trace apartment complex.

The complex, beginning Aug. 30 and Aug. 31, will begin special recycling drives for residents of the complex in conjunction with the regular bi-monthly drives held by the recycling, ecology, and beautification (REB) committee.

Cans, bottles and newspapers collected in the two-day complex drives will be added to the regular Saturday collections. In addition, residents of the apartments who contribute to the recycling will have the opportunity to win drawings in which a $25 credit deduction in that month's rent will be awarded by the apartment management.

REB committee chairman Evelyn Drummond said the committee hopes other apartment complexes in the city will begin similar programs.

The residents also will be eligible for the monthly drawings for a bicycle offered by the REB committee.

Recycling at the complex will be held from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. on Thursdays and from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Fridays immediately preceding regular recycling on the first and third Saturdays of each month.

Materials may be brought to the recycling station behind the White Hen store in the parking lot in the complex. Materials will be collected Friday afternoons after the drive by the public works department to be added to the regular collections.

The program is being coordinated by Sandra Behr, a member of the REB committee who lives in the apartment complex.

5 arrested in drug raid at Old Madrid

An afternoon drug raid Tuesday at Old Madrid apartments in Palatine resulted in the arrest of three men and two women from Palatine and Rolling Meadows, all charged with possession of marijuana.

Agents with the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG) and Palatine Police conducted the investigation that led to the five arrests. An unspecified amount of raw and processed marijuana was uncovered during the raid.

Four of the people arrested reside at Old Madrid apartments, 730 N. Hicks Rd., Palatine. They are Gary Robert Hanlon, 21; Kent David Floyd, 19; Mary Jane Sloan, 17, and Linda May Moore, 17. Michael Dennis Soderlund, 18, of 1817 Vermont St., Rolling Meadows, also was arrested.

A court hearing is set for Sept. 10 at 2:30 p.m. in the Skokie branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Council approves Central Road walk

The road to Central Road School in Rolling Meadows may be lined with asphalt this year for students who walk along East Frontage Road to the school.

Mayor Roland J. Meyer Tuesday cast the tie-breaking vote during a city council meeting, authorizing the city to advertise for bids for the paving. The paving will cost no more than $10,000 which will come from motor fuel tax funds.

Paving of a 10-foot section of the East Frontage shoulder from Bobwhite Court to Central Road had been considered for some time by aldermen. The paving is intended to provide a walkway for students going to Central Road School.

CITY ENGINEER James Muldowney said Wednesday work on the proposed repaving would likely not be completed in time for the opening of school Sept. 4. He said bids for the work must be advertised for at least two weeks after which the council will consider the plan again to award the work contract.

The state must also review the plan before any work is done because the road is owned by the state. The city has requested the state turn over the road to the city, but no decision has been made by the state.

Once the work is started, it could be completed within five to ten working days, he estimated.

THE COUNCIL was split in a debate Tuesday on whether the paving would actually enhance the safety of children walking to school. Most vocal of five aldermen criticizing the plan was Ald. Stephen Eberhard (3rd).

Eberhard said he objected to the plan because he contends it does not improve the safety situation along the road. He said the plan only adds to the safety hazard because it will still place pedestrians close to the East Frontage Road traffic.

In addition to Eberhard, Aldermen Thomas Scanlon (1st), Merrill Wuerch (1st), James Huddleston (4th), and Frederick Jacobson (5th) opposed the plan.

DURING DEBATE on the plan Meyer asked Muldowney if a sidewalk and barrier could be installed on the shoulder instead of the paving. But Muldowney said because the road belongs to the state, only shoulder improvements by a local community are allowed.

At one point in the debate, Jacobson and Eberhard moved to have the plan tabled for further committee study. At a council meeting two weeks ago the same measure was okayed, but the motion failed Tuesday as Meyer again cast the tie-breaking vote, saying the matter should be decided with no more delays.

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 officials have estimated 30 to 40 students now use East Frontage Road to get to and from Central Road School. School principal Robert Anderson has said that number could increase if the paving is done.

Leaf-burning bill's impact uncertain

by JEANNETTE DEWYCE

Despite the signing of a bill by Gov. Daniel Walker Monday that could allow leaf burning, it may be a while before Northwest suburban residents know whether they will be able to burn their leaves once again.

The bill, which will go into effect Oct. 1, lifts the Pollution Control Board's general ban on open-leaf burning. However, the board still will have the authority to curb burning in individual geographical areas where pollution is high and burning could be harmful to life or health.

According to Jacob Dumelle, acting chairman of the board, the board has not yet decided how it will handle setting the new standards for leaf burning.

The board already has held some public hearings on a proposal that would allow leaf burning in cities which meet federal air pollution standards.

TWO MORE such public hearings on the proposal will probably be scheduled for September, Dumelle said. Thus, new standards for leaf burning may be in effect by mid-October, he said.

Dumelle said he could not speculate on whether leaf-burning will be prohibited in the Northwest suburbs if the proposal is accepted.

Parts of the Chicago metropolitan area do not meet federal air pollution standards now. In the past, the board has treated the entire Chicago metropolitan area as a unit, he said.

However, depending on the outcome of the hearings, "anything's possible," Dumelle said.

REACTION to the bill from Northwest suburban government officials varied.

Some suburbs, like Hoffman Estates, already have separate ordinances prohibiting leaf burning and plan to continue their bans no matter what the pollution control board decides.

"I don't see any burning in the village," said Edward Kalasa, deputy chief of the Hoffman Estates fire protection district.

Village officials in Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Des Plaines, and Rolling Meadows, all of which now have ordinances prohibiting burning, echoed his sentiments.

"I think the people of Palatine have been more than cooperative in not burning leaves, and it's helpful to the environment. There isn't any reason for us to burn leaves with the bag program we have," said Palatine Village President Wendell E. Jones.

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer said the city will "try to look for more ways to handle" the leaf problem, despite the new bill.

MOST OF the suburbs that already prohibit burning now have effective alternative methods of handling dead leaves. Leaf disposal methods include bagging leaves, grinding them up, and using the leaves for mulch.

Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove and Schaumburg now have no separate ordinances prohibiting burning and village officials say they are uncertain as to what the suburbs will do in light of the new bill.

"If the state does permit leaf burning in the area, then we would have to sit down with the village board to evaluate what kind of problem it could cause the village of Schaumburg," Robert Grossman, village director of public health, said. He said because of the newness of the community he did not think leaf disposal was now a significant problem.

Leaves also are not a major problem in Buffalo Grove, according to the village's public works director, Bill Davis. He said he did not know if the village will pass an ordinance prohibiting burning now.

AS A RESULT of another action taken by the governor Monday, the Cook County Forest Preserve District now plans to go ahead with its recommendation of a new tree-recycling plant east of Wheeling, Assistant General Superintendent James Tyndall said yesterday.

Construction of the new plant has been held up, pending word on a bill which might have allowed for open burning of area trees once again.

However, Gov. Walker vetoed the bill in question Monday. The district now plans to recommend construction of the plant to the Board of Forest Preserve Commissioners at its regular meeting next Monday.

THE DISTRICT already has drawn up specifications and opened bids on the new plant. The need for a decision on the bill had forced the delay in the plant plans, however, Tyndall said, because the district feared the plant might be unnecessary if area suburbs were allowed to burn their own trees once again.

The proposed recycling plant is intended as a solution to a long-standing problem with diseased tree disposal in the area.

If the plant is approved by the board, it should be set up "within a couple of months," Tyndall said.

Ice arena open Mondays, Fridays

The Rolling Meadows Park District ice arena will be open from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Monday and Friday for boys between 7 and 16-years old who want extra ice time.

There will be an open hockey shoot. Only equipment needed is hockey skates, stick, gloves and helmet. Goalies must wear complete equipment.

The cost is 50 cents for goalies and $1 for all other boys.

Cemetery links then, now

by LINDA PUNCH
In the late 1830s, a small girl named Mary Barnes was buried in the cemetery of a Congregational Church in what is now known as Elk Grove Township.

The great granddaughter of a Revolutionary War veteran, Mary was among the first pioneers to settle in this area. She was also the first person to be buried in the Elk Grove Cemetery.

The church and pioneer homes have long since disappeared, but the cemetery has somehow survived the onslaught of progress. Tucked into a triangle of land between a tollway entrance ramp and Arlington Heights Road, the one-acre tract will soon be overshadowed by the proposed Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center. The cemetery remains one of the few untouched historical sites in the area.

OF THE FOUR Revolutionary soldiers buried in Cook County, two — Aaron Miner and Eli Skinner — are buried in the Elk Grove Cemetery.

Miner, a Connecticut Minuteman, served in the Continental Army from 1773-83. He was a member of the First Connecticut Regiment and fought at the battles of Lake George, Lake Champlain, St. John's and Montreal.

Miner was 76 years old when he began the journey to Illinois in 1833. Along with his son and granddaughter, he made the trip in a covered wagon drawn by oxen. He died in 1849 and was buried near his great granddaughter, Mary Barnes.

Skinner was born in Vermont in 1760 and joined the Continental Army as a fifer at the age of 15. He served through eight years of rebellion, including the battle of Ticonderoga.

LIKE MINEIT, Skinner moved during the 1830s to Elk Grove, where he lived in a house at the corner of Arlington Heights and Algonquin roads. He served as road commissioner when Elk Grove Township was formed in 1850 and died a year later at the age of 91.

There are other soldiers buried in the cemetery, including one veteran of the War of 1812, five Civil War veterans and two unknown soldiers. Most of their graves are designated by small faded flags and markers placed by the American Legion.

The history of the area is reflected in the names on the headstones — Goebert, Sharringhausen, Cooley, Clough, Wheeler and Busse.

ALLEN BUSSE, secretary of the Elk Grove Cemetery Association, notes that the tombstones "show the different nationalities and types of people who lived in this area."

"The early stones are all New England Yankes — Skinner, Clough, Cooley, Miner," he said. "Later in the 1870s you start getting German names."

The grave markers also hint at private tragedies suffered by pioneer families. Numerous stones mark the graves of babies and children. Many are faded by time and weather with little else but the name and date visible.

Others are still legible, such as the stone marking the grave of two-month-old Ann Maria Draper, who died in the late 1850s. It reads: "Ere sin could blight or sorrow fade/ Death came with friendly care/ The opening bud to heaven conveyed/ And Bade it blossom there."

ANOTHER STONE marks the graves of 15-year-old Maria Corey and 16-year-old Alice Corey, twin sisters who died in 1854 and 1855. Nearby, a simple white marker stands over the grave of a mother and child: "Mary Cooley and baby, Aug. 30, 1904. 'She hath done what she could.'"

Several headstones tell a brief story such as the one marking the grave of a Civil War soldier: "Eugene H. Skinner, co.G., 113 Ill. Inf., died at Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 21, 1865, 21 years, 6 mos. Son of Lucius and Juliette Skinner."

Many of the graves are unmarked, the stones long ago faded and cracked with age. Others have sunk into the ground, to be covered by dirt and creeping grass.

As time passes, new graves will join those of the Early Elk Grove settlers. The names of Skinner and Miner will be remembered by few but the most avid history buffs.

And the Elk Grove Cemetery will continue to be one of the last strongholds of the past in a suburban area looking to the future.

19-year-olds get city OK for beer, wine

Nineteen-year-olds have received the official okay from the Rolling Meadows City Council to buy, drink, and serve beer and wine as of Oct. 1.

The council Tuesday passed an ordinance revising the city codes dealing with liquor laws in order to allow 19-year-olds to drink beer and wine. The ordinance had to be passed to bring city codes into compliance with a new state law that will permit 19 and 20-year-olds to drink beginning Oct. 1.

The new law will permit the 19 and 20-year-olds to drink beer and wine but not other liquors. They may also serve beer and wine but will still be prohibited from selling any liquor.

Before a vote was taken on the ordinance change, Mayor Roland J. Meyer asked City Atty. Donald Rose if the city was obligated to lower the drinking age. Rose said since state law will allow the lowered drinking age as of Oct. 1, the city law had to be changed to conform to the ruling.

Card and bingo party at St. James

A card and bingo party benefit will be held Aug. 22 at 9:30 a.m. at the St. James Hall behind St. Colette Church in Rolling Meadows.

The event will be sponsored by the Blue Army church organization. Admission is $1.50. Refreshments and prizes will be available.

Sales tax collected for Rolling Meadows in May amounted to $121,406.64, City Clerk Eileen Kornatz announced Tuesday.

Special events slated

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland J. Meyer has proclaimed the week of Aug. 13 to be Roaring West Fest week in the city, and the week of Aug. 20 to be Youth Week.

The West Fest event, sponsored by the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center Association, begins today in the shopping center mall on Kirchoff Road and Meadow Drive.

Youth Week will feature a number of special events next week, including the selection of Miss Rolling Meadows, a parade and a picnic.

Carnival fees returned

Fees amounting to $420 for the recent carnival in Rolling Meadows sponsored by the Jaycees were refunded to the organization Tuesday by the city council.

Permit fees for fund-raising events are usually refunded by the city to nonprofit organizations in the city sponsoring the events.

Named to honor roll

Seven students from Rolling Meadows were recently named to the academic honor roll at Northern Illinois University.

The students are: Paul N. Dercoates of 2405 Meadow Dr., Mary L. Burns of 4409 Sycamore Ln., Steven J. Pozzo of 2408 George St., Marilyn C. Trenter of 2402 Meadow Dr., Linda J. Furian of 2402 Oak Ln., Elizabeth A. Martin of 4571 Hoover St. and Debbie S. Sales of 2201 Adams.

Recycling committee to give away bikes

A bicycle drawing will be held Saturday to name the first winner of the Rolling Meadows recycling, ecology, and beautification (REB) committee monthly recycling contest.

The bicycle will be awarded in a drawing from names of persons who participate in both recycling drives held this month at the public works building, 3200 Central Road. The second monthly drive is scheduled for this Saturday.

Materials which can be recycled include bottles, cans, and newspapers. The items may be brought to the public works building from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday.

The bicycle drawings will be throughout the summer.

Busse basin contract OK hits snag

A "minor problem" with the low-bid offer for excavation work of the Busse Woods retention basin has prevented the state from awarding the contract.

John Gullou, chief engineer of the state Division of Waterways, said the bidder indicated an incorrect figure for the estimate of excavation work required. He said the state and bidder were working on the problem and should solve it within a "couple days."

Gullou refused to release the name of the low bidder.

The contract work is for the first phase of construction, excavation and clearing of the site for the basin.

OTHER CONTRACTS will have to be awarded for succeeding phases on construction.

The Busse Woods retention basin, located in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve in unincorporated Elk Grove Township, will be the major structure of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed flood control plan.

The Busse Woods structure will create a 589-acre basin for flood water storage. The area around the basin will be developed as a major recreational site.

Gov. Daniel Walker recently approved more than $3 million for the construction of the retention basin.

Total cost of the flood control program, which will provide a series of retention basins on the creek, is $26.5 million. State and local governments have committed funds for about half the cost of the project. Federal funds are being requested for the remaining costs.

Atcher confident village officials broke no laws

by NANCY COWGER

Mayor Robert O. Atcher is confident federal investigators will find no misdeeds on the part of Village of Schaumburg officials.

If the investigators do substantiate charges against any village personnel, the mayor has pledged complete support in removing them from positions they may hold and obtaining the full penalties of the law.

Atcher made his first public comments Tuesday night on reports Schaumburg is among communities under grand jury investigation.

"Schaumburg is listed among municipalities to be or being investigated having to do with zoning practices, kickbacks, bribes, mail fraud and income tax evasion," noted the mayor.

WHILE ATCHER repeated he has received no confirmation or notice of any investigation, he was firm in his belief in the integrity of all persons officially connected with the village.

"I am willing to bet my heart there has never been a penny accepted by anyone here with regard to zoning. Should we find charges substantiated, we would immediately relieve ourselves of the person or persons involved and hope they pay the penalty," said Atcher.

Decision near on ambulance service charge

There will be a special meeting at 8 p.m. today of the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District Board to announce its decision on whether to charge residents for ambulance service. The meeting location is Fire Station No. 1, 160 Flagg-staff Ln.

The board also will decide on holding a referendum seeking permission to tax for ambulance service. The meeting was announced last night when the board held its regular session.

Board chairman William Brilliant said action on the two issues was being postponed one night so that all members could be present. Fire district trustee Mark Dick was away on business, Brilliant said.

The board suggested earlier this summer that either the fee for service or the tax or both of them might be necessary to keep the district from going in the red. The district also asked for a grant of $25,000 from Hoffman Estates village officials to meet expenses after Dec. 1, when it expects funds to be depleted.

The village has not acted on the request but last night fire district treasurer James Gintzler announced that the Suburban Bank of Hoffman Estates had agreed to purchase up to $200,000 in tax anticipation warrants on or after Dec. 1 if the district needs the loan. The district would repay the warrants from tax revenue received in 1974.

Jones Road 'won't be OKd'

Schaumburg will not take formal action to approve completed plans for reconstruction of Jones Road until a signed agreement with Hoffman Estates is finalized, said Schaumburg Village Engineer Joe Zgonina this week.

Zgonina was replying to comments on the pace of the project made by Mayor Virginia Hayter at Monday's Hoffman Estates Village Board of Trustees meeting.

The project is being administered by Schaumburg with Hoffman Estates paying its portion of road costs. Plans must be submitted to the state for approval before a bid date can be established, he said.

Ownership and maintenance of the road, which extends north from Higgins Road to Hassel Road, is literally split down the middle by the two municipalities.

THE EASTERN half completely adjoins Hoffman Estates; the other side provides access to the Churchill and Knightsbridge subdivisions in Schaumburg and to the northeastern edge of Hoffman Estates' High Point.

For the past two years officials of both towns have been attempting to negotiate a settlement of ownership in order to improve road maintenance.

Mayor Robert O. Atcher recently proposed a trade agreement with Hoffman Estates. It called for transfer of ownership of Jones Road to Hoffman Estates. In return, Schaumburg is asking for ownership of Hillcrest Road, a one-quarter mile long stretch of pavement leading west from Roselle Road to where Hillcrest Boulevard begins.

Atcher asked each village to put its road in top condition prior to the trade.

BUT THIS WEEK Mayor Hayter criticized Schaumburg for failure to act on the road project. "The matter of Jones Road has now been placed in the hands of the village attorney," the Hoffman Estates mayor said.

She told of a recent luncheon meeting with Hoffman Estates Village Mgr. George Longmeyer, Atcher and Schaumburg Village Administrator John Coste when the road was discussed. Mayor Hayter said she is dismayed that nothing has taken place concerning the road since then.

"I realize Schaumburg may have a good bit on its mind and maybe Jones Road is not as important to them as it is to me," she remarked.

HOWEVER, AT Tuesday's Schaumburg board meeting, Coste reported working with Longmeyer on another trade.

He explained that 3,000 ft. of Bode Road, near Helen Keller Junior High School, was annexed to Schaumburg Center in 1958.

Coste said the Hoffman Estates village board has agreed to annex that part of the road if Schaumburg is willing to disconnect it.

by PAT GERLACH

Two independent candidates who opposed the Schaumburg United Party (SUP) in last April's village election have been refused membership into the party.

Helen Jackson and Suzanne Popp, defeated trustee candidates, applied for membership in SUP but were turned down. Both were told their $1 dues will be refunded.

They say they joined SUP at the suggestion of Chuck Marshall who had served as co-campaign manager last spring. Marshall's invitation to Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Popp came when they visited party headquarters on election night to congratulate winners.

Neither filled out an application but were told by Marshall he had paid first-year dues for them.

RAY KESSELL, deputy chairman of SUP, said the party's executive board met shortly after the election and voted to deny membership to Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Popp. Kessell is a senior village trustee.

"We agreed that the way in which membership had been made for the two ladies was not the proper way to do things," said Kessell.

He said the fees paid for the two were returned to Marshall.

BUT KESSELL explained the SUP philosophy behind refusing to admit the defeated candidates.

"When you have people with such diverse opinions, it is our contention that it really doesn't make much sense to open an organization to people who are antagonistic to it," he said.

Mrs. Jackson, whose campaign centered on opposition to "uncontrolled growth" in the village, said she called party members' attention to her failure to receive newsletters and other communications from SUP.

She said Kessell later called her to explain SUP's action on her membership.

"IT IS OBVIOUS that they don't want any opposition in the party itself," Mrs. Jackson remarked.

Though she has not decided whether to pursue further attempts at party recognition, Mrs. Jackson is annoyed.

"SUP is supposed to be a party for everyone in the village so I can't really see why I can't join," she said.

BUT SUE POPP looks at things in a slightly different light.

"I do agree that Helen and I probably did not go about things in the right way," she said.

Mrs. Popp told of a meeting she requested with Mayor Robert O. Atcher after the election.

"I think it was a good discussion between us and he urged me, if I am really interested in the community, to join the party and go from there," she said.

She stressed her genuine interest in village affairs and said she still would like an opportunity to join SUP.

Hearings on condos to continue?

by PAT GERLACH

Members of the Schaumburg Zoning Board of Appeals late last night at a public hearing appeared certain of continuing the hearing on Larwin-Ilinois Inc. rental and condominium planned unit developments.

The project consists of 2,500 rental and condominium units on a 114-acre site east of Plum Grove Road between Golf and Higgins roads.

If approved the project will contain 1,300 garden apartments in three-story buildings and 1,200 condominium units in six-story mid-rise buildings.

Described as a "hybrid" plan by Howard Borde, an attorney and corporate officer of Larwin, the project consists of five sub-developments. Each would be developed with a maximum 50 per cent open space.

BORDE SAID, "Larwin has an agreement to purchase the land from J. Emil Anderson and Sons, developers." Larwin plans to build the major portion of the project but part of it could be sold to another developer, Borde said.

Larwin proposes that rentals would range from $220 per month for a studio apartment to $380 per month for a three-bedroom 2½-bath unit.

Condominiums would sell from $25,000 for a one-bedroom one-bath unit to $45,000 for a three-bedroom two-bath unit.

Structures would vary from three to six stories. Maximum building height is 36 feet, Borde said.

A total of 10 recreation centers with swimming pools are planned.

Plans call for common ownership of open space to be controlled by a condominium owners association and management of rental property.

The developer has promised a five-acre school site but agreed to meet with Dist. 54 representatives present at last night's meeting for further negotiations.

Dist. 54 Board Pres. Don Rudd indicated that 816 elementary school age children may come from the development. Rudd said a five-acre site is the minimum Dist. 54 would accept in view of student projections.

He expressed a willingness to meet with Larwin representatives to negotiate for a larger site.

The project also would contain a retention pond capable of handling a 100-year storm. No specific acreage was mentioned for the pond but it was described as a passive recreation area for boating or fishing.

If the plan's zoning is approved, Larwin plans to begin construction next April.

Driver in fatal crash charged on three counts

Robert Lilly has been charged with three traffic violations after a June 27 triple-fatality auto accident.

Lilly, 28, of 1125 Perth Dr., Schaumburg, was charged with crossing a yellow line, leaving the scene of an accident and driving under the influence of alcohol.

Killed in the accident were Anthony Wilson of Island Lake and Beverly Mackson and Ralph Peters of Chicago. Charges against Lilly were not filed until recently, and the state's attorney's office is still investigating.

According to police, Lilly was driving north bound on the Northwest Tollway near Higgins and Oakton roads when his auto crossed into the southbound lane. He was later found dazed and injured near a motel close to the accident scene.

Lilly is scheduled to appear in Mount Prospect branch of Cook County Circuit Court on Aug. 23.

Zoners oppose project

Levitt plan vote set for Aug. 28

Two "unique" development plans found response ranging from apparently uncertain to somewhat unfavorable from the Village of Schaumburg this week. Action was deferred on each.

The village board of trustees will respond Aug. 28 to a plan for the old Gray Farm, fronting on Bode and Schaumburg roads about half a mile east of Barrington Road. Representatives of Levitt and Sons, builders of the Sheffield developments in Schaumburg, formally requested annexation and zoning from the village board Tuesday.

The Levitt proposal received negative response when it was presented to the zoning board of appeals. Some changes were incorporated into the plan before it was brought to the village trustees.

BUT WHEN Zoning Board of Appeals chairman Russell Parker was asked if the changes would have evoked a favorable zoning board vote, Parker responded, "No, sir."

Levitt personnel termed their proposal unique in the amount of land that would be dedicated for open space. The site totals 184 acres, of which 55 would be given for open space. A 10-acre site would be given to School Dist. 54, and a three-acre site to the Schaumburg Park District.

The rest of the land would be developed in single-family homes, on lots averaging 7,400 square feet, or a minimum lot size of 6,500 square feet. Currently, the village does not permit homes on lots smaller than 10,000 square feet.

The homes would be an average of 15 feet apart, although a few could be as close together as 13 feet. There would be 530 homes, with an average selling price of $50,000. This compares with an average price of $37,000 for the last 200 homes Levitt has sold in the village, said their spokesmen.

OF THE OPEN space available, 30 percent would be usable, and tentatively would include two miles of bike and pedestrian trails. The rest would be retention area, except for the school and park sites. Levitt is prepared to offer the open space to the park district, but spokesmen noted the district may not wish to accept it. In that case, the purchasers of the homes would be formed into an association with joint responsibility for maintenance cost and taxes on the open land.

The development would produce $255,000 in tax revenue for Dist. 54 per year, compared with an estimated annual $165,000 local cost of educating the anticipated 678 elementary children projected for the development, said Levitt representatives.

Levitt is asking permission to return to the village later, if the project is approved and sales are less successful than anticipated, and seek rezoning for the northern 40 acres of the project. This area would then be developed in some form of multiple family housing, they said.

ANOTHER PROJECT was referred to the zoning board, where it apparently will not be received favorably in its present form. Parker objected strenuously to the developer's plan to put one wall of a commercial building within a foot of the property line, or abutting the Roselle Road sidewalk.

The project is a small commercial area on the southeast corner of the Weathersfield Way-Roselle Road intersection, in the Lancer subdivision. The proposal is for two buildings, one housing three shops in a one-story structure and the other housing real estate and other offices in a two-story structure.

The developer, Neil Hunter and Associates, would face the buildings eastward, away from Roselle Road, and would construct a street curving south from Weathersfield Way and west to Roselle Road around the project site. Access would be off the new street, Windsor Lane.

The board noted the project would provide only 50 feet of right-of-way from the center of Roselle Road, which is to be constructed in the future to a six-lane highway. That would leave the building right next to the sidewalk, and the sidewalk right next to the street.

Parker objected that the plan would violate zoning ordinances requiring 25-foot setbacks from any wall of a building, not just the front wall, to any public street.

The board did approve another project, to be on the south side of the new Windsor Lane. A 7-11 convenience store fronting on Roselle Road is to be constructed there.

Disorderly conduct, drug charges filed

A 20-year-old Hoffman Estates man was under observation in the intensive care unit at Northwest Community Hospital yesterday after he was found lying in the street on Bristol Walk Tuesday night.

He is the victim of an apparent drug overdose, police said.

An unidentified woman telephoned police about 8:30 p.m. and reported the man was lying in the street near the Higgins Road intersection.

Police said they found the man bleeding from cuts on the head. He was taken to the hospital by Hoffman Estates Fire District ambulance.

"Hostile and incoherent" was Schaumburg police description of an Elk Grove Village man they charged with disorderly conduct at Woodfield Tuesday night.

He is Sam Bell, 20, who came to police attention after a call came that he was sick in the mall. Bell, released on $250 bond, is to appear in Schaumburg Court on Sept. 19.

Tot Lot registration

The Schaumburg Park District will hold registration for Tot Lot starting Monday at Meineke Community Center, 220 E. Weathersfield Way.

Registration for residents will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and for non-residents starting Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Tot Lot will be conducted at the Meineke Center and Jennings House, 220 S. Civic Dr., twice a week on Mondays and Wednesdays, Tuesdays and Thursdays, or once a week on Fridays.

Registration fee for the twice-a-week program is $14 and for the once-a-week session $7.

Service for 'urgent' deliveries

by MIKE ZAREMBA
The man in the jet black suit looks a little mysterious, even intriguing, as he jumps out of the cab. He grabs a big brown duffel bag, a large envelope, pays the cabbie and walks through the automatic doors at O'Hare Airport.

A voice comes over the PA system: the TWA flight leaves in 15 minutes. The checker takes the duffel bag, slaps on a tag and hands the man a receipt. The bag is now on the conveyor belt, going down to the loading center. No time to waste.

Reaching in his pocket, he pulls out an I.D. card and pins it to his breast pocket. He picks up his pace a little, working his way down the long steel staircase to the loading dock.

THE SIGN ABOVE the revolving doors reads: "Employees Only." A security guard stops him, but he flashes his I.D. card. "Okay, fine," the guard says.

He has sight of the bag again as it comes down the long conveyor. A few buttons are pushed by an operator, lights flash, the bag scoots down to a section marked "S."

The man in the jet black suit watches the baggage handler place the duffel bag in a big steel bin which is then hooked to a small scooter cab and wheeled out onto the airport concourse.

He flashes his I.D. card at another guard, following the duffel bag, still holding his envelope. His suit flaps in the jet blast as he runs after the scooter.

A mechanic, kneeling next to one of the jet tires, is checking something. He looks up and catches sight of the running figure.

The big brown duffel bag is the last piece of cargo to be stuffed into the plane's belly. He is sure of that.

THE MAN IN the black suit works for Network Courier Service (NCS), a company that picks up parcels and documents at offices all over the United States, safeguards them enroute and delivers them within hours, if necessary. He can't make mistakes; the job doesn't allow it.

The man hurries back to the loading center, up the staircase, through the terminal. Before he boards the plane, his envelope must pass through the X-ray detector. No problems. He grabs the envelope and walks onto the ramp.

The ticket girl noticed the I.D. card, but he was moving too fast. She turns to the steward and he points to a name on the list.

Every day, morning and night, this man and other NCS couriers working out of the company's Des Plaines office, 2500 Devon Ave., retrace those steps through the hectic O'Hare terminals.

RON MUNLEY, Chicago district manager, said the business was started by a Columbia Broadcasting System executive who found sending movie film, videotape and correspondence a risky task via "No one can beat an eight cent stamp. But when it's urgent, where time is important, that's when the courier service is needed," Munley said.

"The couriers are well trained and know what to do in an emergency," Munley added. Most of the men are retired policemen or firemen. NCS keeps in constant touch with its men to locate a courier fast when he's needed. The company's operation is flexible, designed to get deliveries to their destination quickly and safely.

If a flight to New York is forced by bad weather to land in Boston, for instance, the courier may rent a car on the last leg of his trip. For morning deliveries to Wall Street customers, NCS couriers use a helicopter service from New York's Kennedy Airport. For shipments of valuables, an armed guard accompanies the NCS man.

Average cost for the service is about $40 for each shipment of less than 10 lbs. NCS couriers handle just about everything: legal documents, stock prospectuses, television scripts, computer parts or publisher proof sheets.

EVERY SATURDAY, during the hockey season, for example, a courier is sent to Montreal for films of National Hockey League games. He delivers them to New York, where they are broadcast nationwide on Sunday. After the Johnny Carson show is filmed each day in Los Angeles, an NCS courier makes sure the film gets to New York within hours.

The company has also handled some odd jobs. Its couriers went along with the electronic podium used for this year's Grammy Awards show from Nashville. They carried the manuscript and photographs for Norman Mailer's controversial new book on Marilyn Monroe.

A National Broadcasting Co. executive even hired NCS to fly along with his mother because he was afraid she'd get lost en route, Munley said.

ON HIS TRIP to New York, the NCS courier from Chicago lands at Kennedy Airport and reverses the steps he took to get on the plane. Through the terminal to the loading center, he flashes the I.D. card and walks onto the field. The brown duffel bag comes off the plane and he's on his way, envelope in hand.

Two building moratoriums ending here

The end to two building moratoriums in Schaumburg is in sight.

The moratorium on building in the proposed Old Town area, at Schaumburg and Roselle roads, was adjusted this week to allow property owners to proceed with some development.

Persons seeking building permits for the area, which extends a quarter mile in every direction from the intersection plus the distance west on Schaumburg Road to St. Peter's Church, now will have access to village board review.

THE PROPERTY owners may bring their requests to the board and will be asked to describe their proposed structures. Dick Nomellini, plan commission chairman, will be asked to comment on whether the proposal generally adheres to the anticipated Old Town plan.

Nomellini had asked the board to extend the complete moratorium until Oct. 1, when he anticipates being able to propose an Old Town ordinance.

BUT MAYOR Robert O. Atcher suggested the village could not delay Old Town development any longer than it already has. Atcher said the village has prohibited development in the area nearly nine months.

The other moratorium, on issuance of building permits to Levitt and Sons for its Sheffield Manor Phase III development, appears to be nearly over. A representative of the manor homeowners association told the board last night of receiving a progress report from Levitt on correction of deficiencies in the first and second phases.

Mrs. Kenneth Lewin said if Levitt complies with the timetable outlined in the letter the association will withdraw objections to issuance of Phase III building permits. A village inspection, with an association member present, is to be scheduled soon.

IN OTHER ACTION this week, the village board approved annexation and zoning for an extension of the parking lot for the Lancer Restaurant at Algonquin and Meacham roads.

A one-day liquor license was granted, with the fee waived, for Septemberfest, a now annual event on Labor Day. This will be the third year for the community celebration. The board also agreed to make Weathersfield Way one-way east-bound between Braintree and Marie for the duration of Septemberfest, to provide additional parking space along the street.

Accidents, injuries down

'Most dangerous' corner tamed by new traffic lights

Mount Prospect's "most dangerous intersection" has been significantly tamed by new traffic signals and safety features that began functioning last January. A check of police accident records this week revealed the number of accidents decreased 38.8 per cent since the improvements were installed at the intersection of Central Road with Northwest Highway, Prospect Avenue and Hill-Lust Avenue. From January to July this year, there have been 30 accidents. In a similar period last year there were 49 accidents.

Driver, 18, hits tree; charged on two counts

An 18-year-old Rolling Meadows man was charged with driving while intoxicated and failure to reduce speed after his car struck a tree at 907 S. Emerson St., Mount Prospect. Police reports said Kenneth B. Schweda, 4001 Bluebird Ln., Rolling Meadows, was apparently intoxicated at the time of the accident. Marijuana and methqualone were found in the car said police. Schweda was treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital. Damage to his car was estimated at $2,000. He is scheduled to appear in Mount Prospect Court Oct. 3.

More importantly, in the 30 accidents this year, there have been no injuries requiring hospital treatment, while there were six such accidents last year in those seven months. "THAT'S SIGNIFICANT," Mayor Robert D. Teichert said yesterday when he heard the accident figures. He then referred to the multiple intersection's past bad reputation. "The kind of accidents we were having were devastating. We used to have head-on and multiple injuries," he said. The figures bear out Teichert's remarks. Last year, there were 72 accidents (six involving injuries). Four injury accidents were among the 68 accidents reported in 1971, and 1970 recorded 53 accidents. Part of the intersection improvements include a pedestrian crosswalk light across Northwest Highway. Last August, before the light was installed, a 15-year-old Des Plaines youth was struck and killed by a Chicago and North Western Rwy. train at the intersection. OTHER IMPROVEMENTS made at the intersection include left-turn signals and concrete medians with left-turn storage bays. Traffic on Prospect Avenue automatically triggers its own green arrows to permit entry onto Central Road. For the first several weeks after the lights were put in, several problems developed, but most of these have been corrected. However, the lights still go out on occasion. George March, whose firm acted as consulting engineers on the project, said malfunctions of new lights are to be expected. Such service interruptions are now being experienced at Northwest Highway and Main Street, where new traffic lights were recently installed. Teichert, who said he uses the intersection frequently, is happy the confusions have been eliminated from the intersection. He said when people disobey the law or act carelessly, there is nothing that can be done to reduce the number of accidents. He said the reduction in confusion is now being reflected in the reduction of accidents. The intersection improvement was recommended in a 1970 traffic study and 50 per cent was paid for by the federal government under the TOPICS program of intersection improvements. The state and the village shared the other 50 per cent of the cost.

Band boosters plan ice cream social

The Forest View High School band boosters will hold an ice cream social at the school tomorrow evening. The social is the boosters first fund-raising event of the 1973-74 school year. The boosters will also be working at the Future of America Fair to be held at Arlington Park from Aug. 24 to Sept. 3. A donation will be made to the club for each hour worked at the fair.

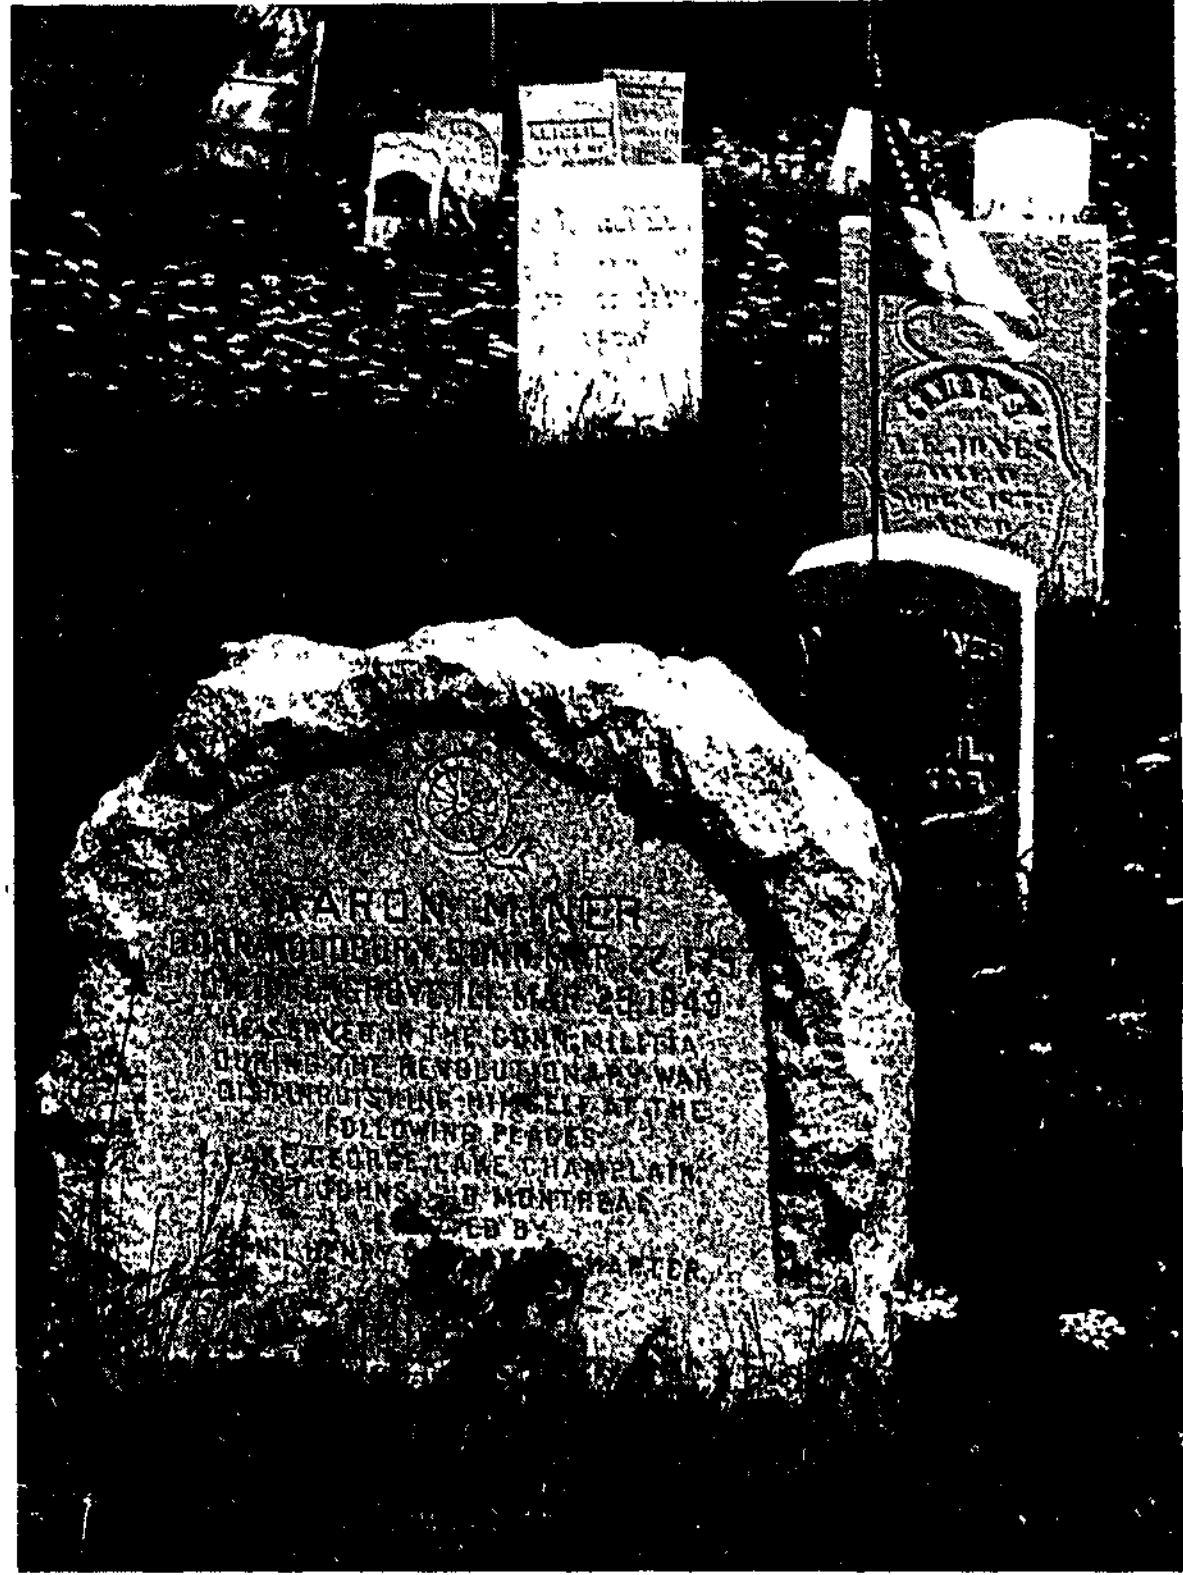

Youths with matches set fire to bushes

Two youths set fire to some evergreen bushes at 904 S. Emerson St. Tuesday while playing with matches. Police said the two boys, whose names they would not release, had been playing with the matches about 1:45 p.m. when the whole match book caught fire. One boy told police the match book was then thrown in the air. An estimated $150 damage was caused to the bushes at the home of Betty Johnson.

Trade center will overshadow graves

by LINDA PUNCH In the late 1830s, a small girl named Mary Barnes was buried in the cemetery of a Congregational Church in what is now known as Elk Grove Township. The great granddaughter of a Revolutionary War veteran, Mary was among the first pioneers to settle in this area. She was also the first person to be buried in the Elk Grove Cemetery. The church and pioneer homes have long since disappeared, but the cemetery has somehow survived the onslaught of progress. Tucked into a triangle of land between a tollway entrance ramp and Arlington Heights Road, the one-acre tract will soon be overshadowed by the proposed Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center. The cemetery remains one of the few untouched historical sites in the area. OF THE FOUR Revolutionary soldiers buried in Cook County, two — Aaron Miner and Eli Skinner — are buried in the Elk Grove Cemetery. Miner, a Connecticut Minuteman, served in the Continental Army from 1775-83. He was a member of the First Connecticut Regiment and fought at the battles of Lake George, Lake Champlain, St. John's and Montreal. Miner was 76 years old when he began the journey to Illinois in 1833. Along with his son and granddaughter, he made the trip in a covered wagon drawn by oxen. He died in 1849 and was buried near his great granddaughter, Mary Barnes. Skinner was born in Vermont in 1760 and joined the Continental Army as a fifer at the age of 15. He served through eight years of rebellion, including the battle of Ticonderoga. LIKE MINER, Skinner moved during the 1830s to Elk Grove, where he lived in a house at the corner of Arlington Heights and Algonquin roads. He served as road commissioner when Elk Grove Township was formed in 1850 and died a year later at the age of 91. There are other soldiers buried in the cemetery, including one veteran of the War of 1812, five Civil War veterans and two unknown soldiers. Most of their graves are designated by small faded flags and markers placed by the American Legion. The history of the area is reflected in the names on the headstones — Goebbert, Sharringhausen, Cooley, Clough, Wheeler and Busse. ALLEN BUSSE, secretary of the Elk Grove Cemetery Association, notes that the tombstones "show the different nationalities and types of people who lived in this area." "The early stones are all New England Yankees — Skinner, Clough, Cooley, Miner," he said. "Later in the 1870s you start getting German names." The grave markers also hint at private tragedies suffered by pioneer families. Numerous stones mark the graves of babies and children. Many are faded by time and weather with little else but the name and date visible. Others are still legible, such as the stone marking the grave of two-month-old Ann Maria Draper, who died in the late 1850s. It reads: "Ere sin could blight or sorrow fade/ Death came with friendly care/ And bade it blossom there." ANOTHER STONE marks the graves of 15-year-old Maria Corey and 16-year-old Alice Corey, twin sisters who died in 1854 and 1855. Nearby, a simple white marker stands over the grave of a mother and child: "Mary Cooley, and baby, Aug. 30, 1904. 'She hath done what she could.'"

Many of the graves are unmarked, the stones long ago faded and cracked with age. Others have sunk into the ground, to be covered by dirt and creeping grass. As time passes, new graves will join those of the Early Elk Grove settlers. The names of Skinner and Miner will be remembered by few but the most avid history buffs. And the Elk Grove Cemetery will continue to be one of the last strongholds of the past in a suburban area looking to the future.

Leaf-burning bill's impact here uncertain

by JEANNETTE DeWYZE

Despite the signing of a bill by Gov. Daniel Walker Monday that could allow leaf burning, it may be a while before Northwest suburban residents know whether they will be able to burn their leaves once again.

The bill, which will go into effect Oct. 1, lifts the Pollution Control Board's general ban on open-leaf burning. However, the board still will have the authority to curb burning in individual geographical areas where pollution is high and burning could be harmful to life or health.

According to Jacob Dumelle, acting chairman of the board, the board has not yet decided how it will handle setting the new standards for leaf burning.

The board already has held some public hearings on a proposal that would allow leaf burning in cities which meet federal air pollution standards.

TWO MORE such public hearings on the proposal will probably be scheduled for September, Dumelle said. Thus, new standards for leaf burning may be in effect by mid-October, he said.

Dumelle said he could not speculate on whether leaf-burning will be prohibited in the Northwest suburbs if the proposal is accepted.

Parts of the Chicago metropolitan area do not meet federal air pollution standards now. In the past, the board has treated the entire Chicago metropolitan area as a unit, he said.

However, depending on the outcome of the hearings, "anything's possible," Dumelle said.

REACTION to the bill from Northwest suburban government officials varied.

Some suburbs, like Hoffman Estates, already have separate ordinances prohibiting leaf burning and plan to continue their bans no matter what the pollution control board decides.

"I don't see any burning in the village," said Edward Kalasa, deputy chief of the Hoffman Estates fire protection district.

Village officials in Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Des Plaines, and Rolling Meadows, all of which now have ordinances prohibiting burning, echoed his sentiments.

"I think the people of Palatine have been more than cooperative in not burning leaves, and it's helpful to the environment. There isn't any reason for us to burn leaves with the bag program we have," said Palatine Village President Wendell E. Jones.

Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer said the city will "try to look for more ways to handle" the leaf problem, despite the new bill.

MOST OF the suburbs that already prohibit burning now have effective alternative methods of handling dead leaves. Leaf disposal methods include bagging leaves, grinding them up, and using the leaves for mulch.

Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove and Schaumburg now have no separate ordinances prohibiting burning and village officials say they are uncertain as to what the suburbs will do in light of the new bill.

"If the state does permit leaf burning in the area, then we would have to sit down with the village board to evaluate what kind of problem it could cause the village of Schaumburg," Robert Grossman, village director of public health, said.

He said because of the newness of the community he did not think leaf disposal was now a significant problem.

Leaves also are not a major problem in Buffalo Grove, according to the village's public works director, Bill Davis. He said he did not know if the village will pass an ordinance prohibiting burning now.

AS A RESULT of another action taken by the governor Monday, the Cook County Forest Preserve District now plans to go ahead with its recommendation of a new tree-recycling plant east of Wheeling, Assistant General Superintendent James Tyndall said yesterday.

Construction of the new plant has been held up, pending word on a bill which might have allowed for open burning of area trees once again.

Vandals strike again, this time at Fairview

Vandals broke into Fairview School, 1906 E. Kensington Rd., Monday night. Mount Prospect police said books and candy dishes were thrown around.

The vandals broke a window to get inside the school.

Police also reported a burglary at the Dennis G. Moore home, 1005 S. Robert Dr., sometime between Aug. 3 and Tuesday. They said the front door was pried open. It is unknown what was taken, although a jewelry box was forced open.

Omni-House pondering Wolf Road home move

The board of directors of Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau, 516 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, is considering moving the present office or opening a branch office in a residence at 57 S. Wolf Rd.

The owners of the house, Earl and Anita Jensen, Monday night petitioned the Wheeling Village Board of Trustees for a special use permit to operate a youth service bureau.

Peter Digre, director of Omni-House, yesterday said the board indicated to him the petition would probably not be handled by the zoning board until sometime in September. The zoning board has no meetings scheduled for the rest of August.

Digre stressed the Omni-House board is merely exploring the possibility of acquiring the house and has no definite plans to move the central office there or convert it into a branch facility.

"It's sheer speculation at this point," he said. "All we know is that we're just overwhelmingly busy here and we need more space. It's totally investigation and we're looking at all the options open to us."

IN THEIR PETITION to the board, the Jensens said it is no longer economically feasible for them to maintain the home as a residence. They indicated surrounding neighbors approve of using the home as a youth services bureau.

The Jensens yesterday could not be reached for comment.

Digre said he had personally discussed the idea with residents immediately adjacent to the Jensen home and they had no objections.

Instead of looking for a new central office site, Digre said Omni-House officials also are considering setting up several additional small offices throughout the area.

Omni-House serves Wheeling, Buffalo Heights and portions of Mount Prospect.

"WE JUST BEGAN initiating a relationship with people at the new Buffalo Grove High School and it looks like they're going to give us some space there and we already have space at Wheeling High School. Maybe the solution is just to decentralize more," he said.

Omni-House counselors currently use two counseling offices at Wheeling High School on Tuesday and Thursday evenings. Digre said there is a possibility they will be able to make a similar arrangement to use counseling offices at Buffalo Grove High School.

In addition to the school offices, Omni-House has rented space from the Buffalo Grove Park District and often uses local church facilities for programs.

Omni-House representatives are also discussing with village officials the possibility of using the old Buffalo Grove sewage treatment plant.

"We're just not planned down on our course of action," Digre said. "As I said we're looking at all our options. We just know that sometime in the next six months we have to get more space somewhere."

18-year policeman resigns due to health

Mount Prospect policeman Edwin Hachmeister, an 18-year veteran of the department, resigned this week for medical reasons.

Hachmeister has served as the department's pistol rangemaster for several years.

What is causing the deaths of so many?

Killer blight pounces upon oak trees

by JOE SWICKARD
Hundreds of large oak trees are dying and forestry experts don't know the reason.

"We don't know what it is. It just looks like they're dead," said George Pour, Cook County Forest Preserve associate forester.

According to Pour, something is killing off the white and red oaks that abound in forest preserves. All preserves have been affected, he said, but Deer Grove, near Palatine, has been hit especially hard.

The blight is not confined to the preserves. The University of Illinois Extension Service in Des Plaines reports it has received about 10 calls a day from worried oak owners.

THE WIDESPREAD affliction first came to the attention of officials through helicopter surveys of the forest preserves, Pour said.

Pour said his department has called in expert advisers from the University of Illinois and the U.S. Forestry Service in St. Paul, Minn., to help combat or at least identify the ailment.

Oak wilt (a common disease) was at first suspected of being the culprit, but was ruled out in most cases through pathological tests, Pour said. Another theory is inclined to blame stress, he said.

"It might be stress on the plant system. We had a drought a couple of years ago and then two years that were really wet. It's hard on the roots," Pour said.

MELANIE SOWKA, of the extension service, concurred with this theory. The oak tree, despite its massive appearance is actually a very delicate plant, she said.

"Oaks don't get along well with people. They're wild and they don't like a lot of people," she said.

She said the root system of the oak tree is near the surface and susceptible to "shock." The past three years of drought and then an over abundance of water have played havoc with the tree's nutrient gathering system, she said.

While saying the extension service is running tests to determine if a fungus is the cause of the die-off, Miss Sowka said affected trees near construction sites might point toward the stress theory.

Dirt becomes compacted under the heavy traffic of machinery, she said, cutting off the tree's food supply.

OAKS ON private property are also suffering because the lawn sod is too thick. The dense grasses use up most of the plant nutrients before it gets to the oak roots, she said. The roots are too shallow to tap underground water sources to make up for the surface starvation.

She suggested that homeowners with oak trees keep the soil bare around the tree to permit the rain and nutrients to be absorbed by the roots. She also recommended fertilizing the trees, but to avoid watering them.

Dan Brown, of the forestry service, said he was called into the area to make tests and inspect the diseased trees.

"I don't know what it is," Brown said, adding samples of roots, leaves and stems had been taken for further testing.

BROWN, TOO, tends to subscribe to the stress theory. He said the oak trees are often found in a clay soil, which holds moisture longer than regular loam.

He said cultures from the samples would be ready in about two weeks, but that results from tests on the cultures might take two months. The culture tests would tell plant pathologists whether the die-off was of a pathogenic (disease) origin, Brown said.

"It might be because of something pathogenic or physiogenic. If I had to make a guess I would say it was the latter," he said.

Brown said local foresters would watch the trees next spring to determine if the new leaves are diseased. If they are, it would support the fungus or infection theory.

THE BLIGHT seems to be centered around Chicago. Brown said there were one or two other cases of large oak die-offs, but circumstances are not similar to the local affliction.

Pour said not much can be done to prevent the blight until its source is identified.

"We have our men out marking trees now. We're watching them pretty close," he said.

Library board to spend $3,500 to study growth

Officials at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library are looking for ways to expand the present building now crowded with books, materials and patrons.

Library board members Tuesday night voted to fund a feasibility study by Nicol, Nicol, Chaney and Vanek of Chicago, the architectural firm who originally designed the library building in 1968.

Cost of the study is to not exceed $3,500 and is to include recommendations, renderings and cost estimates of expanding the building, according to Frank Dempsey, executive librarian. The study will be completed "within a few months."

"The main reason for the study is that our shelves already are very crowded," he said. "As the village population grows, it's going to get worse."

PRESENTLY THE LIBRARY has about 150,000 books, with more than 430 serials. It also houses audiovisual materials.

But according to the American Library Association, the library is falling short of the suggested quota, which is 3.5 books per capita or 245,000 books.

"It's a standard we would like to meet but at the present time, even if through some miraculous circumstance that we have the $3,000 books needed, we would have no place to put them," Dempsey said.

He cited that the library is 8,000 sq. ft. short of the recommended space standard suggested by the association.

"We really don't have much room left . . . on most evenings every single table and chair is taken."

Books and materials will be ordered continually because "we have to build up our collection."

"Through experience, approximately 80 per cent of the circulation on any given day, month or whatever, is new material," said Dempsey. "And we can't throw away old material even though we have an on-going weeding policy."

Last year the circulation was more than 800,000 or 10 books or other materials per person.

Dempsey also added that the reciprocal borrowing program "has nothing to do with this." The program was instituted by the North Suburban Library System and enables a card holder from other areas to borrow books at any of the system's libraries.

Dana Point developers request addition OK

The developers of Dana Point apartments in Arlington Heights have approached the village for a two-building, 184-unit addition to their complex.

Plans call for the two new buildings to be constructed north of the existing complex on Central Road. They would be Y-shaped and similar in appearance to the existing apartment buildings.

They would include 32 three-bedroom, 88 two-bedroom and 64 one-bedroom apartments. The approximately 11-acre site is now zoned for business development and would have to be rezoned for apartment use before the addition could be built.

A hearing will be held Sept. 26 before the Arlington Heights Plan Commission on the proposed building project.

Park board earmarks $47,000 for 1820s 'living farm museum'

See park tax levy on Page 5.

The Arlington Heights Park District has earmarked $47,000 of 1974 tax money to help establish a replica of a pioneer farm common to the area 150 years ago.

Thomas Thornton, park director, said the new fund will pay for an architect and materials to recreate a northern Illinois farm of the 1820s. The living museum will have a farm house, barn and out-buildings as well as a cultivated plot, Thornton said.

A joint committee of park board commissioners and members of the Arlington Heights Historical Society will do the research necessary for the farm, he said. Commissioners Cathy Graham and Bruce Everly will represent the parks. Thornton said he has had preliminary talks with the historical society, but no definite ground rules have been laid.

THE PROJECT, to be named the Prairie Farm and Garden Park, will be located at Foster and Belmont streets, in the far southeastern corner of Arlington Heights. The land is presently used for public garden plots.

Thornton said he expected the historical society to do most of the research to insure the project would be as authentic as possible. Park commissioners will act as liaisons with the park board.

The fund will be a continuing item in the park budget, Thornton said. He was unsure whether the farm could be developed as a unit, or would have to be done one building at a time over a number of years.

No architects have been engaged or consulted. Thornton said one would probably be hired by the spring of 1974 when funds become available.

Jones leaves vacancy on library board

The Arlington Heights Memorial Library is seeking candidates to fill a seat on its board vacated by former trustee, Philip D. Jones.

Jones, 32, resigned his position Tuesday because of a job transfer to California. He is employed by R. L. Ringwood. Jones was elected to the board in April to serve a six-year term.

Persons interested in the position should send a letter expressing interests and qualifications to Board Pres. Richard Frisbee, The Arlington Heights Memorial Library, 500 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights 60005.

The appointment, to be made by the six remaining trustees, will be temporary and effective until the next village election in 1975.

Trade center will overshadow graves

Tiny cemetery links past, future

by LINDA PUNCH

In the late 1830s, a small girl named Mary Barnes was buried in the cemetery of a Congregational Church in what is now known as Elk Grove Township.

The great granddaughter of a Revolutionary War veteran, Mary was among the first pioneers to settle in this area. She was also the first person to be buried in the Elk Grove Cemetery.

The church and pioneer homes have long since disappeared, but the cemetery has somehow survived the onslaught of progress. Tucked into a triangle of land between a tollway entrance ramp and Arlington Heights Road, the one-acre tract will soon be overshadowed by the proposed Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center. The cemetery remains one of the few untouched "historical sites" in the area.

OF THE FOUR Revolutionary soldiers buried in Cook County, two — Aaron Miner and Eli Skinner — are buried in the Elk Grove Cemetery.

Miner, a Connecticut Minuteman, served in the Continental Army from 1775-83. He was a member of the First Connecticut Regiment and fought at the battles of Lake George, Lake Champlain, St. John's and Montreal.

Miner was 76 years old when he began the journey to Illinois in 1833. Along with his son and granddaughter, he made the trip in a covered wagon drawn by oxen. He died in 1849 and was buried near his great granddaughter, Mary Barnes.

Skinner was born in Vermont in 1750 and joined the Continental Army as a soldier at the age of 15. He served through eight years of rebellion, including the battle of Ticonderoga.

LIKE MINER, Skinner moved during the 1830s to Elk Grove, where he lived in a house at the corner of Arlington Heights and Algonquin roads. He served as road commissioner when Elk Grove Township was formed in 1850 and died a year later at the age of 81.

There are other soldiers buried in the cemetery, including one veteran of the War of 1812, five Civil War veterans and two unknown soldiers. Most of their graves are designated by small faded

PARKING LOT for sale, but the landscaping is not included. The lot at Sigwalt and Arlington Heights Road was posted for sale yesterday, just a few weeks after the village completed a $2,000 landscaping project. Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson, who warned the village board of the sale offer, said if the property is sold, the plantings will be moved to other locations.

Parking lot for sale — landscaping comes free

by KURT BAER
FOR SALE. Beautifully landscaped parking lot. Downtown location. Truly must be seen to be appreciated.

That might be the real estate listing on the municipal parking lot at the northwest corner of Arlington Heights Road and Sigwalt Street.

The lot was posted for sale yesterday, just days after the village spent $2,000 to landscape its perimeter with a railroad tie planter sprouting a dense green mock orange hedge and potted flowering crab trees.

The reason for the economic incongruity lies in the fact that the village does not actually own the parking lot property, which daily is filled with the cars of people who come and go from village hall.

THE LAND is owned by Nicholas M. Lattot of Lattot Motor Sales Co. and the village has only been able to get use of it on a day-to-day basis, according to Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson.

The lack of village ownership is also the reason that the parking lot is unimproved, which is what led to the landscaping in the first place.

The village, at the urging of the Environmental Control Commission, had applied for a variation from the ordinance requirement that all parking lots be hard surfaced. The variation was approved for two-years on the condition that the planter be constructed as planned.

BUT BY THE TIME it came time to approve the purchase of the planting materials and the accompanying zoning variation, Hanson had received a letter from the property owner stating that it was his intention to put the property up for sale.

On June 18, Hanson took that message to the village board which decided that the landscaping should go in anyway.

The trustees reasoned that there was certainly no guarantee that the property would be sold, or even listed for sale. And if it was sold, the planter and shrubbery could be salvaged and used at other points around town.

So, intrepidly, the project went ahead.

"It cost us $2,000 plus labor," Hanson said yesterday. The planter was built by college students who had summer jobs with the public works department.

PROBABLY NO ONE would argue that the planter was a major aesthetic improvement.

In a recent Fence Post letter to the Herald, Jo Hayes, president of the Arlington Beautification Council, commended the village for the landscape screen saying, "One of our community's worst eyesores has become a real aesthetic addition to our inner community."

There also is a chance that the greenery will continue to beautify the site for some time to come.

The purchase price of the property, according to a salesman with Robert L. Nelson Real Estate, is $155,000.

flags and markers placed by the American Legion.

The history of the area is reflected in the names on the headstones — Goebert, Sharringhausen, Cooley, Clough, Wheeler and Busse.

ALLEN BUSSE, secretary of the Elk Grove Cemetery Association, notes that the tombstones "show the different nationalities and types of people who lived in this area."

"The early stones are all New England Yankees — Skinner, Clough, Cooley, Miner," he said. "Later in the 1870s you start getting German names."

The grave markers also hint at private tragedies suffered by pioneer families. Numerous stones mark the graves of babies and children. Many are faded by time and weather with little else but the name and date visible.

Others are still legible, such as the stone marking the grave of two-month-old Ann Maria Draper, who died in the late 1850s. It reads: "Ere sin could blight or sorrow fade/ Death came with friendly care/ The opening bud to heaven conveyed/ And Bade it blossom there."

ANOTHER STONE marks the graves of 15-year-old Maria Corey and 16-year-old Alice Corey, twin sisters who died in 1854 and 1855. Nearby, a simple white marker stands over the grave of a mother and child: "Mary Cooley and baby, Aug. 30, 1904. 'She hath done what she could.'"

Several headstones tell a brief story such as the one marking the grave of a Civil War soldier: "Eugene H. Skinner, co G., 113 Ill. Inf., died at Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 21, 1865, 21 years, 6 mos. Son of Lucius and Juliette Skinner."

Many of the graves are unmarked, the stones long ago faded and cracked with age. Others have sunk into the ground, to be covered by dirt and creeping grass.

As time passes, new graves will join those of the Early Elk Grove settlers. The names of Skinner and Miner will be remembered by few but the most avid history buffs.

And the Elk Grove Cemetery will continue to be one of the last strongholds of the past in a suburban area looking to the future.

A PILGRIM GRANITE stone marks the grave of Aaron Miner, a Revolutionary War Veteran who later settled in Elk Grove. The stone was erected in 1931 by the Dearborn Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Tickets also will be sold at the door. Prices are $4 for adults and $2 for children with reserved seating $1 extra per ticket.

Busse Woods basin bid OK hits a snag

A "minor problem" with the low-bid offer for excavation work of the Busse Woods retention basin has prevented the state from awarding the contract.

John Guillou, chief engineer of the state Division of Waterways, said the bidder indicated an incorrect figure for the estimate of excavation work required. He said the state and bidder were working on the problem and should solve it within a "couple days."

Guillou refused to release the name of the low bidder.

The contract work is for the first phase of construction, excavation and clearing of the site for the basin.

OTHER CONTRACTS will have to be awarded for succeeding phases on construction.

The Busse Woods retention basin, located in the Ned Brown Forest Preserve in unincorporated Elk Grove Township, will be the major structure of the Upper Salt Creek Watershed flood control plan.

The Busse Woods structure will create a 589-acre basin for flood water storage. The area around the basin will be developed as a major recreational site.

Gov. Daniel Walker recently approved more than $3 million for the construction of the retention basin.

Total cost of the flood control program, which will provide a series of retention basins on the creek, is $26.5 million. State and local governments have committed funds for about half the cost of the project. Federal funds are being requested for the remaining costs.

Assessment jumps; parks expect to hold down taxes

The Arlington Heights Park District expects to hold the line and not raise its tax rate for fiscal year 1973. The projected tax rate for the district next year is being figured at .382 per cent, the same rate used in fiscal 1972, according to Roger Burke, district treasurer.

For the average house with an assessed valuation of $10,000, the park district would receive $38.20. This is a small portion of the yearly real estate tax bill, which also includes school districts, village, township and other levies.

The district was able to project the same tax rate for next year because of an anticipated $15 million increase in the assessed valuation of the district. The new projected assessment is $300 million, according to Burke, as opposed to the current assessment of $285 million.

THE NEW TAX levy ordinance, which includes the tax rate, was approved Tuesday night by the park commissioners. The ordinance will be filed with the Cook County assessor, who will establish the final tax rate. Burke said he expects the county's rate to be very near the district's estimate.

The levy ordinance accepted by the commissioners calls for a total tax collection of $1.25 million. The district's total includes a 5 per cent cushion against non-collected taxes.

Last year's park budget called for a tax collection of $1.1 million against expenditures of $1.4 million. The difference was to be made up through fees, rents and investments. Burke said the first half of the collection period resulted in payment of 72 per cent of taxes, well ahead of the usual collection rate.

Budget breakdown of the levy ordinance by park district fund groupings:

- Corporate fund (administrative salaries, telephone, office supplies, personnel insurance): $380,667.

- Recreation Fund (recreation workers' salaries, recreation supplies and equipment, swimming pool material): $256,846.

- Social Security and Pension Fund: $56,736.

- Park Liability Insurance Fund: $14,125.

- Audit Fund: $1,020.

- Museum Fund: $47,250.

- Bond Fund (interest and principal due on outstanding general obligation bonds): $367,655.75.

Total of all projected fund expenditures: $1,124,259.75.

Final figures for the district's assessed valuation and tax rate will not be readied by the county until next spring. Burke said the figures used to establish the ordinance were accurate estimates.
